WHY DO WOMEN WORRY?

First Sign of Falling Health. The woman who worries has a poor appetite—she sleeps poorly. If it only lasted for a day or two it might be of small consequence—but she grows thinner, miserable, unhappy—worse day by day. She needs Ferreroze, which cures worry by curing the conditions that render worry possible. For nervous, weak women, no tonic is so good; thousands of it has cured just like Mrs. W. E. Eberington, of Troy, who writes: "I am quite willing to give a public testimonial to Ferreroze, believing it to be a tonic of superior excellence and one that will rapidly build up strength and supply new energy to anyone not feeling well. Last spring I was in very poor condition of health. I was nervous, felt tired, and completely worn out. No doubt it is quite a common complaint with ladies of my age, but I placed great reliance in Ferreroze, and took it for several weeks. It made me quite strong, and in fact I have been in better health ever since. I can heartily recommend Ferreroze."

Ferreroze cures by making good blood, strong nerves and a healthy body. This is why it gives color, clearness to the skin, buoyancy to the step, brightness to the eyes—because of good digestion and activity of the body in all its parts. There's health. Price, 25c per box at all dealers.

MAY WIPE RHEUMATISM OUT IN UNITED STATES

Simple Home-Made Treatment Said To Overcome Rheumatism.

When an eminent authority announced in the Scranton (Pa.) Times that he had found a new way to treat that dread American disease, Rheumatism, with just common, every-day drugs found in any drug store, the physicians were slow indeed to attach much importance to his claims. This was only a few months ago. Today nearly every newspaper in the country, even the metropolitan dailies, is announcing it and the splendid results achieved. It is simple that any one can prepare it at home at small cost. It is made up of nothing but the best of any good prescriptive remedy. Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Sassafras, one ounce; Compound Sarsaparilla, one ounce; Compound Eucalypti, one ounce; and take in teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bedtime. These are all simple ingredients, making an absolutely harmless home remedy for little cost.

Rheumatism is every one knows, is a symptom of deranged kidneys. It is a condition produced by the failure of the kidneys to purify the blood or strain from the blood the uric acid and other matter which, if not carried off, either in the urine or in the sweat, accumulates in the blood, decomposes and forms about the joints and muscles, causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

This prescription is a simple and effective remedy for rheumatism. It is made up of nothing but the best of any good prescriptive remedy. Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Sassafras, one ounce; Compound Sarsaparilla, one ounce; Compound Eucalypti, one ounce; and take in teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bedtime. IMPERIAL CONFERENCE DEPARTMENT OPENED IN COLONIAL OFFICE

Permanent Secretary Appointed, and Elaborate Machinery Has Been Devised for Communication Between the Different Governments.

Montreal, Nov. 14.—The Star's London correspondent, called Lord Grey's despatch to Earl Grey and the government dated September 21, is published here today. It is a formal, official recognition of the new status of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa as dominions of the king, as distinct from crown colonies, like the West Indies.

These self-governing dominions now have their own department in the colonial office and with it is linked a new secretary of the imperial conference. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's principle of British dominion responsibility for the secretary of the conference is carried out, while Mr. Deakin's plan of a separate and independent secretariat for the secretary of the conference is rejected.

Mr. Just, who becomes the permanent secretary of the imperial conference, has served in the colonial office since 1878 and is associated in control of the new dominions' department with Mr. Lucas, the secretary of the colonies, while Mr. Lucas again is controlled by the permanent secretary of state and the colonial secretary himself. Mr. Just will, however, correspond directly with Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the other colonial ministers through the governor general.

Time alone will show how far this seemingly elaborate machinery of control will allow of rapid and efficient administration. What is certain is that the most likely to effect is greatly to increase the importance of the high commissioner as the direct channel of communication between the secretary of state and the dominions.

The efficiency of that channel has now been proved by long experience.

Mr. Just's brother is a member of the Canadian Appraisal Audit Company, Montreal and another brother was formerly one of Sir Charles Tupper's secretaries, as high commissioner and is now a leading official in the Canadian government migration department here. He was much concerned in the Breston emigration investigation.

He struck his back as he fell and was unable to move. For some time he lay there at length his cries were heard by some one in the house he had just left. He was picked up from his unpleasant position and carried to his home. It was found that no bones were broken and there were no bruises visible, but since the accident he has been unable to move and parts of his body are so painful that they cannot be touched.

TREE DASHED OUT HIS BRAINS

William McGouey, of Bridge Street Killed in Lumber Woods

Comrades Conveyed it from Eagle Lake to Westfield; Coroner Ballantyne Took Men's Statements, and Then Brought Body to Saddened Home Here.

William McGouey, aged 24, of 105 Bridge street, Indianapolis, was instantly killed at Eagle Lake Thursday morning by being struck on the head by a falling tree. He was working as a yardman for the Ingleswood Lumber Company and was driving a horse, while three other men who were chopping felled a tree, thinking he was clear. One of the branches struck him on the head, giving him such a great deal as to dash out his brains.

His body was taken with a view of being taken to Westfield Centre, where Coroner R. L. Ballantyne took the sworn statements of the three witnesses of the tragedy. Thursday Coroner Ballantyne and William Boyce, whose horse McGouey was driving at the time of the accident, were engaged in cutting down a tree to the saddened home in Bridge street.

Six weeks ago McGouey left home and intended to spend the winter at work with the Ingleswood Company. He had been previously employed in the Stetson Outfit mill at Indianapolis, where he had earned the name of being a good worker and was a favorite among his fellow employes.

The party at Eagle Lake was not a large one and all went smoothly until Thursday. McGouey's work was to drive with his horse logs chopped by the men and deposit them in the yards. Two men, Gorham and Murphy, and the horse, Anthony Thompson, were engaged in cutting down a medium sized tree, about 10 o'clock, and McGouey was near with the horse. As the tree was about ready to fall the men say they saw the horse pulling its load some distance away and thought that McGouey was following the log as usual.

The tree fell without a warning cry and the men were horrified to see McGouey crushed to the ground with it. A good sized branch struck the side of his head and gave the death dealing blow. It was seen at once that he was dead, as his brains were exposed and there was not the slightest sign of life.

The men at once decided that the body must be taken to the settlement, though they found it a hard task. For several miles they rowed the body down the lake in a boat for miles had to take it along a rough road in the woods on a sledge as wagons could not be used. It was nearly 4 o'clock when they arrived at Westfield after covering a stretch of sixteen miles.

The coroner's inquiry followed. He took the statements of Gorham, Murphy and another man under oath and after hearing these says he did not feel justified in holding an inquest. The drive down was a cold one and the party reached town about 9 o'clock Thursday evening.

The home was indeed a sad one Thursday. When the young man left home he was full of life and vigor and was looking forward to the return at Christmas time. He came a corpse and the grief of the family was great. The father, Patrick McGouey, two sisters, and three brothers survive. The sisters are: Mrs. John McGouey, of Maine, and Miss Ann, at home, James, John and Edward, all at home, are the brothers.

J. B. Nice, of South Bay, is confined to his bed in a rather serious condition as a result of a somewhat peculiar accident with which he met some nights ago.

Mr. Nice, who is a brother-in-law of Dr. James Walker, was spending the evening at a friend's house and on his way home had to cross the railway track at night being dark, he misjudged the distance and started to walk along the railroad track instead of crossing it as a cattle guard at the crossing.

He struck his back as he fell and was unable to move. For some time he lay there at length his cries were heard by some one in the house he had just left.
