IT HAPPENS

But Labor Strike Still Holds Out Some Very Serious Possibilities.

Hamilton, Aug. 12.—(Special.)—"They won't look at us." This is the way the president of the Master Builders Association siped up the attitude of the bricklayers and masons to-night.

The international union officer is expected in the morning, and it is hoped that he will be able to effect a settlement. There are signs of a split in the ranks of both contractors and men.

The members of the Masters' Association are credited with a desire to break away from George E. Mills, the contractor with whom the trouble started. He is being blamed for not paying his men his wages and discharging them without their consent.

On the other hand there are union men who oppose the strike, because they are not satisfied with the way in which the union has been run. They say that the members of the union who used to run the union have been driven to the back benches.
