

consumption. Difficult choices are required now - if necessary action is not taken now harder decisions and more drastic sacrifices will have to be made in the future.

Canada will use its influence and its resources to bring about constructive change in the international economic system. I pledge my own effort to continue to work toward this goal here at UNCTAD IV and at the Conference on International Economic Co-operation.

It is Canada's conviction that only through sharing can we ensure our survival.