The Nursery

"Land sakes!" said the farmer's wife coming into the kitchen where I was busy scraping a place of beef. "What would you do if you had ten children?" "Scrape more beef," I answered. "Well," she continued, "I'm mighty glad I haven't got to bring up youngsters the way they're raised nowadays. Why, we used to have great big families, and as soon as a baby could sit up, he came to the table and ate pretty much what we did, and they were all healthy, too. They didn't get baths every day, neither, nor clean clothes. Laws, if I spent my time boiling empty sawpans and dishes, scraping beef and putting with milk strainers I'd never have got the meals ready. And that was the most important thing to my men's minds."

"And I don't wash clothes every day. Why, look at that line. If it hasn't got rompers and drapers on it, it's pads and blankets." She snuggled to breathe and to laugh, so I managed to ask if she didn't think the country life might have had something to do with it. "Well," she said, "I guess it had. I don't blame you poor city folks for being careful. If some of you knew the filth that it is possible to get into milk you'd be even more careful than you are. It's a good thing the law protects you now, for many a milk dealer wouldn't."

"But youngsters need more than milk, and I don't believe that baby you're fixing for gets nothing to eat. Why, can't he have a piece of that berry pie? There's nothing in it to hurt him, it's all good and wholesome."

If country mothers feed their babies berry pie, I think I understand the pasty skin, the freckles of some country children, and I think I know why country villages are full of elderly men limping around on sticks, or sitting breathless by the wayside. With the life they lead the air they breathe, the chance they have, they ought to be magnificent specimens of manhood at eighty. Instead of the decrepit invalids we see."

But, fortunately, all country babies do not have to depend upon what nature sends. There are sensible mothers in the country, and their numbers increase every year. And it is to these mothers that our nation must look for the life they lead the air they breathe, the chance they have, they ought to be magnificent specimens of manhood at eighty. Instead of the decrepit invalids we see."

And I just couldn't help a smile of satisfaction as I looked at a certain city specimen rapidly becoming countryified.

The farmer's wife saw me and smiled, too.

"Well, it would be hard to beat that, I'll admit," she said.

FOR THE PICNIC BASKET.

Sardine Sandwiches.

Cream the heaping tablespoonful of butter. Bone and pound twelve sardines, add two hard cooked eggs and pound again till smooth, then add a few drops of lemon juice, a dash of paprika and a little mustard. Mix well together and spread on buttered toast. Cut into fancy shapes.

Ham and Steak Roll.

One and a-half pounds of bacon, one and a-half pounds of steak, half a pound of bread crumbs, two eggs, salt, pepper, paprika and one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce. Have the bread crumbs very finely made and pass them thru a wire sieve.

Chop the bacon and steak and mix them with the bread crumbs and seasonings. This is best done with the hands. Beat up the eggs, wash the ham with the dry ingredients, add the Worcestershire sauce.

Have a pudding cloth wrung out of hot water and sprinkle it with flour. When the roll is tightly squeezed into shape, tie it up in the pudding cloth like a poly-poly. Plunge into a saucepan full of boiling water and boil for two and a-half hours. Let it cool in the water, take off the cloth, place it on a platter with a heavy weight on the top, let press firmly together. This can be cut into thin slices.

Doughnuts.

Two and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter, one cup of milk, one-quarter teaspoon of cinnamon, one teaspoon of salt, one cup of sugar, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-quarter teaspoon of nutmeg, flour.

Cream the butter and add half of the sugar, the eggs well beaten, the remaining sugar and the milk; then add three cups of flour sifted with the baking powder, spices and salt. Mix well and add enough more flour to make the mixture stiff enough to roll. Turn the dough onto a floured board, roll one-fourth inch thick, cut with a doughnut cutter and fry in deep hot fat. Drain on brown paper.

Bristles Down

When not in use, scrubbing brushes should be turned bristles downward. Thus the water will run out of them and they will dry, whereas, if they were placed on their backs the water would soak into the wood and loosen the bristles.

