

THE FARMER'S LIFE.

When I was young, some years ago, the farmer's life was not what it is now. His home was here, his heart was here, and he was content to live and die in the same place.

THE BULLY OF THE VILLAGE.

TOM TEMPLE'S CAREER.

BY HORATIO ALGER, JR.

CHAPTER XL.—(CONTINUED).

He met his superior in command for the first time on the occasion mentioned in the last chapter. He presented his disguise at once, assisted thereby by his companion's presence.

After the captain left Tom, he made his way to the office of the steamship company. Alcock's keen eye lighted up when he saw his destination.

"It is as I thought," he said to himself. "The captain has betrayed me. Arrived in New York, he may make his peace with the authorities and renounce his old comrades, and bring us capture and death. He shall never do it!"

"He shall never live to do it!" As he knew he had the captain wrong in his suspicion. Though he fully intended to forsake the band, and hoped never to see any of its members again, it never occurred to him to do so.

Every evening Tom came to see him. He handed over his check, and the evening before sailing he handed Tom the belt containing the papers and securities, much to our hero's amazement. The captain read his wonder in his eyes.

"You are surprised that I give them to you so soon," he said. "Yes," said Tom. "Of course I am glad to have them in charge, but I did not suppose you would trust me with them."

THE FARMER'S LIFE.

clear of all liabilities to-day, and start afresh with the most encouraging chances of success. But I suppose there isn't a chance in a hundred of my ever recovering a cent from that source.

THE BULLY OF THE VILLAGE.

TOM TEMPLE'S CAREER.

BY HORATIO ALGER, JR.

CHAPTER XL.—(CONTINUED).

"I feel sure of it!" The question arose what disposition to make of the money left by the murdered man. Eight hundred dollars in gold were found in his possession, but this question was solved by a paper found in his pocket book. It was to this effect:

"Should anything happen to me, which is quite possible, I desire that whatever property I leave may be given to my young friend and fellow-voyager, known as Thomas Temple."

"I am delighted to see you again, my young friend," said Mr. Stoddard. "I sought for you in San Francisco, but was told that you had gone to the States. Then I gave up all hopes of seeing you, but I left directions with my bankers to advance you any sum which you might require, should you apply to them."

"You showed me attention when I required it, Tom. You gave me hours of your society when the companionship of younger persons would have been more to your taste. This you did out of the kindness of your heart, and I shall not soon forget it."

"I am sure I never shall," said the old gentleman. "When we reach the city of New York, I will consult you to your plan for life. You may be interested to know that I have a house in the city, and a country place on the Hudson. I hope you will like them both, as each will be your home."

"I am sure I shall like that. Have you any saddle horses?" "Two; though I fear they have grown lamer from disuse. You must give them some exercise."

THE FARMER'S LIFE.

clear of all liabilities to-day, and start afresh with the most encouraging chances of success. But I suppose there isn't a chance in a hundred of my ever recovering a cent from that source.

THE BULLY OF THE VILLAGE.

TOM TEMPLE'S CAREER.

BY HORATIO ALGER, JR.

CHAPTER XL.—(CONTINUED).

"I feel sure of it!" The question arose what disposition to make of the money left by the murdered man. Eight hundred dollars in gold were found in his possession, but this question was solved by a paper found in his pocket book. It was to this effect:

"Should anything happen to me, which is quite possible, I desire that whatever property I leave may be given to my young friend and fellow-voyager, known as Thomas Temple."

"I am delighted to see you again, my young friend," said Mr. Stoddard. "I sought for you in San Francisco, but was told that you had gone to the States. Then I gave up all hopes of seeing you, but I left directions with my bankers to advance you any sum which you might require, should you apply to them."

"You showed me attention when I required it, Tom. You gave me hours of your society when the companionship of younger persons would have been more to your taste. This you did out of the kindness of your heart, and I shall not soon forget it."

"I am sure I never shall," said the old gentleman. "When we reach the city of New York, I will consult you to your plan for life. You may be interested to know that I have a house in the city, and a country place on the Hudson. I hope you will like them both, as each will be your home."

