DISABLED STEAMER.

St. John's Nfld., Oct. 11.—The Cape Race signal station reports that a steamer is approaching with another steamer in tow. They are making for St. John's and will arrive here during the night. No details are obtainable at present.

GERMANY AND VENEZUELA.

Berlin, Oct. 11.—Germany has repudiated the contention of Venezuela that the territory of the republic was violated during the voyage of the German cruiser Vineta and the populace of Porto Cabello, and reserved the right of presenting demands for the punishment of the guilty parties and for satisfaction.

A MINE DISASTER.

Fairmount, W. Va., Oct. 11.—An explosion occurred in the New England mine of the Fairmount Mining Company, near here, to-day. Three dead have already been taken out, and six more are believed to still be in the mine, which is on fire. At the time of the explosion twenty-five men were at work, but all but nine escaped. The explosion was caused by a broken lamp of one of the miners igniting the gas.

FOUR MEN KILLED.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 11.—In a head-on collision between a lemon train and a work train, on the Colgrage branch of the Santa Monica electric road, to-day, four men were instantly killed and several injured, five seriously. The accident occurred on a steep grade, and a mile east of Sherman. The trains were met from a fog, and a curve in the road shut off the sight of the work train until it was only a few yards distant.

CHASE ABANDONED.

Constantinople, Oct. 11.—In compliance with a request from Washington the search by Ottoman troops for the abductors of Miss Stone, the American missionary, has been abandoned, it being feared that the brigands would kill her should they be closely pursued. Arrangements are now being made to pay the ransom demanded.

LOYALISTS LIKE IT.

Cape Town, Oct. 11.—The Cape Times praises the enforcement of martial law in the newly-proclaimed districts. It says: "We believe martial law will be heartily welcomed by the loyalists throughout the newly-proclaimed districts, the more so as the nature of the administration will impose the minimum of inconvenience upon all who are loyal to the maintenance of the King's authority and the speedy termination of the war."

"At the recent conference of Sir Gordon Spragg, the Cape Premier, with Lord Kitchener, it was demonstrated that there was a due necessity for the extension of martial law to the Cape peninsula. This should have no terrors for the loyalists. It is the disloyalists who will quake with fear of the possible consequences of their nefarious conduct during the past two years."

FINE EXHIBIT.

LOVE

Lives only in the present. Nature throws a glamour around youth and maiden, so that although they saw misery and marriage walking hand in hand in every home in the world they would fondly believe that they could marry and defy misery.

Young women should be taught to prepare for marriage. They should understand how to preserve their womanly health through the functional changes of maternity. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the most effective medicine for the preservation of womanly health and the cure of womanly diseases. It restores and cures female weakness. It prepares the womanly organism for maternity and makes the birth process painless and safe.

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine, nor other narcotic.

"My wife was afflicted with uterine trouble for several years," writes Mr. J. C. Day of Little Britain, Lancaster Co., Pa., "and in November, 1898, the doctor said she had a miscarriage. He treated her for about two months or so, but there was but little improvement. I wrote you after she had commenced using 'Favorite Prescription' and you told us to get 'Golden Medical Discovery' also. She took six or seven bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and got out of bed and was able to attend to her household work."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness.

The magnificent exhibit made by the William Gray & Sons Company, of Chatham. The exhibit, which is in the eastern end of the carriage building, excites the admiration of every visitor, and is a striking example of the enterprise of the firm and the high and unexcelled class of work which it turns out. Established many years ago, the company has long since attained a complete knowledge of the technique and detail of carriage and sleigh construction with the result that its product is second to none in the country. Elaborately upholstered carriages and sleighs of every description, artistically painted, and highly varnished make up the showing at the fair. In order to meet the demands of its growing business in Eastern Ontario, the company is erecting and will shortly open up a large repository on Sparks street, near Kent. The factory at Chatham is one of the largest in the business, and is especially adapted for the manufacture of the product. It is thoroughly equipped with the newest and most improved machinery, while the materials used are carefully selected and of the most seasoned variety. Then, in regard to workmanship the firm excels, none but the most skilled hands being employed to manufacture an output which is like a credit to its firm and to the Canadian carriage industry. The company has the distinction of catering to the best trade in the Dominion and its increasing patronage gives a potent indication of the intrinsic worth of its output. Although no prizes are awarded at the fair they readily outdistance competitors in the showing.

DRESDEN.

