THE EVIDENCE GIVEN IN THE PORT ARTHUR CASE.

Mrs. Bathurst Relates Her Story of the Alleged Assault by Col. Ray—No Evidence to Show That the Latter Offered to Settle the Affair With a Check for $5000.

No scandal which has occurred in Canada in recent years has convulsed the Dominion as has the recent arrest at Port Arthur of Col. Samuel Wellington Ray, the well-known banker and military man, on a charge of criminally assaulting the wife of Dr. Launcelot Bathurst. The following facts, furnished by a World correspondent, will be read with interest:

The plaintiff in the case, Rose Louise Bathurst, is not yet 26 years of age. She is the mother of two children, and her Christmas present to her husband will increase the olive branches. Born in England, until 16 years of age she attended a school in Somerset, of which Prof. Clark, presently of Trinity College, Toronto, was the then rector. When 16 years of age she removed to London, where for three years she attended the London ladies' school. While there she met Dr. Launcelot Bathurst and they were married in February, seven years ago, by Rev. Mr. Griskin. They at once came to America, settling in Detroit. Some time afterwards she returned to England, where she remained 18 months, visiting her sister, her husband meantime continuing the practice of his profession in the mining district of Michigan. Three years ago they removed to the Thunder Bay district. Her husband's business called him frequently to Port Arthur, and finally in November last he removed his family to that town. He was frequently absent attending to the duties of his profession for from 24 to 48 hours at a time, and during this absence his wife would, with her family, find temporary lodgment at the Northern, a fashionable hotel on the water front. It is here where the Upper Tendom of the town foregather at semi-occasional assemblies, for since the boom which the building of the C.P.R. gave the town has subsided the settlement has been converted into a respectable, staid and proper abiding place; the only reminders of the good old times being the high price of drinks and the signs on 34 facades signifying that at a not very remote period liquid refreshments were legally on sale inside.

Mrs. Bathurst attended these assemblies or balls, and arrayed in all the splendor of millinery properties presented as fair a vision as ever maddened the heart of a cavalier. One of the boarders at the hotel and one of the regular attendants at the balls was Col. Ray. The two became acquainted, Dr. Bathurst introducing the Colonel to his wife. That was two years ago.

"Time passed on," as the novelist would say, and the acquaintance did not ripen into friendship. Mrs. Bathurst says that when they met they simply spoke as they passed by until one night in leafy June last while the doctor was at the mines Mrs. Bathurst and a lady friend, Mrs. O'Connor, remained seated on the verandah at the Northern with Col. Ray from 8.30 to 11 o'clock. It was a lovely night, the full moon throwing a golden band of light over the rippling waves almost as far as Thunder Cape in the distance—a night on which the beat of the waves would be apt to make a harmony with the beat of two human hearts had one of those communing thus with nature not been a wife. Besides, the group was composed of three persons the greater part of the time.

The Colonel and Mrs. Bathurst next day waltzed together in the parlors of the Northern. They next met on Saturday, July 30, at the Northern, where Mrs. Bathurst went to see Mrs. Smith. Col. Ray met them on the balcony. The Colonel asked Mrs. Smith to play a waltz for them, which she did. Mrs. Bathurst left about dark and Col. Ray accompanied her home. He said he had to be at his office that night, but he would see Mrs. Ray home first. This was the first time he had accompanied her home, and as the doctor was not absent he did not remain long. Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Bathurst started for the hairdresser's with the children and strangely enough ran across the Colonel in Cumberland-street. The Colonel asked the little girl about going for a horseback ride, and then remarked that he had something to say to her mother, would she meet him at her own house at 7.30 in the evening (the doctor had meantime left for the mines). She acquiesced, but did not go. It rained that night, but Mrs. Bathurst says that was not the reason. Wednesday morning, Aug. 3, they met again. Mrs. Bathurst had visited her house, so she claims, to change her dress. It was while returning to the Northern that she met Col. Ray. This is her account of what subsequently transpired:

Mrs. Ray's Story of the Affair.

Wednesday morning I met him again, when he spoke to me about a vestry meeting they had had the night before. It did not interest me and I did not pay much attention to what was said. He talked in an undertone. He spoke about being short $200. He asked me to walk towards my house, as he had something to say to me. I asked him if he could not say it then. He said no. I thought he was going to say something about money. We walked up to the house. I unlocked the door. He was behind me. He closed the door with one arm. The other arm he threw around my waist. He kissed me and then he acted like a madman. He said, "My God, my God!" I told him to let me alone and drew myself away, and he said, "Let us go upstairs." He kept saying all the time, "My God, my God!" I was nervous and frightened and faint. I was struggling to get away from him. He was much stronger than I was. I did not get away. By that time we were at the dining room door and he pushed me down. This was still in the hall. He then got up and closed the kitchen door. I was still on the floor, but got partly up. He came back and pushed me back again. I fainted. I am subject to fainting. The next thing I remember Col. Ray had me by one arm. I was crying. He told me not to cry and wanted me to sit down and talk to him for a few minutes. I told him no, to leave the house; if he did not I would call out. I have every reason to believe he accomplished his purpose. He then left and I sat down and had a good cry. I stood there until I was able to go out. I then went straight to the Northern, and going inside beckoned the proprietor, Mr. Wylie, to me and told him of the facts. My husband was away at the time. When he returned I complained to him of the occurrence in the house. An information was then laid.

What Followed the Explosion of the Bomb.

