Nothing. His wage is pitifully meagre. His life hard. There are no pensions or "allowances" as in the army.

One hundred and forty five British ships sunk without a trace-"spurlos versenkt" is the infamous phrase-and thousands of other sunken ships have taken their toll of brave sailor men-

Yet never a British sailor has refused to sign on for another ship. They know of the thousands and thousands of tons of supplies that must be kept moving to the boys at the front. They know that cessation of British sea traffic would be the cutting of the jugular vein of our war.

We who sleep safely at night from the Hun because of the heroic work of the Sailor amidst hidden mines and slinking murderous submarines-will we not be generous on when the Daughters of the Empire will ask for our subscriptions for the sailors of the British Navy and the Mercantile Marine. Canada's gift last year of $700,000 "for the relief of British and Canadian Sailors and their dependents, for Sailors' Homes, Institutes and Hospitals in Canada and throughout the British Empire" and for the work of the Navy League-will surely be surpassed.
