Morrissey Case Was Concluded

Letter Carrier Pleaded Guilty to Theft and Said He Was Sorry—Was Remanded.

The case against Harry A. Morrissey, charged with theft from the mails, was concluded in the police court yesterday morning. The accused pleaded guilty and submitted to the jurisdiction of the court. He said that he was very sorry for what he had done, sorry for the inconvenience he had caused and sorry for those who were affected by his downfall.

The magistrate commented on the creditable conduct of the accused during the trial and his seeming desire to expedite the course of justice. His Honor said that he had made inquiries as to Morrissey's family and his disposition to make restitution for his acts. He thought that, in view of all the circumstances, only the minimum sentence would be imposed.

The prisoner was remanded over the Christmas season to give his friends and relatives a chance to visit him.

Turkey Supply Much Below The Normal

Prices Up and Demand Light — May Become Drug on Market.

Quality and not quantity has guided local poultry dealers this year in their purchase of Christmas turkeys, and the supply this season promises to be the smallest on record. One of the leading poultry dealers in the City Market stated last evening that the supply would not equal more than a twentieth of that usually stocked for the Christmas trade. This was due, he said, to the hard times prevailing because of employment, which led to a refusal to pay high prices on the part of the public.

Yesterday turkeys were selling from 60c. to 80c. per pound, and the stock though small was selling rapidly. The birds were of the finest quality. The dealer said that the public always gauged the price at which the birds sold, and the demand would decide whether the birds would soar as in previous years to from 90c. to $1 a pound, or become a drug on the market and slump to lower prices than those now prevailing.

At the present time the price this year is higher than that commanded the week before Christmas last year, when the birds were selling for from 65c. to 75c. a pound, and did not reach the higher levels of from 75c. to $1 until Christmas eve.

There is comparatively little demand for goose or duck, which are selling at from 65c. to 60c. a pound, and for chicken, which is selling at from 40c. to 50c., and fowl at from 35c. to 40c.

In the city market at Moncton yesterday, there was a good stock of birds with no great rush of buyers. Geese were sold at 55 and 60 cents a pound, and turkey in plenty were to be had at 60 cents and a few sales were made at slightly less.

Most Enjoyable Occasion at Nurses' Home Last Evening—Santa Claus Present.

The Junior Nurses of the General Public Hospital were the hosts at a delightful Christmas entertainment and dance, which was given in the new Nurses' Home last evening. Songs and games were enjoyed early in the evening, followed by a musical programme of dances, to music furnished through the courtesy of St. Mary's Band, who volunteered their services for the occasion. Santa Claus himself was in attendance, and from a well loaded tree, which was embellished with tapers and decorations, festive gifts for each one of the nurses. The jolly old chap then paused in his efforts to permit the presentation of an electric reading lamp, on behalf of the members of the band, to their bandmaster, Harold Williams. Refreshments were served towards the conclusion of a very jolly evening. Miss Emma Mitchell, and Mrs. G. L. Dunlop, were chaperones.

FIREMEN ENJOYED CONCERT

Through the courtesy of W. H. Thorne & Co., Ltd., the permanent staff of No. 7 engine house and their friends were treated to a very pleasing phonograph concert in their rooms last evening. The assembly appreciated the kindness of Brodie Demore, who presented the gathering with a box of cigars to help make the evening more enjoyable while they listened to the strains from the New Edison.

Cold Diminished Shopping Ranks

Jack Frost Responsible for Falling Off in Christmas Trade in Stores Yesterday.

The keen, bitter blasts sweeping down from the Northland which sent the mercury plundering down in the thermometer to some distance below zero, had a tendency to diminish the host of Christmas shoppers who all week have been thronging the streets and crowding into the shops in search of "gloves for mother," "smoking jacket for father," "skates for Bobbie" and a doll for little Nell; and a "Oh, dear, which I knew what to get Aunt Sam!"

