THE ennobling difference between one man and another—between one animal and another—is precisely this, that one FEELS more than another. If we were sponges, perhaps sensation might not be easily got for us; if we were earth-worms, liable to be cut in too every minute by the spade, perhaps too much sensation might not be good for us. But being human creatures, IT IS good for us; nay, we are only human in proportion as we are sensitive, and our honor is precisely in proportion to our passion.

—From Ruskin in "Sesame and Lillies."