"I am sure I shall like that. Have you any saddle horses?" "Two; though I fear they have grown lamer from disuse. You must give them some exercise."

THE FARMER'S LIFE.

clear of all liabilities to-day, and start afresh with the most encouraging chances of success. But I suppose there isn't a chance in a hundred of my ever recovering a cent from that source.

THE BULLY OF THE VILLAGE.

TOM TEMPLE'S CAREER.

BY HORATIO ALGER, JR.

CHAPTER XL.—(CONTINUED).

"I feel sure of it!" The question arose what disposition to make of the money left by the murdered man. Eight hundred dollars in gold were found in his possession, but this question was solved by a paper found in his pocket book. It was to this effect:

"Should anything happen to me, which is quite possible, I desire that whatever property I leave may be given to my young friend and fellow-voyager, known as Thomas Temple."

"I am delighted to see you again, my young friend," said Mr. Stoddard. "I sought for you in San Francisco, but was told that you had gone to the States. Then I gave up all hopes of seeing you, but I left directions with my bankers to advance you any sum which you might require, should you apply to them."

"You showed me attention when I required it, Tom. You gave me hours of your society when the companionship of younger persons would have been more to your taste. This you did out of the kindness of your heart, and I shall not soon forget it."

"I am sure I never shall," said the old gentleman. "When we reach the city of New York, I will consult you to your plan for life. You may be interested to know that I have a house in the city, and a country place on the Hudson. I hope you will like them both, as each will be your home."

"I am sure I shall like that. Have you any saddle horses?" "Two; though I fear they have grown lamer from disuse. You must give them some exercise."

THE FARMER'S LIFE.

clear of all liabilities to-day, and start afresh with the most encouraging chances of success. But I suppose there isn't a chance in a hundred of my ever recovering a cent from that source.

THE BULLY OF THE VILLAGE.

TOM TEMPLE'S CAREER.

BY HORATIO ALGER, JR.

CHAPTER XL.—(CONTINUED).

"I feel sure of it!" The question arose what disposition to make of the money left by the murdered man. Eight hundred dollars in gold were found in his possession, but this question was solved by a paper found in his pocket book. It was to this effect:

"Should anything happen to me, which is quite possible, I desire that whatever property I leave may be given to my young friend and fellow-voyager, known as Thomas Temple."

"I am delighted to see you again, my young friend," said Mr. Stoddard. "I sought for you in San Francisco, but was told that you had gone to the States. Then I gave up all hopes of seeing you, but I left directions with my bankers to advance you any sum which you might require, should you apply to them."

"You showed me attention when I required it, Tom. You gave me hours of your society when the companionship of younger persons would have been more to your taste. This you did out of the kindness of your heart, and I shall not soon forget it."

"I am sure I never shall," said the old gentleman. "When we reach the city of New York, I will consult you to your plan for life. You may be interested to know that I have a house in the city, and a country place on the Hudson. I hope you will like them both, as each will be your home."

"I am sure I shall like that. Have you any saddle horses?" "Two; though I fear they have grown lamer from disuse. You must give them some exercise."

THE FARMER'S LIFE.

clear of all liabilities to-day, and start afresh with the most encouraging chances of success. But I suppose there isn't a chance in a hundred of my ever recovering a cent from that source.

THE BULLY OF THE VILLAGE.

TOM TEMPLE'S CAREER.

BY HORATIO ALGER, JR.

CHAPTER XL.—(CONTINUED).

"I feel sure of it!" The question arose what disposition to make of the money left by the murdered man. Eight hundred dollars in gold were found in his possession, but this question was solved by a paper found in his pocket book. It was to this effect:

"Should anything happen to me, which is quite possible, I desire that whatever property I leave may be given to my young friend and fellow-voyager, known as Thomas Temple."

"I am delighted to see you again, my young friend," said Mr. Stoddard. "I sought for you in San Francisco, but was told that you had gone to the States. Then I gave up all hopes of seeing you, but I left directions with my bankers to advance you any sum which you might require, should you apply to them."

"You showed me attention when I required it, Tom. You gave me hours of your society when the companionship of younger persons would have been more to your taste. This you did out of the kindness of your heart, and I shall not soon forget it."

