WOLFVILLE, N. S., AUGUST 27, 1886

VACATION RAMBLINGS.

With all the beautiful descriptions of vacations in mind what wonder is it that the duties of the office are gladly laid aside as the time arrives for starting off.

Steadily the train moves on, stopping here and there till Wind-or is reached, where we have a breathing-spell of thirty minutes.

The thirty minutes have elapsed and we are again on the road. From here to Windsor Junction the train makes excellent time.

The bridge over the chum in the Gaspereau road near Charles Coldwell is becoming unsafe for heavy loads to cross, and unless repaired very soon we may expect to hear of some accident there.

At last the train arrives, and we are swiftly gliding along the I. C. R. The lakes which lie along the road for quite a distance look very beautiful; not a ripple disturbs their placid surfaces, and as the rays of the sun—now fast sinking in the west—fall across the smooth and glassy surface of the water, a picture of no mean character is presented to our gaze.

In about an hour and a half Brookfield is reached. We are met by our old friend H. H., whose genial smile and hearty welcome make us feel at home at once.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The somewhat notorious John O. Eno, who has been exiled in Canada for the past five years for mismanagement and defalcation when he was president of the Second National Bank, New York, has now got tired of living in Montreal, and is making great efforts to arrange matters so he can return to New York.

Capt. Rawson, of the Royal Engineers, stationed in the Halifax Garrison, has been showing what he can do with submarine mines, in reference to the defence of Halifax Harbor, in case of hostile fleets.

Our two county contemporaries are constantly in a wrangle. Not content to share the fame (?) which they have gained for themselves in the journalistic world during the summer, they have asked the ACADIAN to take a hand with them.

Mr John Dougal, founder of the Montreal Witness, died at Flushing, I. I., on the 19th inst., aged 78 years, leaving behind him the record of a useful life.

The poor old pilgrims, Azran and Ezran, have not come this way as yet. No doubt they are still working towards the east, spending time and strength among the more Christianized (?) towns of Nova Scotia before they turn their eyes thitherward.

The necessity of providing for some protection against fire is becoming more and more apparent every day in this village.

The Celebrated Electric Dyes are the most lasting of all colors. Warranted strictly pure. 10 cents at Druggist and Crocers.

RAMBLING NOTES.

In casting about for some respectable heading for my few notes I fell in with an article entitled "Ramblings of a Rambler," and the word "Rambling" impressed me favorably.

They tell us in their myths of an Eastern king who, after receiving some fairy enchantment, was able to turn to gold everything he touched—his garments, the knobs of the doors, and the trees and flowers in his garden.

But when our magic king retires, and from out their council-chambers the storm-clouds, like fierce warriors, hurl their gloomy shade across our view, then with the swift-winged sea-pigeons and screaming gulls we haste to shelter.

It was out to the island of Scatarie, the most eastern point of land in Nova Scotia, where the Government has built two light-houses, one on either end of the island seven miles apart, a fog-whistle and a life-saving station, with all accoutrements.

The bridge over the small brook in the eastern part of Kentville is being rebuilt at a large expense, and why this one here should be altogether neglected, particularly when in an unsafe condition, is somewhat strange.

The poor old pilgrims, Azran and Ezran, have not come this way as yet. No doubt they are still working towards the east, spending time and strength among the more Christianized (?) towns of Nova Scotia before they turn their eyes thitherward.

And now I've rambled till, like the school-boy in his unbecoming sluttish habit, he has to break into lather walking over the disaster, I also stumble over, but instead of weeping I would like to close with the wish that the lives of all your readers might be as the morning star that goes not down amid the dunks of evening, but fades away into the light of heaven.

One of our best exchanges and one which is frequently quoted by the maritime press is the Cape Sable Advertiser, the newest of our country exchanges.

GOSSIPY ITEMS

GLEANED FROM VARIOUS SOURCES.

A $20,000 fire occurred in the village of Albert, Albert Co., N. B., last Friday. The Salvation Army is making it hot for the rum-sellers in Charlottetown, P. E. I. Two of them have been fined so far $50 each.

A blind pedlar named James Brown, of Low Point, C. B., walked over a cliff in the vicinity of Englishtown and was instantly killed.

A new ladies' seminary has finally been located at St. Martin's, by the Baptist convention, which held its session in St. John last week.

The Wanders were badly defeated, at cricket, in Montreal, by the West Indian club, last week. They were also defeated by the Montreal club.

A deputation of Indian chiefs are now in Ottawa looking after "better terms." They like Nova Scotia, intend to "secede" if better terms are not allowed.

Stewart Cumberland, the mind reader, after three years' tour around the world, arrived in Halifax, on C. P. R., on Wednesday last. He has travelled around the globe, in British territory.

The wool clip of the Canadian Northwest will come up to 70,000,000 of fine grade merino, valued at $17,500,000. This new and growing industry will become one of the most important in the Northwest.

The general conference of the Methodist church of Canada opens at Toronto on September 2nd. A large number of clerical and lay delegates from Nova Scotia will be present.

A Montreal despatch of a recent date says, "The Recorder this morning gave a decision in the salvation army case, when he said that as the charge against the prisoners was 'screaming' which they had a perfect right to do, he would discharge them; but if they were again brought up for singing in the streets, he would fine them heavily."

ACADIA COLLEGE, ACADEMY AND SEMINARY.—At the meeting of the board of governors of Acadia College, which was held in St. John last Friday, Prof. Tufts presented the financial reports of the Academy and Seminary.
