PLYMOUTH BINDER TWINE

has been tried, tested, and its superior merits praised. It represents the greatest length and strength, and the smoothest working twine that can be produced. In the cheap kind of twine there is too much twist causing it to kink and snarl, wasting time while the binder is stopped to remove the trouble.

This Trade Mark is on every Ball of the best Twine made.

Every ball of PLYMOUTH runs smoothly to the end, consequently no delays, no vexation, no twine wasted. It upholds the simple principle of economy, backed by our trade mark, which is a guarantee of everything good in twine.

Wire Fencing and Steel Posts

Among the industries of special interest to farmers, wire fencing is becoming noticeably prominent.

A visit to the location of this exhibit by the lake shore, near the Forsters' arch, by our representative on his first trip to the Toronto Exhibition grounds, gave him a glimpse of a picturesque and animated scene.

All over the stand were men to be seen digging post holes and anchor-pits as diligently and desperately as if their excavations had been rifle-pits and a plain which was to be swept by the rifles of an enemy, or erecting the unique structures which were to draw attention to the various kinds of wire webbing and steel posts.

Anything more happily designed by "natural selection" to secure a good representation of young Canadian manhood at work could not well have been proposed.

That their devotion is not misplaced is clear to any thoughtful man. The fencing industry is already throbbing with the pulse of a tide of prodigious power, which gives assurance of enormous development.

After the buildings on a farm, and probably not even after them, the fences reveal the character and standard of a farmer. And it is pleasant to be able to get a vision of the days that are at hand for the farmers of Canada, as they will appear when they are fenced about by their lanes and their roads trellised by defences
