MARRIAGE—WHEN COMPLETE.

The clergyman who recently completed the marriage of a drunken man has been found fault with for so doing, but he pleads justification on the ground that "when the outrage occurred the ceremony, so far as regards the actual marriage itself, had already been legally completed by the declaration which pronounces M. and N. to be 'man and wife together.'" We cannot think that the reverend gentleman is technically correct as to the point of the marriage service at which the knot is legally tied. From the judgments it would seem that the part of the service at which the marriage becomes knit is "after affiancing and troth plighted" between the parties, so that if the ministerial pronouncement should not happen to be given, the marriage would be complete and binding on the par-