The first whisper that the public had of the storm which was about to burst was upon the return of Dr. Bathurst from Gunflint Lake. After his wife had related to him her story of the affair he went on a hunt for the Colonel. They met on the crowded wharf. The doctor stopped Ray and said: "I intend to have you arrested; I want to speak to you." The colonel said: "Don't make any disturbance here." The two then walked along the dock. Dr. Bathurst meantime unloading the vials of his wrath upon the alleged betrayer of his home, and finally he struck the colonel. The latter returned in kind. The colonel then proceeded to the sample room of the Northern, whither Dr. Bathurst followed, called him a brute, accused him of having seduced his wife, an unprotected woman, and again threatened him with arrest. The same night he swore out a warrant against Ray on the charge of criminally assaulting Louise Rose Bathurst. The warrant was executed by Constable Nichols and Col. Ray was placed under arrest.

Before the Magistrate.

The preliminary examination took place before Police Magistrate W. Dobie, associated with two local justices. District Attorney Lewis appeared for the prosecution. R. Clute of Belleville, who obtained a local reputation in June when he conducted the prosecution of Mrs. Carrothers, charged with the murder of her husband in the Rainy River district, had been engaged for the defence, associated with Mr. W. K. Cameron and James Gorman. Owing to the nature of the case the "vulgar horde" were not allowed admission to the hearing.

Mrs. Bathurst told her story virtually as detailed above. She was cross-examined at great length by Mr. Clute. It came out that her house was not located in a sparsely-settled district; that a Mrs. Squier, with whom she was acquainted, resided 12 feet to the east and Mrs. Ashforth, another neighbor, 12 feet to the west, while the police station was 30 feet distant. She did not notice whether the windows of the houses in the neighborhood were open, neither did she observe whether or not there was any person in the police station. After the alleged assault she proceeded past one of these houses and the police station to the Northern Hotel before acquainting any person with the facts. It also transpired that although her husband returned from Gunflint Lake in the afternoon she accompanied him to their house, returned with him to the Northern Hotel to dinner and did not unbosom herself of the foul crime of which she had been the unwilling victim until after tea when they went upstairs in the hotel. She said that in making the appointment to meet the Colonel at her house during her husband's absence it did not occur to her that there was any harm in her going to her house with any one for whom she had any respect. When asked if the reason for not keeping her appointment on the previous Tuesday evening was owing to the fact that it rained, she replied, "No, that was not the reason. I forgot about it." It will be recollected that she said that the assault took place in the hall after she had unlocked the door and invited the colonel to step inside. The parlor and dining room doors were open, and thus there were two open doors leading into a room, in which there were three open windows. To Mr. Clute she gave the following graphic description of the assault:

Forty Kisses and More.

He put his arm around my waist and kissed me on the lips and cheeks as soon as he closed the door. He kissed me repeatedly. It might be 20 times; I don't know but it might be 40. I didn't kiss him—not once. It was all one side. His arm was around my waist all the time that he was kissing me. I don't know how long the kissing took—I did not look at my watch when he began or when he finished. I told him two or three times "to be quiet and go away," but that was all that was said by me. He said, "Stay a while, stay a while." I drew myself away as far as I could—not out of his embrace. I did not scream once. It occurred to me, but I could not. The kissing went on in the hall. I did not invite him into the parlor at any time. Till he threw me down nothing but the kissing took place. He did not throw me down roughly but easily. Before he pushed me down he said, "I love you; do you love me?" I said "No," but he kissed me after that lots of times. I said nothing while I was on the floor. I did not tell him the kitchen door was open. I saw him close the door. I did not scream. I did not call. A scream could have been heard by the neighbors if their windows were open. I cried softly. I did not cry out aloud like a sob. It was I who unlocked the door and let him out when he departed from the house, as the lock was a spring one and he could not unfasten it. Think Col. Ray was in the house half an hour. I do not think any person walking on the sidewalk could have heard any noise.

This deposition was signed by Mrs. Bathurst. The report which was telegraphed that Col. Ray had signed a check for $5000 to settle the affair may be correct, but if it is it is strange that evidence to that effect was not given when he was arraigned.

There was very little other testimony taken.

Arthur L. McEwen, a mining engineer, stated that Col. Ray had admitted to him that he had been indiscreet.

F. S. Wylie, the proprietor of the Northern Hotel, to whom Mrs. Bathurst first told her story, corroborated her evidence in respect to calling him out and laying the facts of the case before him. He also had a talk with Col. Ray, when the latter expressed the hope that the matter would be arranged. Mr. Wylie modified this statement, however, by saying that the suggestion came more from himself than from Col. Ray. From what the Colonel remarked he gathered that the latter thought that an apology would settle the whole matter.

Dr. Bathurst, the husband of the plaintiff, detailed the circumstances under which his wife acquainted him with the facts, and also stated that she fainted very easily during a fright, being of a very nervous disposition. Her fainting spells last from 5 to 20 minutes. While suffering from the fright she is rendered speechless. On this evidence Col. Ray was committed for trial and bailed to appear at the next assizes. As in Thunder Bay District all criminal cases are prosecuted by the Attorney-General's department direct, the provincial authorities will consequently have charge of the prosecution when it comes off.

The defence, of course, has not been gone into, but it is understood that Col. Ray denies that he was other than indiscreet and that Mrs. Bathurst's conjectures as to what occurred after she fainted are merely the creatures of her imagination.

Canada's New Viceroy.

MONTREAL, Aug. 16.—A cable to The Star says: There is every reason to regard as official the belief expressed by The Daily News to-day that the Earl of Aberdeen will succeed Lord Stanley on the expiration of the latter's tenure of office. The selection is heartily approved in Canadian circles in view of Lord Aberdeen's knowledge of Canada and his interest in Canadian affairs, and pleasant personal qualities.

