

INGERSOLL CHRONICLE.

THE undersigned begs to call the attention of the public to the facilities for the purchase of the Ingersoll Chronicle, which is published weekly, and is the only paper of the kind in the County of Oxford.

The Ingersoll "Chronicle."

It is the oldest paper in the County of Oxford, being now in the fifteenth year of its publication, and is published weekly, and is the only paper of the kind in the County. It is published by J. S. GURNETT, at the Ingersoll Chronicle Office, in the County of Oxford.

JOB PRINTING.

Having lately added to our JOB PRINTING DEPARTMENT, a large number of new and elegant styles of Type, etc., we are prepared to execute in a manner never before attempted in this County any description of Job Work, such as—
POSTERS, CARDS, HEADS, REMITTANCES, CIRCULARS, CATALOGUES, WAY BILLS, TICKETS, LABELS, BILLS OF FARE, PAMPHLETS, &c.

Law, Book and Professional Work.

Attended to with care and accuracy, and every description of Book and Job Printing executed in Plain Black or Ornamental Colored Ink, Bronze, &c., with neatness and punctuality, and at low prices as any office in the County.

J. S. GURNETT.

Proprietor and Proprietor.

MR. A. H. ST. GERMAIN.

Proprietor of the Ingersoll Chronicle, in the County of Oxford, Ontario, is our agent for procuring Advertisements, and is prepared to receive Canadian advertisements for this paper.

The figures after each Subscriber's Address every week show the date to which he has paid up. Thus, "John Smith, Jan., '68," shows that he has paid up to January, 1868, and owes his Subscription from that date. Terms—one dollar and fifty cents in advance, to mail subscribers, and two dollars fifty cents if not paid in advance.

Ingersoll Chronicle.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1868.

Will Nova Scotia ever be Conciliated?

We shall not now inquire at any length into the cause of the failure of the recent mission of Ministers to Nova Scotia. We are quite satisfied that success was impossible—that at the present time the anti-Unionists there are too strong and too bitter to allow any reconciliation to be effected. But having conceived that the conciliation of that Province is just now impossible, we wish to infer that Nova Scotia will never be in any better humor?

And we to infer that there remains to the Dominion only the choice between letting Nova Scotia go out of the Union, and of having that Province in a state of perpetual dissension? If that is indeed the prospect, the position is most unpleasant one. As British Americans we want Nova Scotia to complete our country as a sort of frontage—to quote a word once used by Mr. Howe—to this great Northern Dominion which we have begun to build up. Having secured Union with Nova Scotia we should shrink from the loss of that Province because of its value to the Dominion, and more than all shrink from the moral influence of the breaking up of our Union. That influence would be in every respect—had upon our own people—had upon England—and most mischievous in the United States. No wonder we feel ready to do all in our power to avert such a calamity. On the other hand, we should dislike very much to keep the Nova Scotians in the Union against their will. We should shrink from the prospect of a perpetual struggle with them—their demands and we resisting the demand. Such a state of things would be unsatisfactory in the extreme.

We are not without hopes, however, that both these disagreeable extremes will be avoided. We concede freely that at the Union is exceedingly unpopular in Nova Scotia, and that its enemies are as bitter as ever they were in their hostility. We have a strong hope, however, that two or three years may work great changes in the feeling in Nova Scotia. We base that hope, in the first place, upon the utterly unreasonable character of many of the objections to the Union. Very much of all that is said against the Union is the result of ignorance and prejudice. It is the greatest nonsense imaginable. Very many of the notions that infuse people in that Province to cry out against the Union as a terrible grievance, are the most absurd possible. We know that passion and persistent agitation may do a good deal—even for a very bad cause—but we do believe that it is possible for Nova Scotia with the little capital they have to keep alive the popular hostility to Union for a great while longer. Misapprehensions as gross and ridiculous as those by which thousands of the people have been duped cannot last forever.

We base our hope of a change in the popular opinion of Nova Scotia; in the second place, upon the fact that the people of that Province have been loyal and British in their feelings. A few of them, indeed, appear to have forgotten their allegiance for the moment, and are talking as some of our people talked in 1849—but they will probably repent as sincerely as the Canadian annexationists of twenty years ago have done, when a quarter of the time has passed over their heads. Even now, however, the feeling of attachment to Britain and British institutions is quite too strong to be defied by the repeal party, and those of the repeal organs which had begun to hint about annexation have thought it prudent to draw back. The truth is, that should the repeal party take one violent step, it will produce its own destruction. It is confined to what is called "lawful and constitutional" means of agitation. It must keep within the law and within the limits of its allegiance, or it will drive thousands of people from its ranks. It may continue agitation for a year or two, but that will simply give the people time to see the folly of further resistance to Union—and the necessity of the Union to the people of British America, and the advantages to Union to the people of Nova Scotia. The day may come when the Union will be as popular in Nova Scotia as in any part of the Dominion.

Great Enterprises.

