FIGHT WITH BEAR AT CLOSE QUARTERS IN MAINE WOODS

News has reached Bangor from Burlington, Me., telling of a desperate battle between a wounded and infuriated bear and Arthur M. Neal of Lowell, Mass., in which the sportsman eventually succeeded in killing the enraged animal, but only after he had been severely wounded by the claws of the beast and had nearly all of his clothes ripped off.

He had gone some distance in the woods when he was attracted by a noise not far away through the forest. Looking up he saw a large bear, which showed no disposition either to attack or run away. Without thinking that his weapon was a light one for such big game Mr. Neal raised his piece to his shoulder and fired. The charge took effect and the bear sank to the ground. Mr. Neal rushed forward, believing he had killed the animal.

As he approached, however, the bear suddenly showed signs of life and, scrambling to his feet with surprising agility, he attacked Mr. Neal savagely. The Massachusetts man had nothing save an empty gun and in order to defend himself against the savage rush of the infuriated beast, he cast the piece aside and drew the stout hunting knife with which he happened to be armed.

The bear struck out desperately with his sharp claws and Neal sprang this way and that. Both bear and man succeeded in landing many savage blows and both were soon bleeding profusely. There was scarcely a shred of clothing left on Mr. Neal when he eventually succeeded in driving his knife nearly up to the hilt in the bear's side. The bear fell over with a groan and the battle was over. Neal was exhausted and could have lasted but a short time longer says he.

HOME GROWN SUGAR

(London Chronicle)

One result of the war has been to cut off from this country its principal sources of supply for sugar, that commodity which Disraeli said was the joy of infancy and the solace of old age. Most of the sugar imported into the United Kingdom is the product of the beet, which represents 80 per cent of the whole importation, only 20 per cent being cane sugar. Of our supplies of beet sugar, much the greatest part comes from natural times from Germany (which last year sent us 888,488 tons). Austria-Hungary was a good second with 209,469 tons. Our total supplies from the rest of the world only amounted to 278,146 tons. While the rise in the price of sugar and the prospect for some time to come of meagre supplies of the beet product will doubtless have a stimulating effect upon the production of cane sugar, there is not the smallest prospect that the Continental shortage will be made up from the West Indies and other tropical countries. The question therefore arises whether the shortage in supply shall not be met by a systematic plan to cultivate beet production in this country and the building up of a native sugar industry.

That sugar beet can be grown satisfactorily in England and in Ireland has been amply demonstrated. It will be said that if capital sees a favorable opportunity for profit, the present high price of sugar will attract it to beet cultivation. As a general proposition that is sound enough; but it does not meet the facts of the particular case. This is an instance where the government might very well take the initiative. In an article crammed with information which he contributes to the "Nineteenth Century" for October J. W. Robertson Scott makes out a powerful plea for government action and the establishment of state factories. He points out that the present is a uniquely favorable chance of establishing in this country the production of a necessary article of food for which we ought never to have relied so largely on the foreigner. We hope Lord Lucas, the president of the board of agriculture, who is himself an expert farmer, will give this matter immediate attention and that he will have sympathetic cabinet action. To be fruitful next year, must be taken now. Some of the skilled labor that would be required could be supplied by refugees.

NO ALUM IN ROYAL BAKING POWDER

from the best-growing districts of Belgium and France. The story of the beet sugar industry is a romantic one. It sprang into life on the Continent during the Napoleonic wars, when cane sugar was kept out owing to British command of the seas. It would be strange if another great war a century later should lead to the establishment of the industry in Great Britain and Ireland.

BATHURST DOES WELL

Bathurst has a branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund, a branch of the Red Cross Society, and strong committees in each of the churches to work for the Belgians.

To stop hiccough, give the patient a teaspoonful of granulated sugar and vinegar. If this does not afford instant relief, repeat the dose.

THE VICTROLA AND THE FAMILY—NO. 2

has many hours of leisure now. "The most pleasant of these," she says, "are those I spend in knitting while the Victrola sings for me, the old, old songs I used to love.

"There's 'Love's Old Sweet Song,' 'Silver Threads Among the Gold' and 'Sweet Genevieve,' sung by such splendid singers as Clarence Whitehill, Richard José and John McCormack. Those are my favorites but there are so very many other beautiful pieces all by such wonderful artists that it is a constant source of wonder and pleasure to me. The best of it is, the rest of the family are just as fond of it as I am. The Victrola surely has brought sunshine into our lives."

RUSSIAN ARMY IMPROVEMENT

Petrograd, Oct. 22.—A well known war correspondent and writer, Nemirovich Danchenko, who saw fighting in the Russo-Turkish and the Russo-Japanese wars, communicates his impressions to the Russko-Koslovsk. He says:

"One must be blind not to see the enormous progress that has been made by Russia and the Russian army in the last ten years. There has not occurred a single disgraceful scene such as those that sullied the Manchurian campaign. There is no waste of strength. Everything is in order and everybody is serious and in his place. Russia now has a sober, self-denying army, ably controlled by a modest and business like staff. Emperor William used to accuse the Russian officers of drunkenness. The reproach now applies most certainly to the Germans."

"The Russian troops are today like Puritans, going into battle with absolute faith, having dined meagrely. Water is the usual beverage of their Spanish board."

Yes, this is it—the leading style for your overcoat. It's loose, roomy, comfortable and correct. The cloth is rough, fuzzy and full of color. The price is $21, $29 and $32. All the other kinds of overcoats for all occasions? $12 to $40.
