ST. JOHN STAR.

ST. JOHN, N. B., OCTOBER 22, 1901.

MR. McHUGH WILL ORATE.

Mr. Patrick A. McHugh, a Sligo Journalist, who spent six months in Kilmainham jail for publishing a seditious libel, has been released and will come to the United States with John Redmond and John O'Donnell. When he addresses audiences in the states, Mr. McHugh will pose as a martyr to British tyranny, and will be received with great favor.

On the day after McKinley's assassination Johann Most, the anarchist, printed in his paper an article that will cost him a year in jail. Mr. McHugh is not an anarchist, but like Johann Most he rails about tyranny where none exists. If there is to be concerted action among the powers to put down troublesome agitators, the Americans might begin by offering a cold shoulder to Mr. McHugh.

THE HAWAIIAN LABOR PROBLEM.

Hawaii is facing a grave labor problem. The natives are dying off rapidly, and the death rate is about forty to the thousand. Added to this foreign laborers are leaving the country. This leaves matters in a bad way, and it has been found impossible to obtain sufficient labor to get in the crops. According to despatches the sugar cane crop, which should have been harvested in July is not yet off the field. The authorities are casting about for some way to ameliorate these conditions, but so far nothing has been done. The only promising solution of the difficulty appears to lie in the encouragement of Chinese labor. The climate is suited to Chinaman, and he can do as much work and do it as cheaply as the native Hawaiian. It looks as if the wandering celestial will in that land find a rest for his weary feet. Heavily taxed and almost debarrd from other countries, he will be made welcome in Hawaii.

A Washington despatch tries to convey the impression that England would welcome the good offices of a friendly power along the line of intervention in South Africa, and that President Roosevelt is inclined to ask other powers their views on the subject. If the correspondent knows as little about the president's views as he does about the desires and intentions of England, he is warming the wires with telegraphic rubbish. President Roosevelt has stated that he will carry out McKinley's policy. McKinley opposed intervention. Besides, there is some unfinished business in the Philippines.

Canadians were pleased with the idea that the Americans sought a Canadian nurse when their late president was on his deathbed, and now there is gratification again in the fact that the Rev. Charles H. Brent, a Canadian by birth and educated in Canada, has been chosen by the members of the Episcopal church in session at San Francisco, to be missionary bishop of the Philippines. Rev. Mr. Brent is well known as the author of With God in the World.

During the recent conference of Viljoen and Sir Bindon Blood concerning South African affairs, the London Times notes that the word "independence" was not used once throughout the interview, and that Gen. Viljoen had no misgivings as to the future of the country. He thought a large number of the Boers would elect to emigrate to Canada or Australia. They would prefer British rule to any foreign power.

Once again mankind is called upon to meet a terror in the form of a brand new bacillus. This has been discovered by a prominent Vienna surgeon, and its peculiarities are that it develops only when oxygen is excluded, and it generates gases during its growth. A fuller report is soon to be published, and we will then know where to look to find the new fear.

A London cable says that at the Basington fair was exhibited an apparatus which, by means of pulsators, milks cows more quickly than it can be done by hand. The man or woman who has to get up and milk a dozen cows or more before breakfast will heartily wish more power to the elbow of the pulsator.

While suburban residents are showing this office with ripe strawberries and the like, our unhappy neighbors in Halifax have been visited by hordes of snow.

Throughout Canada there will be great pleasure that Principal Grant's illness has got beyond the worst stage, and that his health is now steadily improving.

CHAS. W. MORSE.

The Promoter of the New Steamship Deal.

Remarkable Success of a Man Who is but 46 Years Old.

N. Y. Evening World.

Within a recent period Wall street notables in big enterprises have watched with absorbing interest the rise of a new man to power.

In a time so brief that men marvel at it, Charles W. Morse has steadily forced to the front, until today he stands as the successor to William C. Whitney, long regarded as the shrewdest, longest-headed leader in enterprises involving politics or requiring political factors for development.

Today at the age of 46, Mr. Morse is at the head of more enterprises of a local nature, requiring greater combined capital for their successful carrying forward, than can easily be summarized.

Important developments are shortly to be made that will make clear to the general public the magnitude of the deal made by Charles W. Morse, former president much attention.

Very quietly this man has worked to perfect his plans for establishing a rival to the formidable Bell Telephone company.

With chapters for the Telegraph, Telephone and Cable company of America and its subsidiary branches covering the state of New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Connecticut and Pennsylvania, Mr. Morse is nearly ready for additional steps in his huge enterprise.

Business will soon begin on a big basis.

WHO IS CHARLES W. MORSE?

Wall street financiers have been asking for some time, Who is Charles W. Morse?

Many recent operations—all on a scale requiring millions of capital—have attracted much attention.

Wall street seems to think that a man who controls capital enough to buy outright six big city banks; to secure a working interest in as many more; who can become head of the greatest ice trust in the country; who can buy whole steamboat lines with as much sangfroid as J. Pierpont Morgan, and finally can plan and bring to culmination a project to rival the Bell Telephone company in its own stronghold, is one worth watching.