Hanlan's Point.

A very large crowd was present at the Point last evening to witness the entertainment provided by Manager Conner. To-night Calverley will carry Herbert Ross across the cable, but will also trundle an ordinary wheelbarrow over it, besides introducing many new and startling feats. As this is the last occasion on which he will carry a man during his present engagement all those who have not seen him should not miss this opportunity.

A Pleasant Recognition.

At the conclusion of the band concert of the Royal Grenadiers in Queen's Park on Monday night a deputation consisting of Staff-Sergts. Bewley, Johnston, Harding and Parkinson waited on Bandmaster Waldron and presented the band with an address and donation from the sergeants' mess of the regiment as a slight mark of the appreciation of the services rendered by the band in assisting the sergeants on the occasion of the opening of their mess rooms.

Manitoba's Great Crop.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 16.—Wheat cutting is now becoming general. The sample is of the very best quality, and those most competent of judging say that a conservative estimate of the yield is 20 bushels per acre for the entire province. In some districts the yield will be easily 30 bushels to the acre.

Want a Seat for Mr. Roblin.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 16.—Oppositionists in the Provincial Legislature are endeavoring to secure a seat for Mr. Roblin, leader of the Opposition, defeated in the general election.

The Government Will Investigate.

The Attorney-General's Department has sent Detective Rogers to Barrie to investigate all the circumstances connected with the recent death of Brewer Anderton, who was at first reported to have been killed by lightning in his barn, but who, it is now claimed in the district, was murdered and the barn fired in a fruitless endeavor to destroy all traces of the crime.

They Will Have Their Own Schools.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 16.—A meeting of the Catholic citizens of Winnipeg will be held on Friday evening to consider the question of maintaining separate schools for the education of their children. A committee appointed at a previous meeting to discuss ways and means will present a full report.

AN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

THE PERSONNEL OF MR. GLADSTONE'S NEW MINISTRY.

Earl Rosebery Will Hold the Position of Foreign Secretary—The Appointment of Baron Houghton as Viceroy of Ireland Causes Surprise—Rosebery's Difference With Gladstone.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The new Government officially announced this evening is as follows: Mr. Gladstone, Lord Privy Seal and First Lord of the Treasury; Earl Rosebery, Foreign Secretary. Baron Herschell, Lord Chancellor; Sir William Vernon-Harcourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Herbert Asquith, Home Secretary; the Right Hon. Henry H. Fowler, President of the Local Government Board; the Right Hon. H. Campbell-Bannerman, Secretary of State for War; Earl Spencer, First Lord of the Admiralty; the Right Hon. John Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland; the Right Hon. A. J. Mundella, President of the Board of Trade; Sir Charles Russell, Attorney-Gen.; John Rigby, Solicitor-Gen.; the Right Hon. Samuel Walker, Lord Chancellor of Ireland; Mr. McDermott, Attorney-General for Ireland; the Right Hon. Edward P. C. Marjoribanks, Patronage Secretary to the Treasury; Alexander Asher, Solicitor-General for Scotland; the Right Honorable J. B. Balfour, Lord Advocate of Scotland; the Earl of Kimberley, Secretary of State for India and Vice-President of the Council. The Marquis of Ripon, Secretary of State for the Colonies; Sir George O. Trevelyan, Secretary for Scotland; Mr. Arnold Morley, Postmaster-General; Mr. Arthur Herbert Dyke Acland, Vice-President of the Council on Education; Baron Houghton Viceroy of Ireland without a seat in the Cabinet.

The announcement of the appointment of Baron Houghton to the position of Viceroy of Ireland was so incredible that the representative of the Associated Press made inquiries about it, when he found that the appointment had been made as announced.

Crowds Cheer the Premier.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Despite the falling rain a large crowd waited for hours to receive Mr. Gladstone in the vicinity of Stuart Rendle's house in Carleton Gardens, where Mr. Gladstone is stopping until he takes up his official residence in Downing-street. When he drove to the house the crowd cheered him. He smilingly bowed his thanks for the reception. After the lapse of a brief interval he emerged again, accompanied by his wife and daughter. The party were driven to Kensington to attend a wedding. Upon his return Mr. Gladstone met the members of the new ministry and a conference took place.

Radicals Amazed And Angered.

LONDON, Aug. 16—The composition of the new Government causes intense disappointment among the radicals. Not a single man, except John Morley prominently identified with the Radicals has been appointed a cabinet minister and among the ex-cabinet posts few members, of the new set have any but the remotest chance of getting a place. The old set are masters of the situation and representatives of old Whig families and Liberal mediocrity having aristocratic connections and never associated with extreme views have been Mr. Gladstone's exclusive choice. Even Mr. Stansfeld, who, in the latest Gladstone cabinet represented democratic opinion, has been shelved.

The official list when scanned to-night at the National Liberal Club awoke vehement protests. Was it for this undiluted list of old men associated with the traditions of Whiggery, from the territorial and aristocratic class, that Radicals had given their money and their time?

Apart from Radical opinion the Cabinet is really composed of eminently reputable men. Mr. Gladstone has preferred collecting around him tried colleagues accustomed to subordination and certain not to deviate into strange ways. His three new Cabinet Ministers—Asquith, Arnold Morley and Acland—are sound Liberals.

Baron Houghton's appointment as Viceroy of Ireland amazed even Mr. Gladstone's intimate friends. When an inkling of the appointment reached Dublin this morning it was held to be without foundation until the appointment was officially announced.

