HOPEWELL HILL, May 26.—The funeral of the late Michael Keiver took place yesterday afternoon from the residence of his son, W. B. Keiver. The services were conducted by the Rev. J. K. King, pastor of the Methodist church, and were largely attended. The pall-bearers were: A. M. and W. B. Keiver, sons; and James, Joseph, John and Chandler Keiver, brothers of the deceased. Interment was made in the Hopewell cemetery. The weather has come out very fine and summer-like, and the grass on the marsh and elsewhere is coming on rapidly.

CHATHAM, May 27.—Queen's weather did not do as usual, signalling the birthday. It was cold, rainy and with frequent squalls, which prevented the full enjoyment of the holiday. The yacht club had a sail on the river, but beyond a general observance with the customary expenditure of fireworks and the band playing on the beach, the night of the day passed in a very quiet manner.

The baby contest, which has been inaugurated by a travelling medicine concert company, is now exercising the minds of the nurse girls and mothers of some of our three-year-olds. It is very amusing to scan the bulletin board from day to day and listen to the remarks of the various admirers of the "kids" whose names appear upon the fateful list. One gentleman was much disgusted at the appearance of the name of his blue-blooded offspring among those of the contestants and had it obliterated by substitution of another.

The gentlemen engaged in the preliminary work of our sewers and water works have already arrived, and it is likely that ground will soon be broken. The pipes are arriving and men are advertised for. The business of boring for the water is still prosecuted, though with what ultimate success it is hard at this stage to determine. The first well which was bored has apparently failed to tap the water flow, and the second one is not so vigorous as it was in its initial stages.

The doubts which have so long surrounded the fate of Editor W. C. Anslow of Newcastle have been dispelled by the discovery of his remains at a point about eight miles from where he was last seen by his hunters who was in the woods with him hunting partridges. The most generally accepted theory is that he had become lost and had travelled until exhausted and succumbed in all probability to heart failure. It is a melancholy satisfaction to his friends who have been years of uncertainty, to have their own doubts as well as a number of silly stories forever settled.

Mr. Gray has made good progress on the new church building. The boarding-in has been nearly completed upon the lower west wing. The structure, erected and one of the smaller ones and the cable on the easterly side is in its place. Scarcity of men is preventing rapid work.

Messrs. Swin of Doaktown have a residence begun for Mr. Heckbert on Henderson street. This site is the property about which the litigation has been in progress in the Kelly v. Creaghan case.

The Sun's references to forest fires appear at an opportune moment. The country to the west of Chatham has been for some time the scene of serious conflagration and yet we never hear of any steps being taken to prevent such a condition of affairs. Some parties, and they are well known too, are said to take a malicious delight in setting fires which over-run all the nearby woodlands.

Eldest Grant of this town is entertaining his brother John, who unexpectedly dropped in upon him a few days ago after a residence of thirty-five days in the western states. Cheers were given for the flag after which the crowd repaired to the hall, where Rev. L. J. Wason addressed the boys and girls on patriotism. Hon. L. F. Farris made a few well chosen remarks in which he pointed out to the children that Empire Day was not set apart as a holiday but as a day to instruct the pupils in patriotism. C. W. White, J. P., made an able speech, in which he told of many improvements that had taken place within the last few years. Patriotic songs and readings were given by the pupils, and the meeting closed by singing God Save the King.

They have secured the assistance of a staff of young men and maidens, who will act as stretcher bearers and Red Cross nurses respectively, and some realistic scenes of battle-field and hospital life will be introduced in the course of the evening. Musical talent and decorated local singers and players, will give charm and variety to a quite elaborate programme. Then, there are to be readings and addresses, besides the play and the music band. The building is being trimmed and decorated with flags and bunting and will be lighted with acetylene gas. The advance sale of reserve seat tickets indicates good interest in the patriotic object, and as the railway authorities have arranged for one fare return tickets, and the suburban train will be held over till half past ten, the presence of many persons who live along the line from St. John to Sussex is confidently expected.

