The Pacific Cable Again the Subject of Discussion-Bill Dealing With Chinese Immigration to Ee Introduced.

Ottawa, June 8.-Mr. N. A. Belcourt, one of the representatives for the capital, drew attention to the present situation in regard to the Pacific cable scheme. The honorable gentleman pointed out that many obstacles to the project have lately been interposed by the Eastern Extension Telegraph Company, and that things were coming to a serious pass, so far as the principle which had been adopted of state own-ership was concerned. Mr. Belcourt urged the government to make such representations to the imperial government as would insure not only the ownership of the Pacific cable by the different governments, but would enforce that, applicable to all cables to be laid in future between British possessions. Mr. Casey heartily concurred in the views which Mr. Belcourt had expressed, and joined with him in urging such measures as would carry out the principle of state ownership. Sir mate and conditions. clerks now enter at a minimum of $400, but cannot advance be-youd $600. If it were desired to give an increase to a bright young clerk in this category it could not be done, except by advancing his salary to $1.-100, the minimum pay of the second-closs clerk. Under the circumstances there is no inducement to educated young men from colleges or univer-sities to remain in the service. A maximum salary of $600 holds out no prospect to them, and they simply make the civil service a stepping-stone to some other career, and quit the government employ at the earliest opporvices of young men of exceptional qualifications. It was opposed by Mr. Foster and Dr. Montague. The former proposed some amendments, which will oe considered at a later stage. Col. Prior again brought up the question of Chinese and Japanese immigra-

Sir Wilfrid Laurter, in reply, stated that on Monday a bill dealing with the question would be placed on the order paper, to be introduced as soon as the rules of the house would per-Col. Prior had suggested a capitation tax to keep out the Chinese and the natal act to keep out the Japanese. If that act were put into force but very few Japanese would be able to enter. He pointed out that imperial interests required that we ould do nothing which would antagonize the Japanese nation, and would suggest that in view of the condition of things that now exists, Great Britain being engaged in war, and in view of the possible complications which may arise in China at any moment, Canada should not at this moment do anything to jeopardize the interests of empire and alienate the friendship of the Japanese nation.

The house then went into committee of supply, and the estimates for the interior department were taken up. Upon the item of $500,000 for mounted police in the Yukon, Sir Wilfrid Laurier stated that this was intended to cover the cost of maintaining 250 men in the Yukon. As the military force was being withdrawn, it was cal-culated that the government could be carried on by increasing the police force from 197 to the number named, Superintendent Perry takes the place of Lieut.-Col. Steele, and the force was divided into two districts. Superintendent Wood being in charge at Dawson and Superintendent Primrose at Tagish, at each of which points a force of 50 police would be stationed, available for special service. Each of the posts on the trials will be occupied by

The house adjourned at 12:40. IN THE SENATE.

In the senate this afternoon Hon. David Mills moved concurrence in the address adopted by the House of Commons congratulating her Majesty on the prospects of an early completion of the war in South Africa. The minister of justice thought that in the senate there would be no dissentient voice. They all rejoiced in the prospect of early peace. This war in no way had its origin in a jingo spirit. No one in Great Britain desired the war for the simple object of conquest. All wanted peace, but no one who had read the correspondence on the matter could fail to see that unless there was war British subjects in the Transvaal would be placed before the world in a humiliating position, incompatible with the dignity and consolidation of the empire. Mr. Mills reviewed the history of the war, and said he could not understand how any man or any number of men in this country could have any sympathy with a population which undertook to govern a country in the way the Dutch had done. (Ap-He was therefore pleased that the British were in possession of the capital of the Free State. (Hear. hear.) He rejoiced that the English were in possession of Pretoria. (Loud annlause.) We would further rejoice on the conclusion of peace. (Applause.) He hoped no hysterical feeling would restrict the predominance of English Institutions in that country. He did not want to see power put into the hands of men who would use that power to upset British institutions. The only thing possible was the paramountey of British power and rule. Britain must have a half-way house between Australia and India. No one in this country, English or French, but wanted to see this. They were all devoted to her majesty. Her influence family.

Mr. Emery B. Hamilton Talks Interestingly on California.

Its Climatic and Other Advantages-Development of the Oil Industry-Intelligent Citizens of the States Sympathize with England.

Mr. Emery B. Hamilton, of Los Angeles, Cal., son of Mr. A. M. Hamilton, 546 Wellington street, arrived in the city on Thursday. Mr. Hamilton is east on a business trip, and will remain east all summer, spending six weeks or more in London.

An Advertiser representative last night visited Mr. Hamilton, and was entertained with an interesting description of Californian scenery, cli-

The minister of finance this aftermoon explained the provisions of the bill to amend the civil service act. The most important provision is that which creates a class of junior second-class spring. The temporary class of contents of the United States, are almost as dear in California as they are contents of the United States, are almost as dear in California as they are further east. A strange fact, showing the purity of California air, is that oranges will hang on the trees six or eight months after ripening, without dropping off or deteriorating. Oranges Magnificent residences, costing from $50,000 to to the civil authorities. The comtin-$150,000, have been abandoned by their owners, owing to the intrusion of the oil wells. Another odd feature of the industry is that wells are being literally drilled in the ocean at some of the coast towns. Piers are built out into the sea for 500 or 1,000 feet, and wells are then sunk, oil being found in abundance. The oil is largely used as fuel by the railroads and manufacturers, and its cheapness will undoubtedly cause an increase in factories. The esting to note that the aristocratic development of the oil industry has young journalist is chiefly rememberbrought with it an amazing number of fake schemes, and a large amount ances in Hyde Park, in the period, of wildcat speculation. The completion of the canal will also force the great transcontinental railroads to reduce their rates and build feeding lines.