Rosebery's Firm Stand.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The chief point of difference between Mr. Gladstone and Lord Rosebery is on the question of the policy to be pursued regarding Egypt. Mr. Gladstone has favored evacuation by the British power. Lord Rosebery considers the retention of Egypt indispensable to the security of Great Britain's possessions in the east, and he is rather inclined to strengthen than weaken the hold upon that country. It is remembered that when Mr. Gladstone was last in office he did not interfere with the policy of his predecessors regarding Egypt. Before being called to the Ministry he had expressed his intention of abandoning action in that direction, but nevertheless he ordered the bombarding of Alexandria and opened the way for British occupation. Any departure from the same policy now would weaken him before the country. Lord Rosebery in the Ministry is a guarantee that the regeneration of Egypt will not be interfered with.

The Crowd Cries "Bravo."

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Mr. Gladstone, who yesterday visited the Queen at Osborne House. returned to London this morning. He is in excellent health. The enthusiasm manifested yesterday at various points along the route of Mr. Gladstone's journey was repeated to-day. Everywhere, particularly at Southampton and the Waterloo Station, he was surrounded by a good-natured crowd, who heartily cheered him and then greeted him with cries of "Bravo William," "Drop it into them, old man," etc.

Cabless Paris.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—Four thousand cab drivers struck to-day.

Cholera in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 16.—The total number of new cases of cholera reported in Russia yesterday was 7600. The total number of deaths from the epidemic were 3900. These figures represent all the returns received, but two-thirds of the towns attacked have no telegraphic communication with the chief town of the province in which they are situated, which towns make daily reports to St. Petersburg.

Committed For Trial.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—At the Bradford Petty Sessions to-day the Rev. Robert Baynes was committed for trial on the charge of assaulting two little girls.

All the Bodies Recovered.

WIARTON, Ont., Aug. 16.—The body of Mrs. Stevens, the last of 6 persons drowned on July 27, was found to-day. The body was recovered within a radius of about two miles of the scene of the accident and three were found a mile south near the head of the bay and 2 more east near Oxenden. The bodies were well-preserved considering the time they had been in the water.

BENEATH THE STREET CAR WHEEL

A Traveler Killed in King-street—His Head Crushed.

George M. Bligh, sales agent for P. D. Dodds & Co., Montreal, was run over and killed by a street car yesterday.

The deceased was 36 years of age and lived with his wife and child at 303 Crawford-street. At 12.40 he was standing in front of the Palmer House waiting for a car, as he was going home to lunch.

As car No. 46 on the Danforth route turned the corner of York-street, and Bligh ran to the front of the car and grasped the dash-board handle with his left hand. John Loobey, the driver of the car, was making change for a passenger and turned just in time to see the unfortunate man swing around and fall in front of the car. Loobey tried to grasp Bligh, but failed and immediately applied the brake.

When the car was stopped Mr. Bligh was found lying beside the track, with the top of his head almost torn off, the wheels having passed over it. He was still breathing and was carried into Matheson's drug store, where Ernest W. Goode, a medical student, attended to his injuries as far as possible. An ambulance was summoned to convey the injured man to the hospital, but before the institution was reached life was extinct, and the body was removed to the morgue.

At 8 o'clock last night Coroner Aikins held an inquest at the morgue. The jury found that death was the result of an accident and that no blame could be attached to any person.

The dead man's father-in-law took charge of the body. The funeral will probably take place this afternoon.

SAYS THERE IS NO TROUBLE.

Commissioner Booth Denies Any Disaffection—Still Officers Have Resigned.

There was a flutter of excitement in Salvation Army circles yesterday and the day before when the paragraph headed "Trouble in the Army" appeared in The World. Mr. Booth, commissioner of the Army, was seen by a representative of The World yesterday. He gave the whole statement an emphatic denial. When asked for particulars he said that two officers resigned within the past few days, but their resignations were not asked for. He declined, however, to say why they resigned, but when the proper time comes he expressed himself as willing to give an explanation. He did not contradict the statement regarding the transferring of certain members to England and to the United States.

The reason why certain members were sent to the United States was because the Army was in need of officers there, and there was a desire to curtail expenses there. Chief Secretary George A. Mackenzie furnished The World late last night with a statement signed by the staff in which they express their thorough satisfaction with the explanation given by the commandant with respect to the resignation of Brigadier Phillpot.

Opening of the Season at Jacobs & Sparrow's.

Messrs. Jacobs & Sparrow will re-open their season on Monday night next, August 22, with a practically new theatre. Extensive alterations have been made in the house since the closing last spring. The painter, carpenter, upholsterer and decorator have been at work, while new carpets have been relaid the very best kind by John Kay, Son & Co. The entrances, stairways and exits to the balconies have been widened two feet and six inches, making the entrances very safe and beautiful. Mr. S. H. Cohen will remain as local manager, while the rest of the house staff will continue the same as last season.

"Jerry" is the name of the play that will re-open the house, and Mr. J. W. Summers and Miss Gracie Emmett are the stars of the attraction. Mr. Summers is an Englishman and has been touring England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales with this play for the past three years, and the press of those countries have been universal in their praise of his excellent work. The play is a comedy drama, which is filled with a continuation of dry humor, tenderness, farce and recklessness, which are sure to please. The matinees will remain the same as last season, on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. The prices will always be popular, and under no circumstance will they be raised.

Local Jottings.

The electric cars were in operation yesterday and gave general satisfaction.

The notorious Louis Cornish was fined $20 yesterday or 50 days in jail for maltreating his wife.

An order has been issued for the construction of a sewer in Dupont-street, from St. George to Huron.

The Sons of Temperance will celebrate their jubilee by a big demonstration in the Pavilion on Sept. 25.