This is the age for great enterprises, and many people are liable to become a little crazed about enterprises which are from time to time urged upon public attention. Once an enterprise is called great, some people think they are bound to go for it, no matter how wild it may be. They seem to have no other safeguard against being regarded as narrow and illiberal. A very good specimen of the great enterprise which captivates such people and but few others, is the Union and Ontario and a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay. It would not be a magnificent thing—a fine thing to have a ship canal from Toronto to Georgian Bay.

a grand proof of the enterprising spirit of the age to build it. If, however, any one believes that it will be built during the present generation, he has more faith than we have. The proposal is that the forty millions of dollars necessary to build it, shall be raised—half in the United States and half in England—upon the simple condition that the Province of Ontario shall give ten millions of acres to the company which shall build the canal. Strange as it is, it is said that capitalists in England and Pennsylvania have been found to promise the money provided only the land is given. We do not believe that the Legislature will offer the land, and if it did, we very strongly suspect that there would be some mistake about the forty millions of money. It might puzzle the Provincial authorities to find ten millions of acres of ungranted land without taking a great deal of that of very little value. All the ungranted land in Ontario would not make the building of the canal a profitable undertaking for the capitalists who should furnish the forty millions, and if our Provincial Legislature were to vote the ten millions of acres for the purpose of inducing men to spend that enormous sum on such an undertaking as the Georgian Bay canal, the members of that body could hardly be held guilty of the matter. They, knowing the character of the work to be done, and the slim chance of its ever proving remunerative, would hardly be justified in assisting to entrap foreign capitalists into such a losing business.

Another great enterprise, almost equally visionary, has been started lately as a sort of adjunct to the North Shore Railway scheme, as if it were not bad enough to build the Intercolonial Railway by the north shore route, it is proposed to make the matter a good deal worse by adopting a scheme for quick communication with Europe by way of Newfoundland. There is to be a port for European steamers on the east side of Newfoundland—a railway across the will unknown country of that island—a ferry to a point on the mainland, and a branch thence to connect with the Intercolonial Railway. A route can thus be established by way of Ireland and Newfoundland which would be very quick and reduce the sea-voyage between Europe and America to the minimum. If, however, any man supposes such a route will ever get any considerable amount of trade or travel, he must be very wild in his ideas. We sincerely trust that no attempt will be made to get the Dominion to undertake the expense of this scheme.

Upper Canada College.

ARTICLE NO. 3.

This institution after it commenced its operations gave anything but favorable impressions of itself, and not long after it was established it was described by William Lyon Mackenzie as "a place of learning for the children of persons holding situations under the Local Government, and a few other wealthy and influential individuals, at great public cost, but placed beyond the control of public opinion, and from which the senseless of the young derive no benefit or advantage." This truly described Upper Canada College in the beginning of its existence, and to this day. It is just as free today from the control of public opinion, and not even is the Grammar School Inspector allowed to visit it as the officer of the Educational Authorities of this Province. So early as the year 1832 the tide of public opinion ran so high that the Parliament of that day was obliged to make Upper Canada College the subject of an investigation. After a long and tedious investigation the committee, in their 3rd report, recommended that the appropriation from the Grammar School Reserves, made by Sir John Colborne, be not recognized; that a loan of £10,000 which had been raised by an illegal sale of Grammar School lands be withdrawn from Upper Canada College, and be invested in securities for the benefit of the Grammar Schools.

In the following session the House of Assembly passed an address to His Majesty King William IV., complaining bitterly of the unjust treatment which the Grammar and District Schools had received in alienating the Grammar School lands from their primary and legal object, and robbing the County Grammar Schools of their lawful inheritance. The following is an extract from this address:

"It is therefore obvious that a very considerable portion of the whole recreation has been left for purposes which in the minds of those individuals who made the Legislative application in the year 1797 to His Late Majesty, as well as in that of the local Dominion, took precedence of every other, and were entitled to a much more valuable endowment."

After stating that what is left of the Reserves is "of exceedingly bad quality," the Address again proceeds: "For these reasons, as well as many others which need not be adduced, we are constrained to represent to your Majesty the serious injustice of the measure which has deprived the people of this Province of the best of land which was set apart for the diffusion of learning by the endowment of Free Grammar Schools."

Strangely to say, that through the intrigues and evil doings of those interested in the existence of this institution, the Royal relief was withheld. Upper Canada College to this day has been allowed to retain her ill-gotten plunder, and the lands that were left for the Grammar Schools were of so poor a kind that it consisted of rocky wildernesses and barren wastes.

The year 1858 the reply of the Assembly to the Speech from the Throne contained the following passage:

"We have also been anxious in past years to make the means of education general and easily available, but it has only lately become known to the Legislature that a beneficial provision in lands made by the Crown about forty years ago, though since deteriorated by a series of transfers for the benefit of inferior lands, ought to be left to notice that large appropriations have been made out of the University funds, not the Reserves (i.e. Grammar Schools and Township (i.e. Common) Schools, undesignated, neglected, but to sustain U. C. College in the hands of the sons of the wealthiest families are educated, and which ought therefore to be supported without so questionable an encroachment on public funds."

A few days after the above words had been addressed to Sir John Colborne he was succeeded in the administration of the Government by Sir F. B. Head.

The above words were addressed to Sir John Colborne on the 20th of the month of May, 1858. Sir Francis Head assumed the administration of affairs. Though Upper Canada College has been 35 years in existence, and though it was originally intended to do University work, yet during that period it has never done such work except for the four years that the learned and distinguished President of University College, Dr. McCall, was its Head Master. We shall now briefly consider how this University excessiveness affected the Grammar Schools during the first twenty years of its existence. Our readers may remember that the Royal Grants to the County Grammar Schools of Kingston, Cornwall, and Niagara, were devoted to this new educational institution. This as a matter of course for a time completely crippled these Grammar Schools. The friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, of Kingston, implored assistance for his Grammar School. This valiant and beloved Clergyman had himself been the first Head Master of that School, and at this period was chairman of the Board of Trustees. He appealed to the Executive for assistance, but none came. Shortly after the School fell into ruins, and had it not been for the assistance of the Venerable Archdeacon Stuart, the school would have been abandoned. The Kingston Grammar School and the others, the friends of these schools rallied around them and did their best. The V