WHY IS THIS THUS?

Editor World: "Britisher" is right in his remarks about the ignorance of the average American about Canada and Canadian affairs. Let anyone take a drive round the city on one of the trolley-cars with a party of our friends from the south, and I venture to say, they will have their eyes opened.

IS THIS PUNKTOWN?

Editor World: Where are we at? Is this Toronto or is it Punktown? At noon to-day (Labor Day) I went to the Adelaide-street postoffice to purchase some postage stamps and register a letter, and found the entire establishment closed and locked up. I know this will scarcely be credited, but I can produce at least one witness who will bear me out.

PUBLIC AMUSEMENTS

"The Ham Tree," Princess. The Princess offers a new musical vaudeville, "The Ham Tree," written by Hobart, with lyrics and music by William Jerome and Jean Schwartz.

A production of this kind cannot be criticized from a dramatic point of view. It fulfills its purpose if it beguiles an audience, by its fund of amusement and enjoyment, into willing away a few short hours.

The stage in the second act is chiefly occupied by the two stranded minstrels, the complaints of Alexander, and the singing of the songs which were written by the imaginative Henry. This affords a genuine humor in which these artists excel.

The opening number of the second act, "Good-Bye, Sweet Old Manhattan Isle," was the hit of the play, and the demand for "three red tickets for ten cents," were heard all over the theatre.

"Me, Him and I"—Grand. "Me, Him and I," a rattling musical comedy that has already been played to bumper houses at the Grand Opera House, is now being presented at the Majestic.

"Queen of the Circus"—Majestic. As a real, genuine sensation, "Queen of the Circus," a brand new show which is presented to the patrons of the Majestic.

"Yankee Doodle Girls"—Star. Dainty and chic are the "Yankee Doodle Girls" at Star. Both performances yesterday drew packed holiday crowds.

Acting Supt. N.Y. Schools Says Simplified Spelling Will Lop Months Off Course.

New York, Sept. 2.—Educators throughout the country are preparing, as the time for opening of the schools approaches, to advocate simplified spelling as a time-saving device for young pupils.

Dr. Edward E. Shallow, acting superintendent of the New York schools, yesterday authorized a statement, in which he said it might be that many months could be saved in the school course by the employment of the simplified spelling.

"As I understand it," said Dr. Shallow, "the simplified spelling board has no desire to force its ideas on anyone. Its policy is to make friends for its program, and it will make its friends among the school people thru the fact that the useless letters and the inconspicuous spellings of English force the learning of spelling not by using the reasoning facilities, but by pure mechanical rote."

"It costs $4.44 a year to educate a child, if the average attendance may be taken, and this means that in every hundred thousand children in average attendance this would mean that in every eight years $42,400,000 is wasted in teaching and spelling. Moreover, if some of this time could be saved, that the course could be abbreviated one year, it would mean the saving of five hundred thousand years of earning power to the country."

"Allowing $3 a week as the average of each child, this would make a saving of $150,000,000 a year, a sum which is not shorted," continues Dr. Shallow, "the time wasted could be given to other important topics and this would very materially increase the educational value. If simplified spelling would in the course of eight years save one day of school for every child, this would mean a saving of $150,000,000 a year, a sum which is not shorted."

"Besides being a news centre, Lloyd's began to be used as a centre of marine insurance, and this business rapidly increased. During the forty years of war, from 1775 to 1815, Lloyd's grew and flourished amazingly, and business flowed in from all over the world. In 1811 the entire institution was reorganized and in 1870 an act of incorporation was applied for and obtained in 1871, notwithstanding considerable opposition.

The objects of the institution were described as being (1) the carrying on of the business of marine insurance by members of the society; (2) the protection of the interests of members of the society in respect of shipping and cargoes and freight, and (3) the collection, publication and diffusion of intelligence and information. To carry out the third object, Lloyd's has a staff of about 1500 agents in all parts of the world constantly reporting to headquarters, where clerks are employed both day and night.

There's a Point To This Question. In a joking way you are sometimes asked "How is your liver?" And this question is more to the point than most people realize, for on the activity of the liver, to a very large extent, is the health dependent.

In this connection it is explained that a new spelling book has been published to save its face by adding a fly-leaf containing the 315 words spelled in accordance with the recommendations of the board. A Philadelphia firm, but Lloyd's was distinguished above all others, especially by his news of the movements of vessels received from various correspondents at home and abroad, which may be found in the germ of "Lloyd's List." In 1696 Lloyd's News was commenced and published three times a week.

By the time that the first issue had appeared, the proprietor was so foolish as to insert a paragraph about the success of the house of lords. For this he was imprisoned to the bar of the house and then he stopped the print, substituting handwriting for printing. In 1721 when Lloyd's List appeared and has continued till the present day.
