Ether and chloroform for surgical operations promise to be superseded to a large extent in the near future by simpler methods. Instead of the dread with which persons approach the operating table, partly on account of the fear of not awakening from the ether, the biggest surgical operations will be performed with the patient able to converse with those about him, and yet unconscious of the cut of the knife.

For many years Last small opera-tions have been performed by in-lecting solutions at the disease point, but in large surgical procedure, ether or chloroform have been required. Apart from the struggles which usually accompany ether and similar substances, and the after sickness, these methods of total anesthesia are not devoid of danger The new method, which is a marked triumph of medical science, de-prives the tissues of the body of their sensibility during surgical proby means of a solution of injec caine into the space surrounding the spinal cord. The largest oper-ations, such as upon the abdomen for tumors, extensive excisions of bones and joints of the lower limbs, and even the amputation of any portion of the leg, may be done without the patient feeling the slightest pain, and still permit him to preserve his reasoning faculties. As few days ago a man was operated upon for hernia, at the Jefferson Hospital, after "spinal anesthesia," as the new method is called, and durant the second of t last summer during the progress of the Medical Congress in Paris. It was a surprise to the surgeons who witnessed the work of this surgeon to be able to converse with the paourse of a few months she was as applied.

In carrying out this method of "spinal anesthesia," the patient is placed in a sitting position. After thorough and careful antiseptic precautions have been taken he is instructed to bend forward, and the structed to bend forward, and the thorough the skin and muscles of the fills, with absolutely no recautions have been taken he is inserted to bend forward, and the say how grateful we feel for what needle of a small syringe is inserted br. The effect of the injection upon the spinal and other nerves affected by the solution has been shown in large number of cases to be devoid of danger. Experiments upon the lower animals prove that either at time of injection of many months afterward, the nerve structures are unaffected, regaining their normal ac

The method has been employed by surgeons both in this country and in Europe in many hundreds of cases, with the greatest possible success, probably careful operator, practically free from danger. The last number of the Philadelphia Medical Journal devotes considerable space to the details of the method, giving the experiences of the surgeons in some of the largest operations performed upon the hu-man subject.

"Up to the age of fourteen years," said Mrs. Althouse 'my daughter Hattle had always enjoyed the best of health. Then she began to complain of weakness, and grew pale and languid. We tried several medicines, but instead of helping her she was steadily growing worse and we became alarmed and called in a doctor. He told us that her blood was in a very watery condition, and that she was on the verge of nervous prostration. She was under his care for several months, but still kept growing worse. She had become very pale, had no appetite, frequent headaches, and after even slight exertion her heart would palpitate vio lently. As time passed, she seemed to grow worse and worse, until at last she could scarcely move about ast she could scarcely move about, and would lie upon a sofa most of the day. MAGNETIC PHENOMENON. Startling Hypothesis to Accountfor Gravitation.

The connection of electro-magnetic phenomena with such forces as gravi-tation, inertia and chemical affinity is rapidly becoming more intimately acsociated in the minds and writings of the foremost physicists and electricians of the day. In the Electrical World Prof. Reginald A. Fessenden, who has been pre-eminent in theoretical work along these lines, advances a simple but estifactory hypothesis, which acalong these lines, advances a simple but satisfactory hypothesis, which accounts for the laws of gravitation by a secondary electric effect. Prominent in the foundation work of the new conceptions is the recent discovery of J. J. Thompson to the effect that the atom is not really the smailest particle of matter that can exist, as has been heretofore taught, but that each atom is made up of a great number of corpuscles, each of which possesses its own electric charge. After developing his theory mathematically, Prof. Fessenden remarks—"Since I have now found that the inertia and gravitational forces are also electric phenomena, it is evident that we are now reduced to deal with but two things, namely, the electric charge and ether. The electrician, a modern Aaron, is but come into the presence of the elder magi, yet his subtle and protean servant has already swallowed theirs. In our texteads already swallowed theirs. The former, the professor says, extends over an area of 60 square miles, and to a depth of 1,000 meters there are yet available and workable 11,000,000,000 tons of coal; from that depth to 1,500 meters there remain 43,300,000,000 tons. Henry Norman's Visits to the Fam Russian Prison at Irkutsk. Of course I visited the great pris of Irkutsk, and was most courteously allowed to spend several hours there, and to examine it closely and conand to examine it closely and con-erse freely, through my own inter-preter, with any of the prisoners. It is a straggling mass of buildings, many of wood, and all old and in need of repair. These are surrounded by a palisade of great posts, twenty feet high, with pointed ends. I went in-to every part of the prison that I could see, including the hospital, the workshops, the laundry, and the kitcould see, including the hospital, the workshops, the laundry, and the kitchens, and visited every one of the large rooms and almost every cell. In all these I found but two things to find fault with-the practice o herding together criminals of all ages, tried and untried, and the long time, in some cases amounting to two years, which many of the prisoners spend there before their cases are finally judged. This latter evil is caused partly by the great difficulty of collecting evidence from many parts of Siberia, but chiefly because the central authorities do not supply magistrates enough to cope with the numbers of those arrested. An addi-tional difficulty is the variety of languages spoken by the criminals them-selves; three times during my visit selves; three times during my visions the governor, who accompanie me most of the time, obliged to send to another part of the prison for a prisoner to interpret a request made to him as we passed. The prison is supposed to hold only 700 criminals, but it contained 1,-024 men on the day of my visit, 12 women, and 10 children accompany-ing their mothers. Of these no fewer than 621 were awaiting trial, 188 were condemned for definite periods, not exceeding three years, which they will serve in this prison, and 286 were "in transit," mostly either to the great convict prison of Alexandroisk, forty-six miles from Irkutsk, or to the island of Sakhalin. The convicts condemned to long periods or to Sakhalin had half the head shaved, as shown in the group I pho-tographed, and a number of the worst characters were in chains. The majority of the prisoners were there for theft and robbery with violence, a number for unnatural offences, and several, in solitary confinement, either for using forged passports or for having no passport and refusing any information about themselves. — From "Russin of To-day," by Henry Norman, in the November Scribner's