He was filing the saw of the "Dex" machine when the saw caught on the running pulley, and before he the flir could remove his hands the circular saw was in rapid motion, and caught the hand between the thumb and fore finger, making two long gashes, extending nearly to wrist and tearing out the intervening tendons and flesh. He was attended by Dr. J. Newton Smith, who had to put in a number of stitches to bring the parts in place again.

Lemuel McDonough has gone into the manufacture of emery and corundum wheels, and emery hones, for hand or foot power, but if the industry proves successful he intends to put in a steam plant and go more extensively into the business. The stock on hand, though not extensive, shows excellent workmanship, and as the wheels have been already introduced to St. John machinists, who speak favorably of their appearance and capabilities, and an order for emery hones has been received from a Boston concern, the proprietor is looking hopefully to the establishment of a good business of this class of merchandise in the United States, and believes there is a good field for his enterprise in the maritime provinces.

Our streets are receiving a coating of new asphalt, and the water from the furnaces of the steaming factory now defunct. Roadmaster Gilliland is trying this as an experiment, and purchased four hundred loads, at seven and a half cents a load. Properly laid, well rolled in, and covered with a light coat of sand, gravel, will, under dry, smooth roads for several seasons. The ladies of the Methodist church, always actively engaged in good offices for the church and people, have undertaken to provide the funds for a new approach to their place of worship. The old steps have been removed, and a broad platform, with an easy flight of steps, protected by neat hand rails, are to take their place. Henry C. Frost has the work in hand, under the direction of the pastor, Rev. W. Lodge.

The early season is giving delight to the heart of the farmer. Potatoes are well above ground, turnips and carrots are beginning to show, the grass is abundant, the apple, cherry and plum trees are in full bloom, and every hand nature is putting on her brightest and most beautiful appearance. The children are reveling in the wonderful supply of buttercups and white and purple violets, the former being most lavish in their golden splendor, very large and entirely free from insects. The rains of the past two days, although somewhat cold, seem to help rather than impede the rapid progress of vegetation.

ST. MARTINS.

A Seaside Summer Resort of Unsurpassing Attractiveness.

The natural scenery of St. Martins makes it a delightful place in which to spend the hot months of summer, and tourists do well to seek its cool and refreshing atmosphere. There are excellent facilities for boating, bathing, fishing and driving, all within easy access of hotels and boarding houses. A picturesque bench gracefully curves around the village, gently sloping down to the water's edge, covered with white and grey pebbles and beautiful sand. Sea-faring men who have been over a large portion of the globe say St. Martins beach is the finest they have yet seen. Its marshes at low water abound with duck, snipe and plover in season, and the sportsman who delights in gunning will find no better place within easy reach of St. John. Caves and headlands draw the tourist along, revealing new beauties to his enquiring mind, and rare specimens of minerals have rewarded the searcher. At the rear of the village, which is only about half a mile in width (but which extends along the shore some three miles, thus making it pleasant to drive through the hills that stand like giant guards to shelter from the north winds. These also invite the tourist, as they are found upon investigation to reveal beauties which nature alone could provide. From these eminences the eye gazes upon a picture that excels in beauty of scenery.

At one's feet lies the village with its pretty cottages and larger residences, its neat churches and business houses, shaded by the beautiful green of the fields and foliage of the trees, while beyond are headlands and points covered with the green of nature's own choosing. To the right and left are the village extremities, the east and west of St. Martins, and farther off the Lighthouse Head.

Added to this are excellent hotels and boarding houses, whose proprietors unite in making their guests enjoy the summer to their heart's content.

The robbers recovered. When the robbers found they were surrounded, the men refused to surrender and several shots were fired before they gave themselves up. Finally the robbers were taken to the station and resisted and consented to go quietly to the lock-up at Roxbury after turning over to the police the money and the contents of the safe. They will be arraigned tomorrow morning.