The Amouranth Jubilee Singers will appear in the Grand Opera House on Oct. 17th.

Al Vandyke, who died in Detroit, was buried here to-day. Most of his life, however, has been passed away from his native country. Miss Goldman's family are respectable, quiet folk, residing in Rochester, N. Y., and her revolutionary tendencies are not inherited. She was educated in Germany, but returned to Russia before coming to America. She came here about seventeen years ago and since then has been actively engaged in anarchistic propaganda.

She says that she was an anarchist before her arrival in the United States.

Miss Goldman worked in a New York factory for a time, presiding in her leisure moments. In 1893 came one of the great events of her life. She was arrested and tried on a charge of inciting to riot. Convicted and sentenced to prison, and for a year Blackwell's island, New York, held the most dangerous woman agitator of America. Imprisonment brought about for a time some slight modification of her openly expressed views, though it apparently did not curb her spirit. She is now, as she has always been, one of the invidious anarchists who, while not committing violence themselves, have tremendous influence in inflaming the minds of those disposed to violent acts.

"The little firebrand" went to Europe for a time to study nursing. She attended the anarchists' congress in Paris she says, although it is alleged by the police of Europe that so much meeting ever took place. It seems, however, that Miss Goldman and European anarchism are out of touch, for she soon returned to America. Since then she has been lecturing for the good of the cause. It was one of her lectures, delivered in Cleveland, that inspired Czolgosz with the idea of assassinating the president.

"A human rat, dwelling in a cesspool of life, and yet one of the most potent factors for evil existing in the city, she is at once the oracle and priestess of the most dangerous element and menace all worthy interests so long as her vicious tongue is left free to preach the gospel of anarchy and death." Such is the manner in which a New York newspaper writer described Emma Goldman in 1893.

FEMALE FIREBRAND.

EMMA GOLDMAN, "QUEEN OF THE ANARCHISTS."

According to Czolgosz, she inflamed his mind against law and order. Personally quiet, but publicly a disturber—her checked past.

Emma Goldman, to whom the murderous assassin of President McKinley has attributed his incitement to the awful crime, has appeared before the public many times as a firebrand. From one end of the United States to another, wherever the anarchistic fraternity roars its dangerous head, she is known as the "queen of the reds," in strange disregard of the fact that she and her associates are opposed to all rulers.

An unusual and interesting personality is that of Emma Goldman. She is an anarchist, an avowed enemy of law and order, and glories in the fact, yet about her is no personal suggestion of violence. Her speeches are incendiary in tone and significance, and, judging by her other utterances, it is not strange that one of her recent speeches should inflame the brain of Czolgosz. Nevertheless her earnest contention when interviewed is that she has never propagated violence. She contends steadfastly and without emotion that she is only an advocate of "liberty for the individual."

Her explanation of her peculiar theory and personal attitude toward such men as Czolgosz is interesting if not convincing. "I have never propagated violence," says "the little firebrand." "Where violence comes with anarchy it is a result of the conditions, not of anarchy. There is ignorance, cruelty, starvation, poverty, suffering, and some victim grows tired of waiting. He believes a decisive blow will call public attention to the wrongs of his country and may hasten the remedy. If a man came to me and told me he was planning an assassination, I would think him as bitter fool and refuse to pay any attention to him."

"I honor him for the spirit that prompts him. It is no small thing for a man to be willing to lay down his life for the cause of humanity. The act is noble, but it is mistaken. No, I have never advocated violence, but neither do I condemn the anarchist who resorts to it. Perhaps under the same condition I would have done the same."

Emma Goldman is a short, fairly well built woman about thirty-three years of age. Although she is generally known by her maiden name, she has been married, but separated from her husband for a number of years. She is not unprepossessing in appearance, though any description of her as handsome or beautiful would be far from the truth. Her face is quiet, reposeful, with determined mouth and chin. From her low, broad forehead the brown hair is brushed smoothly back, and from underneath sharply marked eyebrows a pair of earnest gray eyes look directly at her interrogator. Intelligence and earnestness are the dominant expressions of her features.

She is a Russian by birth and says with some show of pride that she is "Russian through and through." Most of her life, however, has been passed away from her native country. Miss Goldman's family are respectable, quiet folk, residing in Rochester, N. Y., and her revolutionary tendencies are not inherited. She was educated in Germany, but returned to Russia before coming to America. She came here about seventeen years ago and since then has been actively engaged in anarchistic propaganda.

