JOSEPH E. ATKINSON, PRESIDENT

(2)

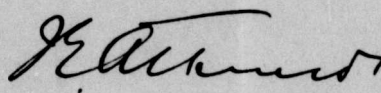

At the same time I am inclined to think a position such as you have to offer would strongly attract him and he would be pulled two ways by your <sup>personal</sup> thought and the regard which I know he has for Mr Rowell.

Under the circumstances as you have asked me to exercise my judgment and express my opinion and as I think Mr Rowell would be further burdened by losing Johnson I thought it best to write you along the line of this letter.

Has Professor Kylie occurred to your mind in connection with your secretaryship? About a year ago I was told by one of his friends that Kylie would leave academic work if an opportunity presented itself for work in some sphere of public affairs. With sincerest wishes for your success and kindest regards,

Believe me to be,

Yours very truly,
