CORRESPONDENCE OF THE NEW YORK COMMERCIAL ADVERTISER.

LONDON, June 9, 1848.

Although not momentous, the news this week is again ample and interesting. The chief points, 1. A new demonstration at Berlin, which, like that of Vienna, described last week, has ended in farther concessions to the people. 2. The anxious state of Paris, where the preservation of order seems entirely contingent upon the success of repressive measures of a far more severe and general character than were ever resorted to under the monarchy. 3. A continuation of the Chartist disturbances in London and the arrest of five of the leaders. 4. A proposed fraternization of the moral and physical force parties in Ireland. 5. The discussion in Parliament regarding Lord Palmerston's Spanish diplomacy and the resent expulsion of our Ambassador from Madrid. And 8. An important battle in Lombardy, in which the Austrians have been defeated

PRUSSIA.

With regard to the new demonstration at Berof that capital that Prussia has had an escape no less narrow than that of Austria, described in my last letter, from a new and serious convulsion. With every disposition to order and loyalty, the Germans find it difficult to place complete reliance on the good faith of their princes, and there is consequently a constant and by no means unwarranted suspicion of attempts at reaction. The sense of the necessity for vigilance is also increased, both in Prussia and Austria, by the knowledge that the people in the respective provinces do not accept the new order of things with the zeal either of the Berliners or the Viennese, and when to these considerations we add the dissatisfaction and restlessness consequent upon the general derangement of business, it will be easily understood that nothing but the utmost cautiousness combined with entire sincerity on the part of the authorities, can be likely to prevent a constant series of explosions. Neither cautiousness nor sincerity, however, is displayed to the requisite extent, and hence the recent barricades at Vienna and the imminent danger of a new emeute, which has just been passed through at Berlin.

Still, however, I am satisfied that the Germans, after all sorts of mistakes, such as it may take years to disentangle, will ultimately come out well from all their difficulties. Conscientiousness, benevolence, and a strong logical power are among their predominant characteristics ; and with these faculties, whatever blunders may arise from a want of practical keenness coupled with a somecan permanently go wrong. FRANCE. With regard to the condition of Paris nothing in the way of stirring events has occurred, but all the published accounts as well as the private letters manifest a most uneasy feeling as to the probable power of the Government to meet the emergencies of the time, or to protect themselves from formidable disturbances. Louis Blanc is not to be prosecuted for his part in the affair of

Napoleon Bonaparte. CHARTIST RIOTS. Fresh Chartist disturbances in London have kept up a feeling of disquiet : the worst effect of Sunday last several large meetings took place in the Eastern suburbs (the poorest part of the metropolis), and much severe fighting occurred between the police and the mobs, in which the latter showed a more determined spirit than they had yet exhibited. The conflict originated in the nob throwing stones at the windows of a church n which they had learned a body of police were concealed, and many frightful injuries was sustained on both sides, the rioters, however, being

While these things are going on the peaceable eaders of the new reform party are still endearoring on the one hand to push the government to the duty of timely progress and on the other hand to conciliate the people.