Skin All Covered With Eruption

Tried Many Remedies 3 or 4 Years. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

A Quebec man, N. Henri Tardif, of St. Casimir, writes in a letter dated Mar. 31, 1911: "I had a very bad skin, all covered with eruption, eight years ago. I have had all of both my shoulders covered with it, and the high part of my arms, and my face, but it was the worst on my shoulders. I tried many different remedies to cure it, but nothing was any good. At last I went to an apothecary. He asked me if I had ever used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I told him no, and I bought a box of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and a box of Cuticura Soap. I used three boxes of Cuticura Soap and Ointment on all my sore parts, and I think that in washing my face with the Cuticura Soap, it hindered my eruption from itching and burning. I tried many remedies during three or four years but Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me." (Signed) N. Henri Tardif.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, but to those who have suffered much, lost hope and are without faith in any treatment, a liberal sample of each with a 32-p. booklet on the skin and scalp will be mailed free, on application. Address: Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., 50 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A.

RHODE ISLAND CLAM CHOWDER.

(For 12 people)

One-half peck clams in shell, 12 large potatoes, six small onions, a few slices salt pork, a red pepper, three even tablespoonfuls of salt, two even teaspoonfuls of sage, one-half teaspoon of black pepper, one-half teaspoon ground clove, one gallon water, one-half teacup tomato ketchup, six hard pilot breads.

As soon as the clams come, cover them with brine and set in cool place. Pare and slice the potatoes in thick slices, the same as for chowder.

On the stove and cover the bottom with slices of pork. Let them fry crisp; then take out the pork, leaving the tomato ketchup, six hard pilot breads, fat in the pot. Then pack in the potatoes and onions, first potatoes, then onions, then potatoes, etc. Pour on the clam juice, add the salt, pepper and herbs, cover the pot and let it boil gently one and one-half hours.

While boiling prepare the clams. Pour off the brine and drain the clams in boiling water. Take them out of the shells, throw away the skins and black heads, and put aside the bellies. Chop the bellies very fine, and when they have been cooked one and a-half hours add the rinsed and bellies and ketchup. Cook one-half hour longer. When almost done put in the pilot bread.

SHEA'S THEATRE WILL OPEN ON MONDAY

Bill of Strong Feature Acts for Opening Week—Miss Haswell Gives "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" at Royal Alexandra—Star Opens This Afternoon.

At Shea's Theatre next week, Manager Shea will give his patrons a bill of feature acts, for the opening show of the season. The bill next week is headed by Olive Briscoe. This is Miss Briscoe's first vaudeville appearance. The special extra attraction on the bill is David Schooler and Louise Dickinson, known as the Boy Padlock and the Juvenile Mary Garden. Master David and Miss Louise have appeared in the big vaudeville houses in America this last season, and have been a sensation. David Schooler is a pupil of Padlock and the master predicted his success. He has appeared in recitals in European cities. Louise Dickinson has a well-trained dramatic voice and charm of manner. Lida McMillan will be seen here for the first time in vaudeville. Assisted by a clever company, in a new sketch by Roseman Bulger and May Tully, called The Late Mr. Allen. Miss McMillan is a favorite comedy star and, for some seasons was one of the features of The College Widow. She is capably assisted by Cameron Clemmons, Miss Young and Blanche Boyer. The Exposition Four are one of the best singing organizations in vaudeville. Their matter is always up to date, bright and tuneful. The Michael Richman Group, with Miss Tima Richman, billed as the strongest woman in the world, will be a sensation to Shea's patrons, with their marvelous balancing and tumbling feats. Kennedy and Melrose are comedy acrobats, as agile as they are funny. Ben Linn is making his first appearance here in a single act, and will be remembered as a feature of The Planophens. Adeline's animals are new to Shea's. There are monkeys, dogs, bears and ant eaters in this zoological circus. The show closes with new pictures on the kinograph.
