

Bog will dry up

A fleet of lunch trucks will help solve a drainage problem which has plagued the operators of Van Dongen's Landscaping and Nurseries, a lawyer has told the committee of adjustment.

Floresta Construction and Development Limited applied to the committee last week for permission for a large expansion of its building at 1959 Mattawa Ave. The company wants to use property it also controls to the north, on Wharton Way, to provide the parking necessary for the expanded building. The area will be a large carport for catering trucks operated by Gil's Fine Foods Limited. The trucks will be parked overnight and loaded with food early each morning.

There was objection to the plan from the Van Dongens, who have operated a nursery at 1910 Dundas St. East since 1953. In a letter, the couple said that when they first moved there, farms surrounded their operation. But with increased development, their property has become a "swamp" of salty pools of water, they said. Their plants have suffered as a result.

Don Gardner, lawyer for Floresta, said the city's engineering department has provided for water drainage to prevent runoff to the Van Dongen's nursery. "We'll be cleaning up the problem which has existed there for years," Gardner said.

The committee approved the application.