Ida Roberts of 238 Major-street, 4 years old, disappeared from her home yesterday and has not yet been found.

A search light manipulated by the Morality Department in the neighborhood of Ashbridge's Bay and Fisherman's Island would be acceptable to the respectable residents there.

Miss Leila Pringle of Toronto narrowly escaped being drowned while bathing in Lake Rosseau on Saturday last. She was rescued by Miss Nichol, who was bathing with her.

Mr. A. Muldrew, one of the most popular and enthusiastic members of the Toronto Rowing Club, had a very narrow escape from drowning yesterday. Fortunately assistance was at hand, and "Ab" escaped with a whole hide and a wet skin.

The pipes at Island Park which supply drinking water to visitors would give greater satisfaction if buried a couple of feet under ground. During the hot weather the water is so near the temperature of the atmosphere as to be undrinkable.

Perhaps the Island steamers obey the law as regards the placing of life preservers within easy reach of passengers, should necessity require their use. As a matter of fact, however, there are some of the larger steamers where a search warrant would be required to find them. A delay of this sort would be deadly.

The question as to the ownership of Queen-street, from the subway to the west city limit, will be discussed this morning at a conference between the County Commissioners and the sub-committee having the city's interests in charge.

Robert Elvins, a youngster living with his married sister in Borden-street, was run down by a grocer's wagon yesterday afternoon. Dr. F. Moore of College-street attended to his injuries, which fortunately were not serious. He will be around again within the next week or so.

Island residents and visitors are talking now of the advantage there would be in having a ferry boat plying between Hanlan's Point and Island Park. At present those visiting either part must return to the city before they can get from Hanlan's to the Park or vice versa.

A certain class of Toronto's citizens seem to cherish a marked antipathy for those employes of the City Commissioner's department whose duty it is to gather up the vagrant curs that infest our streets. When they carry their ill-will to such lengths as to use clubs and other weapons of offence the dog-catchers begin to kick, and yesterday they swore out informations against three of their assailants.

Notwithstanding the cry of hard times Messrs. Potter & Co., corner Queen and Portland, have found their present premises too small for their increasing trade, and having secured the premises next door, lately occupied by W. J. Somerville & Co., are making the two large stores into one immense wareroom by cutting arches between their old premises and the new. While the alterations are being made we understand profits are not thought of, and those requiring furniture and carpets would do well to look in and get Potter & Co.'s prices.

DAME RUMOR'S FALSE TONGUE.

Rev. J. M. Cameron and His East End Congregation.

Ever since Rev. John Cameron, pastor of Oak-street Presbyterian Church, went away for a holiday the gossips have been busy with his name and that of a young lady, organist of a West End Church.

The fact that Mr. Cameron lost his wife over a year ago and that he and the young lady in question were visiting in the same neighborhood was enough, and within the past few weeks the mole hill has grown to the dimensions of a mountain.

How the Rumors Arose.

Three or four months ago Mr. Cameron was taken sick with some affliction of the throat. He was confined to his room for a time. Then there was a consultation of three or four medical men, and it was unanimously decided that his recovery was dependent on absolute rest.

A meeting of the elders was held and Mr. Cameron was granted leave of absence. As soon as he was able to go about he went to visit his brother in St. Catharines, and later on went to the seaside.

Last night a reporter of The World called on a prominent member of Mr. Cameron's church in regard to the stories going about.

The World Investigates.

"Why," said he, "it is reported that Mr. Cameron had married the young lady, but as a matter of fact he has done nothing of the sort, although I suppose it is no one's business when he gets married or to whom."

This same gentleman stated that there was not a word of truth in the report that Mr. Cameron had written a letter to the church officials saying that he had preached his last sermon in Toronto and would never be back. "Every member of the congregation," he said, "is anxiously awaiting his recovery and his early return to the pastorate of Oak-street Presbyterian Church."

WELCOMED HOME.

Hearty Reception of Toronto Members of the Bisley Team.

Lieut. T. Mitchell and Staff-Sergt. J. H. Simpson, the two members who represented the 12th Battalion in the rifle matches in the Old Country, were tendered a reception last evening in Webb's by the Rifle Committee of the battalion. Capt. Vennell presided and on his right sat Lieut. Mitchell and on his left Staff-Sergt. Simpson.

On the table was a cup given by the Corporation of the City of London and won by Staff-Sergt. Simpson. Among those present were Col. Wayling, Lieut. Curran, Lieut. Elliott, Lieut. Scott, Capt. Symons, Capt. Unitt, Capt. Leslie, Capt. Gower, Sergt. Mowat, Staff-Sergt. Bell, Sergt. Allen, Sergt. McBrien, Corp. Moody, Corp. Hammond, Ald. G. S. Macdonald, Ald. Graham, Ald. Orr, Edward Meek and Mr. Woodcock of Newmarket.

The toast of "Our Guests" was ably responded to by Lieut. Mitchell and Sergt. Simpson. The other toasts were "The Queen," "The Mayor and Corporation of the City of Toronto" and "The Press."

During the evening songs were sung by Col. Wayling, Sergt. Scott and Mr. Galt. Mr. G. Brody presided at the piano.

Industrial Fair Notes.

From the number of communications received daily at the exhibition offices, 82 King-street east, and from the interest which is being taken both by the citizens of Toronto and throughout the Dominion in general it is fair to assume that the great industrial show which opens next Sept. 5 will be crowded with visitors.

This year the entries in manufactured goods, in farm produce, in flowers, in horses, cattle, sheep and swine promise a magnificent display. British Columbia, the Northwest Territories and Manitoba are sending special exhibits, and the C. P. R., with its usual enterprise, will not be behind. Every inch of space in the main building and in the annex is taken, and more was wanted. The carriage building has been greatly enlarged, but all the space in it is bespoken, and what is true of these buildings is true of all others.