The weather moderated somewhat during the evening, however, and the streets which had been more or less deserted during the day began to take on again their Christmas shopping appearance. Numerous shoppers and debutantes mingled with wives and mothers bent on the task of purchasing gifts for the loved ones at home. Walls here and there were man timidly ventured to take a chance amongst shopping femininity.

Jack Frost, the iron man, the last of the cave dweller race, must have laughed in glee, for not even the bravest of the weaker sex dared sport the decolette chest and silk hose which form the component parts of the luxurious seal or "coon coats" affected by the fair sex.

Today the weather man predicts that the Frost Man's iron reign is over, and will be softened by brilliant winter sunshine, for old Sol is keyed up to his power in the knowledge that his power is to grow stronger each day from now on.

So today while wreaths of holly, festooned with red ribbons will begin to make their appearance in the windows of city houses, signifying that within dwells Christmas cheer and good-will.

While downtown, the laughing, hurrying crowds of people will be permeated with the jolly carol of old Santa himself. Sprays of greens with bright red berries will be thrust thru the men's lapel buttons, and the women will carry large bunches of holly. The approach of the greatest day of all the year is responsible for the insatiable good humor and the persistence with which they haunt the shopping district.

For what is Christmas unless something especially nice has been sent to all your devoted friends and relatives?

Readers of The Standard still puzzled as to just what gifts they would like to purchase this Christmas, will be greatly assisted by a glance through the advertisements appearing in our issues, for there may be seen some gift sure to suit the needs and purses of all our readers.

City Fathers Talk Over Unemployment

Delegation from Evangelical Alliance Heard — Mayor Suggests Trying Out Plan of Mr. Frith.

The common council heard a delegation from the Evangelical Alliance and other organizations yesterday morning in connection with the unemployment situation and the whole subject was thoroughly canvassed.

Rev. H. B. Thomas presented the result of the registration conducted by the Alliance, which showed that 4,000 persons or more were directly affected by the existing conditions, and stated his belief that this did not represent much more than half those who were affected.

The committee asked the council to start some work to establish a branch of the Dominion Labor Bureau. Rev. R. A. Armstrong spoke along the same lines and in answer to a question from the mayor as to where money was to come from said he thought the taxpayers would be willing to supply it.

F. A. Campbell said the cost to the city of the labor bureau would be about $1,200 per year. Thomas Kilien, A. L. Kachum and A. M. Belding also spoke briefly along these lines.

Mayor Schofield said he had given the matter much thought and was sure the delegation did not know just what their request meant. The city would be short $40,000 on its warrant this year and there was $280,000 of taxes owing by between forty and fifty per cent of the taxpayers. He also dealt with the plan outlined by Mr. Frith, that business men adopt a family and expressed the opinion this would meet the situation.

Regarding a suggestion of spending $1,200 to provide an employment bureau, he said this amount represented the interest on $20,000 at six per cent and he thought it would furnish more work if the $20,000 was borrowed and the expense of $1,200 incurred in that way.

Other Commissioners

Commissioner Bullock said that the municipal council, at the request of the premier, appointed a committee to deal with unemployment. The council at a subsequent meeting memorialized the provincial government to provide some work if possible and suggested the straightening of the approach to the highway bridge. This memorial had been acknowledged by the minister of public works but no further action had been taken so far.

Commissioner Thornton said the municipal council had started taking out rock at the old court house, giving employment to fifteen men. He said some men had refused to go to work unless they received the union rate of wages.

Mr. Jones said that he had twenty-five or thirty more men at work today than he had at the same time last year. He thought the suggestions of the mayor were good.

Commissioner Frink said that about $750,000 was spent in the public works department during the year. He said that he thought an opportunity for employing more than about seventy-five men. He said that, even if the money was available there was not much he could do. He thought a solution would be found sooner or later.

Rev. Mr. Thomas said that Rev. W. M. Duke was unable to be present but was in accord with the committee's action.

Mr. Melvin asked if the proposed new water main to Loch Lomond could not be started this winter, even if it cost more at present.

He thought the request of the mayor several members of the delegation waited to confer with him after the meeting.
