THE SLEIGHING PARTY.

HURRA! hurra!! hurra!!!

Jump in! jump into the sleigh!

For the moon is up in the midnight skies,
On the glistening snow her lustre lies,
Through the willow the north wind scarcely sighs,
Away! away! away!

Hura! hura!!!

My boys, we're losing time—
The whip is cracked, and the word is, ' Go!'
And fleet as the foot of the frightened dee
Our horses' hoofs fly over the snow,
To the sleigh-bells' merry chime!

Hurra! hurra!!! hurra!!!
Put the coursers to their speed!
The laugh, the jest, our spirits cheer,
As we cut the drift in our swift career,
While lips are whispering in Love's car
Confession of its creed.

Hura! hura!! hura!!!
A race, my boys—a race!
We tickle the leaders under the hank!
Abreast, for miles, along we spank!
Then comes a crash, a cry!—on a bank,
We're upset in the chase!

Then comes a test of the chase!

We're upset in the chase!

Hurra! hurra!!! hurra!!!

What's become of the master Grays?

Where's Eliphalet Smith and Theophilus Jones?

Annt Debby's gone after the Miss Maloucs;

But Dandy Freddy has broken his beness—
The bones of his patent stays!

Hurra! hurra!! hurra!!!

Again we streak it along!

To the welcome inn our steeds advance,
And then the flip—the feast—the dance—
Till home we go by the morning's glance,
So ends the sleigher's song!

VARIETIES.

Entraordinary personnance on the Rahmay.

A feat, surpassing all former performances on the railway, took place a short time since on the Liverpool and Manchester Railway. The Sampson and Golid, two of Mr. Stephenom's engines, undertook to convey a thousand bags of New Orleans cotton from Liverpool to Manchester. They started together from Liverpool at eight o'clock in the moraing, and proceeded at a brisk pace to the foot of the inclined plane, eight miles from Liverpool, the Sampson dragging a train of 30 loaded waggons, and the Goliah 27. The Goliah was then detached from its load, and assisted the Sampson up the inclined plane. The latter then proceeded on its journey, and arrived at Mauchester at half past eleven. A considerable number of spectators had assembled to witness its arrival. The foliah, being left without assistance, carried its load up the inclined plane at three trips, and did not reach Manchester until half past one, having been delayed a considerable time by a slight accident to the machinery. The progress of both machines was very considerably delayed by a strong North East wind, which blew right against them, and by the extreme slipperiness of the rails, which had been wet by several slight showers of rain in the course of the moraing.

The total number of bags of cotton brought 549. The precise weight of each load has not yet been ascertained; but as each bag of American oction averages a cwt, the following may be considered a correct estimate of the Sampson's load:

Tons, Cwt.

Lord Granville, the English Ambassador at Paris, went to London, for the purpose of recording his vote in favor of the Reform Bill.

In layor of the Reform Bill.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer has announced the receipt from "X. X. of £325 11s. 11d. for conscience-sake," which his lordship has paid into the Treasury.

The Emperor Nicholas, it is said, strongly objects to the children of the Russian nobility being educated abroad, especially in England. Well he may.

A gentleman describing Kann, the tree.

A boy in this place, who had been sent to an apo-thecary's shop one night last week, to purchase some medicine for the family, and who had received a half-penny back of the sum sent as the price of it, astonished the inmates on his return, by calling out while in the lobby, "Faither! faither! the Reform Bill's, past!" Several individuals eagerly ran out to gather the news and ascertain its source. The boy on being impatiently interrogated how he knew, innocently reffield, "There's a bawbee off the castor oil."—Scotch Courier.