A new departure has been decided upon by the management. The Temple of Illusions is to be abolished and a better class of attractions provided in its place. Toronto Exhibition has outgrown the "illusion fake," and it will know it no more.

The official programs are now ready and can be had on application to Manager Hill.

Mr. W. R. Callaway, the general passenger agent of the C.P.R., has arranged a special table of rates to Toronto for the Exhibition, tickets good to return by any regular train until Sept. 19 at a single fare for the double journey. On Sept. 12 and 14 the rates will be even lower than this from places on the Ontario and Quebec section, on the Owen Sound section and on the Windsor and London section. On Sept. 13 and 15 special trains at very low rates will run from the Teeswater and Harriston sections. Bands in uniform with instruments, half of excursion rates.

Off-Hand Rifle Association.

The officers of the Dominion Off-Hand Rifle Association met at the Albion Hotel and arranged prize list and other business. The officers present were Simpson Rennie, hon. president; J. W. Crossley, president; A. Graham, vice-president; A. Love, secretary; Joseph Neilly, C. W. Hartmann and R. Graham, committee. The fall tournament will be held on Sept. 21, 22 and 23. Place of meeting not yet determined, but will probably be Aurora, Barrie or Orillia.

Courtesy to the Typothetæ.

The most notable craft gathering of 92 will be the convention of master printers here this week. Toronto stands ready to give these disciples of Guttenburg a truly warm welcome. As these gentlemen have been actively engaged in making impressions on paper all their lives they will doubtless make favorable impressions on our hearts. Every delegate can get a souvenir of Canada free (a golden maple leaf) by calling at quinn's outfitting establishment.

Furniture Sale To-day.

Parties furnishing would do well to attend the great auction sale of over $6000 worth of costly furniture, pianos, etc., this day at 11 o'clock at Messrs. C. M. Henderson & Co., 219 and 221 Yonge-street, corner of Shuter-street.

Kelly Remanded.

Edward W. Kelly, the Simcoe barrister who was arrested some days ago charged with obtaining money under false pretences in connection with the recent school teaching frauds, was up in the Police Court yesterday. He was remanded until next Tuesday, his own bail in $1000 and two sureties of $500 each being accepted.

A Phenomenal Fish.

A 6 1-4 black bass, and a small mouth at that, is on exhibition at Turtle Hall. This rare fish was a denizen of Deer River until Mr. James Pringle of the Western Assurance Company happened along, when his lordship succumbed to the allurements of a nice green frog. He was killed on an 8 oz. rod.

What this warm weather suggests is something that will boil the kettle, cook an egg, or fry a beefsteak in a hurry. Harvie's kindling wood is just the thing. Try 6 crates for a dollar delivered c.o.d. Harvie & Co., 20 Sheppard-street. Tel. 1570. 136

Artesian Well at the Island.

Wallace Bell of Montreal has, it is understood, been engaged to sink an artesian well at Hanlan's Point.

AGROUND IN THE RIVER.

THE COLUMBIAN NEARLY LOST IN CEDAR RAPIDS.

She Had Two Hundred Tourists Aboard Who Will Never Forget Their Experience—They Complain of Extortion on the Part of Rescuers, But Were All Glad to Escape.

MONTREAL, Aug. 16.—The R. and O. steamer Bohemian arrived here this afternoon with the passengers of the Columbian which ran aground yesterday afternoon on the Cedar Rapids. There were over 200 tourists on board the Columbian, and they had an experience which they will not soon forget. Their escape from being hurled to pieces in the swift rapids was miraculous and was due to the coolness of the pilot, who, when he saw the danger, ran the boat on a small island. The trouble arose from the steering gear, which broke down. The vessel became uncontrollable and swung around in the swift current, creating no little alarm and excitement among the passengers.

Fortunately the channel is quite deep in the rapids, and she descended clear of all rocks, until she ran on the shores of one of the small islands below the village of Cedars. She ran into this island with considerable force. The passengers were sent ashore by means of a bridge made of two long pine trees which were cut down by the crew and placed in position.

As soon as the residents in that locality saw the plight in which the steamer was they rowed across to render assistance by taking the passengers off in skiffs. Some of the passengers anxious to get to the city were taken from the island on which they were stranded to a neighboring island and from this to another island, and thence to the shore. They had to cross three channels in order to reach the mainland. Although many passengers crossed over that way there was no mishap, and not a piece of baggage lost. After reaching the mainland they took rigs for Vaudreuil, several arriving in Montreal this morning.

The passengers complained bitterly of the way the boatmen acted who ferried them to the shore. They refused to let the passengers land until they paid a dollar each. At first $3 a head was demanded, but they finally consented to take the lesser sum. She steamer Bohemian of the same company arrived at the scene of the accident early this morning and took from the stranded vessel 80 passengers, who had remained on board all night. They were landed in Montreal this afternoon. All spoke highly of the officers and crew of the Columbian and regretted the mishap to that vessel. Mr. Chabot, the manager of the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Company, visited the ill-fated steamer to-day. It is feared that there will be great difficulty in floating the steamer. Tugs have been ordered down from Kingston and work will be commenced at once. The Columbian was a new boat and cost $200,000.

THE STRIKE AT BUFFALO.

The Calling Out of the Militia Put an End to Disturbance.

