

123017

I heard your address last night over the radio. C.K.Y. in W.Y. I enjoyed it very much.

and was inspired

mountains are the most impressive things in this little world of ours. That's why, when a great man has played his piece and gone into the ruins, we like to place him in our imagination upon a peak. The greatest man occupies the pinnacle or very highest peak. Lesser men occupy the lower peaks in the range. Each nation has its mountain range. Each range consists of groups of peaks of varying heights.

The towering geniuses of the world were so because they understood human emotions far better than the ordinary man. They understood them; they experienced them and they had the divine gift of being able to express themselves in prose, in poetry, in music, in painting, in sculpture.

Next to these geniuses are the men who most nearly understand what ^{these geniuses} they have tried to convey to their fellowmen; the professors of literature, music, art; the men who study the works of the geniuses and try to convey their meaning to the world.

MEIGHEN PAPERS, Series 5 (M.G. 26, I, Volume 193)

PUBLIC ARCHIVES
ARCHIVES PUBLIQUES
CANADA