

him and put one of his hands to her lips. Graham bent over the other, which he held tight, and Peter, who had longed for this moment through all his illness, didn't give a curse who heard his voice break. patted the Doctor on the back, and said: "Dear old man, my dear old father!" over and over again.

THE END