Mr. Hamilton's advice to those visiting California is to go by one of the southern routes, and return by either the Canadian Pacific—"the finest scenery in the world"—or by the Rio Grande Railroad. Travelers, he says, should travel by day and lay over at convenient points, such as Salt Lake City, Glenwood Springs, in the Rocky Mountains, and the Garden of the Gods, at all of which places there are numberless points of interest. The pro-Boer sentiment in the Unit-ed States, says Mr. Hamilton, is confined more to the ignorant classes and to the large foreign element. Much of it is only a Democratic election dodge. The intelligent people of the States are with England in her struggle. As an example of the class who oppose England, Mr. Hamilton in-stanced an immense pro-Boer meeting held at Los Angeles some months ago. The band played "Die Wacht am Rhine," and the crowd joined heartily. "The Marseillaise" and other foreign national airs met with a similar reception, but when the American airs were played, not a voice joined in. All the national flags were cheered except the Stars and Stripes. This, Mr. Hamilton thinks, indicates clearly the class of United States residents who sym-

THE TOPIC OF THE HOUR. "What shall we do with it" is far more the topic of the hour than speculation regarding the expenditure of lives and money that seem likely to ensue before the pacification of the Boers shall be accomplished. Large numbers of inquiries are daily made in London anent the prospects of the undeveloped crown lands of Natal, while the rich resources of the Transvaal and Orange River Colony form the basis of frequent articles. Before many months shall have passed the steamship companies plying to and from South Africa, the companies connected with the development of that portion of the globe, and others equally interested and well-informed, look for a large and steady emigration of trained British agriculturists and others to fields on which the blood of Briton and Boer is scarcely dry.

THE MATTER OF GOVERNMENT. All the letters from the front indicate an increasing desire on the part require nearly a year, from the time of the irregular and colonial forces to of blooming, to ripen properly.

Within the last two days the police report finding no less than seven bodies. So far only two have been identified. The others, probably never will be, and this brief record is stuck away in a corner of an afternoon paper and headed, "Mysteries of the River."

MRS. GLADSTONE.

The serious condition of Mrs. Gladstone has caused Mr. T. P. O'Connor, member of parliament, to write some hitherto unpublished reminiscences of the aged partner of the great states-man. "Just after their marriage," says Mr. O'Connor, "Mr. Glad-stone, who had already been minister, ask her "Shall I tell you nothing and you can say anything, or, shall I teli you everything and you say nothing?" She chose the latter and he told her everything and she never told anything.

On the 50th anniversary of their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone went to a reception at an old friend's house. "When it began to get late," adds Mr. O'Connor, "Mr. Gladstone went over to his wife, and with an expression of sweetness and tenderness took her by the hand as though she were a little child that had to be reminded that it was time to go to bed, and led her out of the room. It was a sight that might well have brought tears." These and other anecdotes bear out fully the previous accounts of the intense affection existing between the great Liberal leader and his wife, and also between the great point to the fact that Mrs. Gladstone exercised a more powerful political influence over her husband than gen-erally credited.

there is a very interesting object lesson in the window of Mr. Welch's office, 207 Dundas street. It is a model in clay of a section of the mineral region of British Columbia, taking in a strip eight or nine miles square, of the Lar-deau, about which so much has been heard lately. It is especially interesting to Londoners, as so much stock in the local mining companies operating in the Lardeau has been taken up here, and it shows very clearly the locations of the various properties. One can form but a very vague idea of a mountainous region from a written description, but a glance at this model puts one in possession of a much clearer knowledge of this mountainous part of British Columbia than whole books of description can do. It shows the rivers and converging on one central part, the water being represented by crushed glass, and the ingenious way in which packhorses have to ascend the steep and rugged Selkirks, switching their way back and forth, in order to ascend an otherwise inaccessible mountain. The town of Ferguson is shown, with the trails leading thence up the north fork of the Lardeau, winding in and out among the hills until Circle City is reached, up beyond which the trail runs to the properties of the Scottish-Canadian Mining Company, of this city. The tunnel mouth is shown, also the ore which has been uncovered, and one can see at a glance the meaning of ceral terms. hich. without this object lesson, would be obscure.

Every commercial traveler, and in fact every person whose business netraveling to Shellburne, cessitates knows Mr. H. On many occasions his friends have been under the necessity of offering him their sympathies with him on account of the pain he has had to endure as a result of indigestion, of a most severe and obstinate type, with its attendant evils of sour stomach, biliousness, sick headache, flatulence, etc. So severe were the attacks at times, that Mr. Backus was confined to his bed, and was under the care of his physician. The most rigid care had to be exercised in regulating his diet. Many articles of food-pastry, meats, etc., were rigorously debarred, as they caused the most intense agony. Various patent medicines of pretended wonderful merit were given to him, but none did him the slightest good. Mineral waters, etc., were tried, but without success. Mr. Backus reached finally a condition of almost continual suffering. Writing of the case he says: 'It was not until I began using Dr. Arnold's English Toxin Pills that I found peace. A few boxes of this splendid medicine worked wonders. My stomach is today in absolutely perfect condition, and my digestive system does its work promptly and perfectly. I have gained 30 pounds in weight in four weeks since starting to use Dr. Arnold's English Toxin Pills, and am robust and healthy, sleep and eat like boy, awake refreshed and vigorousfeel twenty years younger, in fact."