Mr. Morse's business history justifies the street's conclusion. He has been a resident of New York just ten years.

Within one decade he has become one of the central figures in a group of operations involving capital beyond the billion mark.

Mr. Morse is 46 years old. He is small of figure, suave in manner, clear-eyed, courteous, but has few charms for him. He is not fond of club life. Business is his chief consideration.

What time he can spare from his business he devotes to his wife—his married life has been a happy one—three sons and a daughter, who live with him in his home at No. 734 Fifth Avenue. A summer home at Bath, Me., tempts him from his desk for a short time each season.

PROJECT APPEALED TO HIM.

At his office in the New Amsterdam bank, Mr. Morse "led briefly of his latest venture.

"I am not a practical telephone man," he said. "I leave details to Judge Thomas, but the project appealed to me as a business investment.

"New York and Boston are covered by a single company. Its profits are not easily calculated.

"It is my intention to begin here as a base. Then we can make arrangements with all other independent companies that may want to get a connection with New York City.

Mr. Morse protested that he was too busy to give many details of his plans. He also said with some emphasis that there was no political end to any of his enterprises.

"Just work," he said when it was suggested that there must be some reason to his success. "Just work and plan."

By his system of working and planning here are a few of the things he has accomplished in ten years in New York:

He created the ice trust and stifled competition and made many millions selling ice to New Yorkers.

He drew about him such political factors as Richard Croker, Mayor Van Wyck, William R. Grace and John F. Carroll.

He worked and planned with such astuteness that H. O. Havemeyer, George W. Perkins, William C. Whitney, John D. Grimmin, Charles T. Barney and other sound financiers joined with him in his enterprises.

He has achieved the distinction of being able to raise more money over night than any other man in New York dealing in speculative investments where time is required to demonstrate its profit-making ability.

He owns outright or controls a majority interest in the New Amsterdam bank, the Broadway National, the Guaranty Bank of the State of New York, the Varick, the Produce Exchange bank, the Twelfth Ward bank, and the Nineteenth Ward bank.

But Mr. Morse said glidingly: "I have no banking syndicate. We went into the banking business because we believe that banking in this city is a profitable business."

And then he gave his undivided attention to the details of his manifold enterprises.

OTTAWA.

Funeral of the Late Nicholas Flood

DAVID, EX-M. P.

OTTAWA, Oct. 21.—The funeral of the late M. P. David, M. C., ex-M. P., took place this afternoon at Beechwood cemetery immediately after the arrival of the Winnipeg train. There was not a large attendance, due to the fact that the notice was so short. Among those present were: Hon. John Haggart, Hon. J. C. Patterson, Mr. Birkett, M. P., Mr. Belcourt, M. P., Mr. Macell, M. P., Mr. James Grant and a delegation from the parliamentary press gallery.

The cemetery service was read by Rev. Mr. Moore, pastor of Bank Street Presbyterian church. Geo. Taylor, M. P., and others telegraphed their regrets at not being able to be present owing to short notice.

The department of militia has been advised that the machinery for the manufacture of steel projectiles has arrived at Quebec. It will be placed in position immediately and the factory will at once commence to manufacture steel shells.

Geo. R. Maxwell, M. P. for Burrard, arrived here this afternoon. It is said he is after the vacant position in the dominion cabinet.

A striking instance of the unfairness of the British trade returns from Canadian standpoint was brought to the attention of the officials of the department of trade and commerce today. It appears that a London produce company which imports dressed beef, poultry, etc., in a circular widely distributed in England, calls attention to the alleged fact that the exports of Canadian dressed beef to England are falling off, being but 6,016 cwt. this year as against 35,921 cwt. for the same period last year.

Colmer, secretary to the high commission, wrote the company, calling attention to the figures, which, instead of a decrease, show that the Canadian exports of dressed beef are steadily increasing, being for the year ending June 30th last, 8,933,113 lbs. as against 2,264,853 lbs. for the year ending June 30th, 1900. The company apologized for the mistake which they had made, and said they had taken the British returns, which instead of crediting Canadian exports via the United States, give that trade to the United States. In this respect Canada has a just grievance against the mother country. The government will doubtless make representations to the imperial authorities with a view of getting the British government to give correct statistics.

L. K. Jones, chief clerk of the department of railways and canals, left today to visit the head offices of a number of smaller railway companies to induce them to hurry up their annual reports of traffic and receipts which under the law are due here October 1st. Big companies give no trouble, but every year smaller companies have to be spurred up, and the department to penalize some of these concerns to compel them to get their returns in within the time limit.

The contract for a new government steamer for use in connection with the standing and protection of oysters in the maritime provinces has been awarded to the Burrill Johnson Co. of Yarmouth, N. S.