BUFFALO, Aug. 16.—The backbone of the strike appears to be broken. If no further disturbance occurs to-night or to-morrow the railroads will have won the fight. This has been brought about by the action of Brigadier-General Peter C. Doyle, who is also general northern freight agent of the Lehigh Valley, in calling out the 74th and 65th Regiments and holding all others under his command in readiness to move at a moment's notice. It is perhaps fortunate for the Philadelphia and Reading to have a militia man of high rank in its employ. The military have stood guard since 3 o'clock yesterday all over the scene of dispute, at the William-street yards, and under the protection thus afforded the Erie and Lehigh have been enabled to move their freight trains to-day for the first time since the blockade of Sunday morning.

Plenty of Men to Fill Vacancies.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—M. F. Bonsan, general superintendent of the Reading system, left for the scene of the trouble at Buffalo this morning. Mr. S. Weigard, general manager, received hundreds of applications from experienced railroad men this morning for situations at Buffalo, and the vacancies caused by the strike, he said, can be readily filled. This will be done at once as soon as President McLeod has been assured that protection will be afforded the men he proposes to send.

DURNAN'S STATEMENT.

He Corroborates His First Letter and Says He Was Not Influenced.

Sporting Editor World: Owing to circumstances which I could not control I have been unable until now to deal with the charges brought against me in connection with the late boat race. As I am not yet 21 I could not take legal proceedings in my own name or they would have been taken so soon as I became aware of the statements published in the papers about my supposed confession to Edward Hanlan. The necessary legal formalities have now been provided for, and the necessary proceedings to bring out the whole truth relating to the race and to my supposed confession will be at once taken.

Meantime I wish again to state publicly that my conduct in connection with the race has been straightforward and honest. I did my best to win, and I made no arrangements with anyone directly or indirectly that I should lose. I had no interest directly or indirectly in any bets or wagers of any kind on the race.

The statement that John Guinane used influence with me to have me lose the race or made any improper proposals to me or arrangements with me about it is entirely untrue, and the statement that I made any confession to Hanlan or anyone else charging Guinane with dishonest or improper conduct is also untrue.

Edward Hanlan is my uncle and I do not wish to quarrel with him, and I will say nothing here about the circumstances of an interview I had with him and in which the papers have alleged I made a confession to him, but I here say that I did not make any confession to him or to any other person that I had sold the race or acted dishonestly or improperly in connection with it, and the sensational statements published in The News and World about such a confession are untrue.

The matter is too serious a one for me to let rest without vindicating my character in the courts, and this I am now proceeding to do.

City, Aug. 16.

While real estate has been inactive, and in some parts of the city showing a slight depreciation in value, the popular Compound Investment Policy of the North American Life Assurance Company of this city has daily been gaining favor in the estimation of the insuring public. Stocks, bonds and real estate may depreciate in value, but a life insurance policy in a well-managed institution like the North American can never fall below par. 246

THE SWIMMER WAS DROWNED.

What Followed a Fall and a Broken Kneecap.

The remains of Percy Howell, the Upper Canada College pupil drowned in Lake Rosseau Monday, were interred yesterday afternoon from the residence of his uncle, Mr. Henry S. Scott.

The body arrived in the city on the morning train and the funeral took place at 4 p.m. A number of deceased's fellow-pupils were present and there were several beautiful floral offerings. Rev. Cecil C. Owen officiated at the house and at the grave. The interment took place in St. James' Cemetery.

From further particulars, beyond those which appeared in the despatch in yesterday's World, it is learned that shortly before the accident occurred young Howell had been to see a friend off on the steamer, and in running to meet his camping companion fell and injured his kneecap. When he stepped into the boat to row across to the camping ground he complained to his companion, Hill, of great pain in his knee. In a few minutes he fell overboard in a fainting fit and immediately sank. Deceased was an excellent swimmer and was 19 years old, instead of 17, as stated in the despatches. It is two years since he left his home in Jamaica to attend school in Toronto, and had during that time made a number of friends. No reply has yet been received from deceased's parents, who were notified by cable of the fatality.

AXEMEN SPARE THE POLES.

Pending the Outcome of an Application for an Injunction.

Mr. Justice MacMahon on Monday granted leave to City Solicitor Caswell to move today for an injunction to restrain the Street Railway Company from erecting more wooden poles of the design of those in Church-street.

The prompt action taken by Mr. Caswell on the holiday was induced by the difference in the constructions which the City Engineer and the company placed upon the resolution of the council, adopted on May 18, 1891, and the acceptance thereof by the railway company on June 1, 1891, which was to the effect that the details of the construction of the trolley system should be subject to the approval of the City Engineer.

Mr. Keating objects to the wooden poles placed by the company in Church-street, and contends that under the resolution of the council he is entitled to approve of or reject the poles which the company propose to erect, while the company contend that the resolution in question has no application whatever to poles.

The motion will be argued at 10 o'clock.

In the meantime Mr. Keating's axemen who were to chop down the unsightly poles have failed to materialize, and until the question has been threshed out by the legal gentlemen the company will doubtless continue to erect the cheaper sticks.

Vancouver and the Northern Pacific.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 16.—Vancouver City Council to-night decided to put a by-law authorizing a bonus of $300,000 to a company to build a road to connect the Northern Pacific Railway with Vancouver before the taxpayers at an early date.

Two Suggestions.

The first is the fact that an intending purchaser of a lady's sealskin jacket, cape or cloak can save fully 25 per cent. and over by ordering the garment to be made up at Dineen's, corner King and Yonge-streets, now, to be delivered when wanted later on. This is better than to pay the increased prices that are sure to rule the fine sealskin trade in the fall.

