Lots of Fun At the Brant Pitches Exchanged by Those Desiring to Ride the Mule.

A little excitement was added to a good bill at the Brant Theatre last evening by a local enthusiast, who wanted to ride the kicking mule, which is the main part of the feature act. The manager of the act offers $1.00 a minute to any one who can ride this mule, and the local rider who went after the money failed to wait until his appointed time to ride and consequently got mixed in a lively scrimmage, as he felt he did not have a fair show. Mr. Staines has promised to give him a clear stage at any of the performances, when none of the other riders will be in the ring. The circus manager asks that local riders wait till the main performance is over, when they will be given an uninterrupted chance to show their broncho busting abilities. Last night the local enthusiast was so eager that there were some punches exchanged in the scrimmage to ride the mule, both sides claiming that the other was the offender. Only a few of the audience got on to what was doing. The remainder of the bill outside of the feature mule was up to standard.

Workman Injured
A workman by the name of Fellstead, met with an accident while at work at the Waterous Engine Works. Fellstead was employed in the foundry, and was engaged in moving a casting when it fell on him, causing a concussion of the right knee joint. Dr. Hanna was summoned and had the injured man removed to his home on Brunswick street.

Canadian Engineers Inspect Concrete Roads
Party of fourteen visit Wayne County, Michigan, and get first hand facts.

Last week a party of Canadian Highway Engineers and Municipal Officials interested in good roads, under the guidance of Mr. L. S. Bruner of the Canada Cement Company Limited, visited Detroit and Wayne County, Mich. to learn how this progressive American community is building a comprehensive concrete road system of which it is justly proud. The party included J. F. Ure, Woodstock, Ont., Engineer for Oxford County; R. H. Spencer, Acting Mayor, Trenton, Ont.; G. R. Marston, Simcoe, Ont., Engineer for Norfolk County; F. M. Rutherford, St. Catharines, Ont., Engineer for Lincoln County; W. J. Hollingsworth, Hamilton, Ont., Assistant City Engineer; M. Manigault, Strathroy, Ont.; J. H. Jackson, Brantford, Ont., R. Clarke, and W. E. Nesbitt, Merritt, Ont., L. J. Wooley, C. P. Botsford and W. Coles, Toronto; L. S. Bruner and R. S. Muller, Montreal. Wayne County now has nearly one hundred miles of the finest concrete roads in the world, one stretch of which extends in a smooth unbroken surface for a distance of 31 miles passing through the villages of Wayne and Dearburne and it is a noteworthy fact that after much experimenting with every kind of road building material the Board of County Road Commissioners has adopted concrete as its standard. The party covered about eighty miles of highway of every description and in every condition from the worst to the best. The tour proved an exceptionally strong object lesson to everyone of the party and much gratification was expressed at the completeness of the building equipment and the excellent results obtained. Fortunately, the party was enabled to see practically every operation of road building from the grading of the sub-soil to the finished road, of which one machine can lay 750 square yards of road in one day. The method of reinforcing and its advantages was shown and explained. Much interest was shown in the thorough manner in which every operation was carried out, especially the curing of the finished road and the hauling of materials to where the road was being built. As a whole the methods used by Wayne County Road Commissioners are very simple and undoubtedly the most economical for the construction of an extensive and permanent road system, at any rate, they are the result of years of study and experiment by able engineers. One of the engineers expressed the opinion that if Wayne County, could afford to have such excellent roads, there is no excuse for Canadian municipalities to delay the building of systems that will be as good as the Wayne County roads, for there are few Canadian counties that are not infinitely richer in natural resources if not in actual capital, and we can greatly benefit by the experiences of the county across the line.

WHAT HAPPENED IN OLD IRELAND

Celebration of Boyne Anniversary Marked by No Untoward Event.

BELFAST, July 14.—The 25th celebration of the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne yesterday passed off without any untoward event. In Belfast, as throughout the Province of Ulster, it was the greatest and most enthusiastic celebration of the Twelfth of July ever held in the North of Ireland, yet up to a late hour reports from all parts of the province tell how the day passed off quietly, more quietly even than an ordinary Boyne Day, although it had been feared and freely predicted that there would be serious trouble on account of the existence of the two volunteer armies and the feeling of the Ulstermen against the Home Rule measures. Credit for this preservation of order must be given to the Unionists and Nationalists alike. The self-restraint shown by both in such an electrical atmosphere has been marvelous, and while it is a matter of congratulation for men of all parties that the day passed without bloodshed or even a riot, in that very fact may be seen the true seriousness of the situation. The day of the more or less light-hearted "fight" is over; the days of the scrimmage and the shillelachs are over. As one commentator remarked last night: "The Twelfth is no longer an excuse for excesses. Armies now march where rabble once rioted." As may readily be imagined, there was nothing lacking to provoke an outbreak on a huge scale of riots and disorders, which, on a smaller scale, have so often marked the celebrations of the Boyne anniversary that they have recently not even been reported outside of the local papers. One hundred thousand persons gathered in the fields of Drumbragh, five miles outside of Belfast, and 30,000 men marched behind the carriage in which Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, rode under a broiling sun and through choking dust. From 7 o'clock in the morning all of these men had been assembling with drums and fies and bands in order to leave Carlisle Place, the starting place of the parade, by ten o'clock, while other small columns, composed of country Orange lodges, marched to the meeting place without giving or receiving the slightest provocation for a row. The Scene at Drumbragh That this is accountable for by apathy on either side cannot for a moment be maintained. When the speeches began at Drumbragh at 1.30 p. m. Sir Edward Carson, who was the fifth speaker of the ten who addressed the crowd, was received with wild enthusiasm, as he stood with his hands on an ancient leather-bound Bible of the Belfast Grand Lodge which was cracked, cracked with pistol shots on all sides, and it was several minutes before he could speak. Then followed a speech which stirred the passions of his hearers to the depths, but the return of the procession to Belfast and through the streets of the city with all the bands playing Orange airs and amid cheers was perfectly orderly. The Nationalists were equally orderly. They obeyed the injunctions uttered by the priests from the pulpits yesterday and also by their leaders and remained quietly in their own quarters. Volunteer officers who were not distinguished by any mark patrolled the streets carefully and on the slightest sign of an inclination toward disorderliness of their own men they produced a badge of their rank and became authoritative. They sometimes so-operated with the police, who save here and there were few and far between. There were no armed patrols in the streets and all places of business were closed. When the processions and bands had passed it seemed as if Belfast was filled with an extra large Sunday night throng, so quiet were the holiday-makers in the streets. It was a triumph of discipline on both sides.

Carson's Defence Sir Edward Carson's speech at Drumbragh was one of the "no surrender" type throughout. "We will go to the bitter end," he declared, and continued: "You ask me to take a forward step. I tell the Government that unless they are prepared to leave us alone we will recognize the Provisional Government and no other one. I am not going to tell the members of the press of anyone else what we are going to do, but I do say this, that an assemblage representative of the whole of Ulster has given me authority, acting with our other leaders, and in any way I like to assert your authority so as to prevent some rule from being put on the statute books. They have given me that power and I mean to exercise it." Speaking of the Government, Sir Edward said: "They seem to be in great difficulties. They help them out. I will give them the alternative of giving us a clear sheet for Ulster or come and fight it out as there are no other alternatives possible."