"I am sure I never shall," said the old gentleman. "When we reach the city of New York, I will consult you to your plan for life. You may be interested to know that I have a house in the city, and a country place on the Hudson. I hope you will like them both, as each will be your home."

"I am sure I shall like that. Have you any saddle horses?" "Two; though I fear they have grown lamer from disuse. You must give them some exercise."

THE FARMER'S LIFE.

clear of all liabilities to-day, and start afresh with the most encouraging chances of success. But I suppose there isn't a chance in a hundred of my ever recovering a cent from that source.

THE BULLY OF THE VILLAGE.

TOM TEMPLE'S CAREER.

BY HORATIO ALGER, JR.

CHAPTER XL.—(CONTINUED).

"I feel sure of it!" The question arose what disposition to make of the money left by the murdered man. Eight hundred dollars in gold were found in his possession, but this question was solved by a paper found in his pocket book. It was to this effect:

"Should anything happen to me, which is quite possible, I desire that whatever property I leave may be given to my young friend and fellow-voyager, known as Thomas Temple."

"I am delighted to see you again, my young friend," said Mr. Stoddard. "I sought for you in San Francisco, but was told that you had gone to the States. Then I gave up all hopes of seeing you, but I left directions with my bankers to advance you any sum which you might require, should you apply to them."

"You showed me attention when I required it, Tom. You gave me hours of your society when the companionship of younger persons would have been more to your taste. This you did out of the kindness of your heart, and I shall not soon forget it."

"I am sure I never shall," said the old gentleman. "When we reach the city of New York, I will consult you to your plan for life. You may be interested to know that I have a house in the city, and a country place on the Hudson. I hope you will like them both, as each will be your home."

"I am sure I shall like that. Have you any saddle horses?" "Two; though I fear they have grown lamer from disuse. You must give them some exercise."

THE FARMER'S LIFE.

clear of all liabilities to-day, and start afresh with the most encouraging chances of success. But I suppose there isn't a chance in a hundred of my ever recovering a cent from that source.

THE BULLY OF THE VILLAGE.

TOM TEMPLE'S CAREER.

BY HORATIO ALGER, JR.

CHAPTER XL.—(CONTINUED).

"I feel sure of it!" The question arose what disposition to make of the money left by the murdered man. Eight hundred dollars in gold were found in his possession, but this question was solved by a paper found in his pocket book. It was to this effect:

"Should anything happen to me, which is quite possible, I desire that whatever property I leave may be given to my young friend and fellow-voyager, known as Thomas Temple."

"I am delighted to see you again, my young friend," said Mr. Stoddard. "I sought for you in San Francisco, but was told that you had gone to the States. Then I gave up all hopes of seeing you, but I left directions with my bankers to advance you any sum which you might require, should you apply to them."

"You showed me attention when I required it, Tom. You gave me hours of your society when the companionship of younger persons would have been more to your taste. This you did out of the kindness of your heart, and I shall not soon forget it."

"I am sure I never shall," said the old gentleman. "When we reach the city of New York, I will consult you to your plan for life. You may be interested to know that I have a house in the city, and a country place on the Hudson. I hope you will like them both, as each will be your home."

"I am sure I shall like that. Have you any saddle horses?" "Two; though I fear they have grown lamer from disuse. You must give them some exercise."

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral. An other complaint so common to children as to be almost always met with in the early stages of the disease. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting from a trifling or unobtrusive exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal attack.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER Absolutely Pure. This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, softness and richness. It is the standard of excellence.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R. R. LANDS. In Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon. From Lake Superior to Puget Sound, and from the Rocky Mountains to the coast.

Farm for Sale. THE Subscriber will sell by private sale, his valuable Farm of 50 Acres of Land, Situate at Little Tignish, Lot 2, about three miles from Tignish Station, and six miles from Alberton.

Big Sale of Dry Goods. ALL KINDS OF DRY GOODS SELLING VERY CHEAP AT L. E. PROWSE'S, Sign of the Big Hat, 74 Queen Street.

THE WANZER Sewing Machine. The Most Perfect Machine in the Market. EVERY WAGON GUARANTEED.

