

Although a stranger in Western Ontario, Mr. Wm. Reed has a very wide reputation as an organist and we are pleased to have this opportunity of introducing him to a Stratford audience. In his quiet way he has ever upheld the highest standards of his art. The "Musical Courier," the highest authority on musical matters on this continent, says :—

"William Reed is a concert organist of conspicuous ability. His recent recital on the Toronto Conservatory of Music organ showed him to be an interpretative artist of very high attainments, and demonstrated, in a brilliant manner, his technical mastery of the instrument. The lighter numbers, which he inserted for sake of contrast, proved his versatility, and stamped him as a player capable of pleasing all tastes."

"Miss Dora L. McMurtry's voice is a pure high soprano of bright ringing quality, and, at the same time, it is capable of sympathetic interpretation. She sings very artistically, and has an extremely musical temperament, which circumstance, combined with her dramatic instincts and feelings, makes her singing most effective."
