Questions and Answers.
 Miscellaneous.

Preserving Cider.
 Could you give me a recipe for keeping cider sweet?
 A READER.

Ans.—The following method of preserving cider has given very good satisfaction. Heat the cider until it comes to the bubbling point, then fill the jars as with fruit, and seal. The cider will remain sweet for as long a time as the jars are air-tight.

Cords of Gravel for Wall.
 How many cords of gravel will it require to build a wall seventy-two feet long and thirty-two feet wide? How many cords to floor the same?
 E. C.

Ans.—Making the walls 9 feet high and 12 inches thick it will require about 14½ cords of gravel. Putting the floor in 4 inches thick will require about 6 cords of gravel.

Leaky Teats.
 I have a young cow that has two openings on the back of her udder like two false teats, through which the milk leaks into the hands, while milking. Can anything be done to stop it? I expect her to freshen in a few days.
 J. S. C.

Ans.—It is possible to perform a slight operation and cause the openings to close, but the work should only be attempted by a veterinarian. When the cow is dry remove the skin from the end of the opening thus making a fresh wound. Then draw the edges together with stitches. In time the edges should unite, and close the opening. Until completely healed the wound should be dressed daily with a healing and a disinfecting ointment.

Veterinary.

Injured Teat.
 Two-year-old heifer, when pasturing in the bush some five weeks ago tore the skin off one of her front teats. This quarter stays swollen a little and while milking with difficulty, the milk is stringy and has a strange color. Please advise what should be done?
 H. J. D.

Ans.—The difficulty in milking and the stringy milk are no doubt due to the local inflammation set up from the wound on teat. Bathe the affected quarter with warm water for 20 minutes at a time twice daily, and after bathing rub in a liniment composed of 2 ounces each of tincture of belladonna and alcohol mixed with ½ pint of water. Apply to wound on teat a little vaseline each milking till it heals.

Dog Troubles.
 My dog has had distemper for about six weeks. At first, he had a gagging cough, sneezed some, his eyes were congested with a discharge, and he breathed very hard. He also lost his appetite. At the end of two weeks, however, his appetite came back, and I thought he was better. Soon, I noticed that his hind legs were becoming weak, and in a very short time he lost the use of them altogether. He is constipated part of the time, and part of the time he has a diarrhoea. His body emits a disagreeable odor. He does not seem to improve, he is no worse than he was a week ago. Sometimes he has a fit of coughing that lasts twenty minutes, and sometimes there is a regular beating or jerking on the top of his head. Will you kindly tell me whether there is any hope for him. I have used a great deal of medicine and am feeding him regularly on such food as raw, chopped beef, milk and bread, beef tea etc.
 E. D.

Ans.—Your dog is evidently suffering from an attack of paralysis. This is not an infrequent complication of distemper and treatment is often not very successful. Give him, three times a day, nuxvomica in doses ranging from 2 grains for a very small dog to 8 grains for a large dog, and for a dog of medium size about 5 grains would be the dose. Keep him dry and warm, feed well to keep up the strength and persevere in treatment and you may yet save him.