25 YEARS ON THE ROAD. C. C. JONES, Inventor of the Combination Barrel Anti-Freezing PUMP, Bored Tubular Well, LIGHTNING HEAT CHECK, Jones' Round Welt Boot, Composition for Welding Steel, Sure-thing Cement.

See See Jones, THE ELECTRIC WATER DEVINER. Points located for boring, drilling, and digging Wells. Old wells deepened. Boring done for water, minerals, oil, gas, etc.

WE SELL Potatoes, Splicing, Bark, R. H. TIER, LUMBER, LATHS, Hay, Eggs, Produce. HATHWAY & CO., General Commission Merchants, 22 Central Wharf, Boston.

HICKEY & STEWART, MANUFACTURERS OF Chewing & Smoking Tobacco, NO. 1, QUEEN STREET, Charlottetown, P. E. Island.

Budd's Cream Emulsion. Sold by all Dealers. Price, 50 Cents. BUDD'S EMULSION, THE ONLY NUTRITIVE EMULSION. CONTAINS ONLY PURE COD LIVER OIL.

Consignments Solicited. R. O'DWYER, Commission and General Merchant, 289 Water Street, St. John's Newfoundland.

PARLOR & CHAMBER SUITS. Examine our Magnificent Parlor and Chamber Suits, which we are selling at cost.

PARLOR & CHAMBER SUITS. Examine our Magnificent Parlor and Chamber Suits, which we are selling at cost.

PARLOR & CHAMBER SUITS. Examine our Magnificent Parlor and Chamber Suits, which we are selling at cost.

PARLOR & CHAMBER SUITS. Examine our Magnificent Parlor and Chamber Suits, which we are selling at cost.

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT. MAKE HENS LAY. CHICKEN CHOLERA. Get Ready for Winter. WEEKS & CO.

W. A. WEEKS & CO. OFFER LARGE SUPPLIES OF NEW CLOTHING, FOR FALL & WINTER, AT EXTRA LOW PRICES.

W. A. WEEKS & CO. OFFER LARGE SUPPLIES OF NEW CLOTHING, FOR FALL & WINTER, AT EXTRA LOW PRICES.

GIFTS. GIFTS. Children's Fancy Chairs, Cradles, Cots, Sleighs, &c. CHEAPEST. Mirrors & Looking-glasses, English & German, VERY LOW.

PARLOR & CHAMBER SUITS. Examine our Magnificent Parlor and Chamber Suits, which we are selling at cost.

PARLOR & CHAMBER SUITS. Examine our Magnificent Parlor and Chamber Suits, which we are selling at cost.

PARLOR & CHAMBER SUITS. Examine our Magnificent Parlor and Chamber Suits, which we are selling at cost.

PARLOR & CHAMBER SUITS. Examine our Magnificent Parlor and Chamber Suits, which we are selling at cost.

NEW SERIES THE 32. Published Every ONE DOLLAR IN ADVANCE. OFFICE Macdonald's Building, Queen Street, Charlottetown, P. E. Island.

THE HERALD. Largest Circulation in the Island. Advertisements inserted at the rate of 10 cents per line per week.

CALENDAR FOR 1885. Last Quarter 8th day, 1st Quarter 15th day, 2nd Quarter 22nd day, 3rd Quarter 29th day.

NOTICE. Electric Bell. 4 QUEEN ST. Nervous Debility. Neuralgia. Pain in Liver and Spleen.

SULLIVAN ATTORNEY. Solicitor. OFFICES - Great George Street. Money to W. W. SULLIVAN, jan 1 1884.

PERKINS & STERNS. OUR STOCK OF FALL AND WINTER GOODS. Is now complete, and all in want of STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS, AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

PERKINS & STERNS. FALL STOCK, 1884. Received, and shortly to Arrive, 1,200 Barrels of CHOICE FLOUR, 400 Barrels WINTER APPLES, 300 Boxes and Half boxes RAISINS.

GRAY NO MORE HAIR. Gray is the Great Hair Restorer and Renewer, changes gray hair to its natural color, gradually and permanently. It is a marvelous preparation, Gray hair, old and young, made to look young in three weeks.