The other suggestion relates to the clearing sale of lightweight felt hats and straw hats that is going on at Dineen's, corner King and Yonge-streets. The styles are the very newest designed for this summer. Some of them will be quite popular next season. But they are all going at cost and less to clear them out. No hats are carried over from one season to another in the hatterie, corner King and Yonge-streets.

A Love Song

O Canada, sweet Canada,
Thou maiden of the frost,
From Flattery Cape to Sable Cape
With love for thee we're crossed.
We could not love thee less or more,
We love thee clear to Labrador,
Why should we longer thus be vexed?
Consent, coy one, to be annexed.

O Canada, sweet Canada,
Our heart was always true;
You know we never really cared
For any one but you.
Your veins are of the purest gold
(We've mined them some, the truth be told),
True wheat are you, spite chaff and scorn,
And O, your dainty ears (of corn).

O Canada, sweet Canada,
John Bull is much too old
For such a winsome lass as you—
Leave him to fuss and scold;
Tell him a sister you will be,
He loves you not so much as we:
Fair maiden, stand not thus perplexed,
Come, sweetheart, come and be annexed.

—MR. PHELPS in August Century.

Sheer Off, Br'er Jonathan.

O Jonathan, gaunt Jonathan,
A stalwart of the earth,
Why should the world to one like you
Be of fair matches dearth.
Woo those who impress in your wealth,
Your height, your breadth may find,
But leave untrammelled maidenhood
To one who, though most kind,
Has never had regard for you
For you are sordid through and through.

Miss Canada has never led
You to believe that she
Would in the union you propose
A meed of profit see.
Indeed she's given many hints
Which, had you tact, you'd know,
As mild suggestions, when you woo'd,
'Twas time for you to go.
So press no more a hopeless suit,
'Tis mercenary at its root.

Miss Mexico's a rich young lass,
And then there's Miss Brazil,
And Paraguay and Uruguay
Who both might fill the bill.
And several other budding maids,
Besides Miss Chili, who was cold
And let you know, not long ago
When you presumed, that you were bold.
But leave "the maiden of the frost"
To cherish love she's never lost.

You say John Bull is much too old,
But good is that old age
That holds its youthful love through all
The brunt of rivals' rage:
Good that old age which circles those
It loves with arm strong,
Protecting with its honest might
The tender one from wrong,
Prepared to do and die for her
No matter what event occur.

Better to be an old man's pet,
The darling of his latter days,
Than slave to an unpolished youth
Of famished mien and narrow ways.
So, Jonathan, leave off your pranks
And go your old self-loving route,
And hedge yourself with tariffs high
Enough to keep the cholera out,
Miss Canada will tend her row
While you to inanition go.

WAYWARD CAPT. WYNDHAM.

HE DESERTS THE WOMAN HE MARRIED IN MONTREAL.

Reports of His Suicide At Montreal Prove To Be Untrue, As It Is Known He Sailed For England—It Is Believed That He Used a False Name and That He Is a Bigamist.

MONTREAL, Aug. 16.—The effects of the notorious Captain Wyndham, who disappeared mysteriously from this city several months ago, and who was reported to have committed suicide at Niagara Falls, were sold by auction here to-day. The Captain came to Montreal as a fellow-passenger of Lydia Rogers Carlyle, then engaged for the position of matron in the Maternity Hospital. The result of the acquaintance on board ship was their marriage soon after their arrival here at the Church of St. John the Evangelist. Then they disappeared from Montreal under somewhat of a cloud. A valuable gold watch entrusted to Miss Carlyle's care by one of the patients in the maternity disappeared at the same time and Capt. Wyndham neglected the formality of paying his bill at the St. Lawrence Hall.

The next heard of Capt. Wyndham was a press dispatch from Buffalo, stating that he had committed suicide by throwing himself over Niagara Falls. His waistcoat, found near the bridge, was the principal evidence of his rash act. But this was soon after discovered to be a clever ruse on the captain's part. Instead of going over the Falls he sailed to England, deserting his new love for some old one. This was confirmed by a letter recently received in Montreal from the unfortunate lady whom he married in this city. In this letter she said she had been deserted by Wyndham and was now endeavoring to obtain employment in some of the western hospitals. Another discovery made was that the captain's real name was J. H. Windrum, and not Wyndham, as signed in the marriage record of St. John the Evangelist. This fact was brought out by a letter addressed by an interested Montreal gentleman to the English Horseguards stating the facts of his marriage here and inquiring as to his antecedents. The answer received was to the effect that no one of that name had been an officer there, but that there was a Capt. J. H. Windrum in the Enniskillen Fusiliers, who left England in February last, leaving a wife behind him.

Submitted for Consideration.

When St. John was on the Island of Patmos (he "went to Patmos for our Saviour's sake," the poet says), succeeding ages came to him in visions, and he speaks thus of the origin of the boycott (the earliest mention of it) which in recent years has become a means of persecution the world over. (Rev. xiii., 16-18.)

16. And he (the Beast) causeth all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a mark in their right hand or in their foreheads. (Probably meaning some sort of sign.)

17. And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark (or sign) or the name of the beast, or the number of his name.

18. Here is wisdom. Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast, for it is the number of a man; and his number is six hundred three score and six (666.)

Necessarily a Stiff-Backed People.

"I have concluded," remarked Americanus Typothetæ last evening as he sauntered down from the Queen's Park, "I have concluded that Torontonians are an exceedingly stiff-backed people."

"Why have you concluded that Torontonians are a stiff-backed people?" asked Canadensus.

"I will tell you why I have concluded that Torontonians are a stiff-backed people," answered Americanus. "They must be, or they would all get round-shouldered sitting on the backless seats in the Queen's Park."

And Americanus Typothetæ passed on.