How a Kind Horse Was Frightened.

A few days ago we took a drive in a town near Boston with one of the best-broken and kindest horses of the town but he wore blinders. Suddenly a gentleman came up behind on the gallop. Before we noticed him our horse heard the clatter, and, frightened at what he probably supposed a runaway, made a tremendous leap and tried to run. We stopped him, but if, in his sudden leap, anything had broken, there would probably have been a smash-up, with serious consequences. This leads us to ask, is it not about time to abolish blinders? They were first invented or adopted by an English nobleman to cover a defect in the eye of a valuable horse, then were found convenient to put on the coat of arms of the nobility, and so came into fashion. In Russia, where they are never used, a shying horse is almost unknown. No one would think of using them on a saddle-horse, on artillery and fire-engine horses they are rarely if ever used. We are glad to find that, as the result of our education, thousands of horses are now driven in Boston without blinders, and are able to know when their drivers are ready to start, and to see the causes of noises which frighten them; and so, perhaps, lives saved. We know a young lady who, when a child, lived with her aged grandmother, who always, because she had no teeth, soaked her bread and butter in her tea. The child adopted the same custom, and to this day always soaks her bread and butter in her tea, because her grandmother had no teeth. Is it not quite as foolish and more harmful and dangerous to cover up our horses' beautiful eyes with blinders because an English nobleman tried in this way to hide a defect in his horse's eye a hundred years ago?

People Who Never See Their Own Faces.

"What?" exclaims the astonished reader "is it possible that there are any civilized persons on the face of the earth who are not in the habit of beholding their visages reflected from time to time in a mirror of some kind? Surely this can't be so." Wrong, quite wrong; gentle reader, for at the present time, strange as it may appear, there are hundreds of men and women in the United Kingdom who have not gazed into a mirror for years.

The convicts confined in His Majesty's prisons form members of this community. From the moment of a convict's entrance to a jail to the moment of his exit he is not permitted to use the use of a mirror, the smallest piece of glass being rigidly denied to him. To the woman convicts this absence of a mirror forms one of the chief hardships of confinement, and many a female warder can tell piteous tales of women who have actually fallen upon their knees and sobbed out intreaties for the loan of a morsel of mirror "just for a second." All these entreaties have perforce to be disregarded—and it therefore comes about that many a female convict passes three or four years without being permitted to gaze upon her own features.—Tit-Bits.

When Cats Were Worshipped.

A mummy cat is a very curious thing. Tons of these embalmed creatures were brought to England a few years ago to be ground into manure. What an unromantic ending after 4,000 years' mummification. Some of these cats were bound with the ears standing erect, others laid flat. The cloths were adhering to the mummies, though in one skin laid, supposed to contain 18,000 cats, very few complete specimens could be found. It is supposed that the cats were of the species known as Felis maniculata, a kind formerly found in North Africa, and trained by the ancient Egyptians, from which we get our domesticated pussy. As early as 1600 B. C. tablets record that cats were kept in the Egyptian temples as objects of worship. Hence their conversion into mummies.

Canine Intelligence.

After the battle of Spion Kop, in South Africa, the writer was assisting at one of the ambulance wagons attached to an irregular corps. While dressing the wounded we had noticed a nice liver-colored pointer lying down some fifty yards away. He waited patiently until the last sufferer had been attended to and dispatched to the field hospital, then walked up to us, and with a whine held up one of his forepaws, which, on examination, proved to have received a bullet wound. Needless to say the poor beast received the attention he so plainly asked for, after which he lay down quietly under our wagon. There are many witnesses who will vouch for the truth of the above story.—London Referee.

As Needed a Bath.

A young man who has a fine bird dog was overheard bragging to his best girl the other day about the wonderfully keen scent of the animal. "Why," he said, "I wanted to go to the northwestern part of the county on business, and fearing that the dog would follow me I chained him up. I had been gone two hours and was 15 miles from home when he broke loose and tracked me and found me merely by scent. What do you think of that?" "Well, I think you ought to take a bath," replied the young lady. And then he went home and licked the dog.—Tit-Bits.

She—I do believe you forgot that this was our wedding day's third anniversary.

He—I just didn't. I just met the second of the notes I negotiated to buy the furniture when we were married.

A Merciful Dispensation.

Daughter—Oh, but men are so hideously lacking in self-control. Mother—Don't get feverish about it, dear. If they weren't, most girls would die old maids.