The war office has asked the department of agriculture to purchase half a million bushel oats to be shipped from St. John.

BUT ONE MORE STOP.

HALIFAX, Oct. 21.—The royal party left here this morning amid a heavy snow squall. At 10 o'clock sharp the Ophir backed out from the dockyard and took her place in the naval procession. The torpedo boat led off, followed by H. M. S. Quail, Tribune, Falchion, Crescent, Ophir, Diadem, Las, Psyche, Crescent, Ophir, Diadem and Niobe, in order. A royal salute was fired from Citadel Hill and on board the ships all the bands were playing.

Thousands lined the water front or went on excursion boats to see the last of the Duke and Duchess. At York redoubt another royal salute was fired, and the cable steamer Minia, using bombs, also gave the party the usual twenty-one guns.

Only the Niobe and Diadem escort the Ophir to St. John's, the other vessels either returning to port or proceeding to the West Indies. The flag-ship Crescent will be here for several weeks with an attendant cruiser.

At Lord Minto and suite left for St. John's for Ottawa. A guard of honor from the Royal Canadian was in attendance, and a salute of nineteen guns was fired.

As the Ophir and accompanying ships were getting ready to sail this morning snow was blowing in furies and the air was cold. The sailors were ordered to man the yards on one of the warships moored at the dock. The Duke of Cornwall seeing this, took the hint in hand himself, and ordered the men on the yards to come down. His highness thought it too cold for them and he did not believe in unnecessary hardship.

NEW STYLES IN LOCOMOTIVES.

A locomotive is now nearing completion in the North Pacific Coast company's shops at Sausalito, Cal., which, if it achieves the hopes of its inventor, will lead to radical changes in engine construction.

It has the engineer's and fireman's cabs in front, instead of behind, the boiler, thus affording the men in the cabs an unobstructed view of the track ahead.

ROCKEFELLER'S BIBLE CLASS.

At a social gathering in New York last week of the young men's Bible class which is taught by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., it was announced that the near future the class would have a club house of its own. It will be the gift of John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

BOMBARDMENT OF CRONJE.

One of the Most Striking Spectacles of Modern Times.

(With "Boob" and Kruger.)

"One hundred and twenty-six guns—only twelve less than Gen. Lee used at Gettysburg—were in a semicircle around Gen. Cronje, keeping up for two hours a continuous rain of lyddite and shrapnel. A magnificent spectacle this—the general bombardment on the second day after the battle of Paardeburg and the surrounding of Cronje's army in the bed of the Modder River. Cronje had only four guns in action. Till 6 o'clock, I watched the engagement. As one used black powder, the puff of smoke from his mouth showed plainly with the flash. The others used smokeless powder, which showed only a reddish white flash when fired, after which the smoke would follow a swishing, hissing sound in the air, and somewhere below us a nine-pound shell would explode in a cloud of smoke, and perhaps a few men would scatter from their places around a gun. Meanwhile half a dozen pieces of British artillery, ready loaded and sighted at the spot, had sent their charges true as a die to the place of the flash; and that afternoon three of the guns in the laager were put out of action. How many tons of metal and explosives were hurled at and into the Boer position that afternoon, I cannot guess; but with each discharge, especially of the lyddite guns, which sent up a great cloud of thick black smoke where each shell dropped, I felt a thrill as if I thought it was the executioner of perhaps a dozen men, and maybe some women.

"A tall, girl-faced young officer, attached to somebody's staff near by, said with an affected drawl, 'This is the grandest bombardment I have ever seen.' On the other side a grizzled old colonel, with India, Egypt, and the Crimea written on his face, muttered, 'I'd like to know what others he has seen!' The old fellow was righteously ruffled at the youngster, for his well-trained professional optics had been focused silently for hours on the affair, now historic, for it was one of the heaviest bombardments of modern times. How any one escaped annihilation up there in the river bed was beyond my comprehension. Surely, I thought, unless they surrender, they will be only a few hundred of the poor fellows left, and when I thought of the women it was with a feeling of dejection of the English, in spite of the fact that the Boers had been equal in caliber to the existence of women and children in Kimberley and Ladysmith.

"The use of lyddite in war may be described as follows: The roar of a 4.7-inch gun is quickly followed by the explosion of the lyddite shell, two or three miles distant. A few seconds elapse; then suddenly a black cloud of smoke appears near the ground, sharp black points pierce the air in every direction, rounding out into huge dark clouds, which slowly settle and spread their supposedly poisonous vapors over the ground. Four, five, six seconds pass in silence; then is heard a resounding thunder-clap, as though from a clear sky; it is the sound of the bursting shell, crushing and shattering the air, deafening the ear, echoing and re-echoing, crumbling away, with several revivals, until silence and the flattening of the black capers on the surface of the void follow minutes after; while commanders, officers, gunners and correspondents keep their eyes intently on the spot, to note the effect of ninety-eight pounds of steel and lyddite on the laager and its defenders."
