The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Pimlot in our church, after which the remains were deposited in the family ault in Athens. The bereaved family and friends liave the sympathy of all in their hour of sorrow and affliction,

Mildred Gallagher, Starlight. Mrs. R. Parker (Brockville), Quee of Hearts. M. Kincaid, Widow.

And all the time she was speaking These words were like coals on my heart, To arise and express in the meeting, 'I desire in smuch in just speaking As someting I couldn't tell wby, But concluded while yet she was preaching 'II do it, Lord, though I die,'

Then when Lad resolved in completeness That I would be abedient indeed. It seemed by the glory around us That here all earth were agreed. That here all this world as that meeting, whon I lest my burden of sin. I shouldn't be wonderfully anxious Which one of the two we are in; For when the conflict was over, And I the victory had won. I searcely knew in my rapture, When aunt Sophia's preaching was done.

How and Sophia's preaching was done. But I knew very well it had ended, For I heard no longer the sound, But God even seemed to be nearer When silence had settled around : For I knew that part of the meeting Would to me the privil through in weakness To arise and prinade to the Lord. Which I did, and then with such reverence She knelt down low on the floor. And prayed—'that God would so keep us That we might meet on eternity's shore And in set the soling for Which Jesus has gone to prepare. And mer with the saints of all ages. Who're waiting to welcome us there.

Who're waiting to welcome us proce-And the Friend at the head of the meeting A few words in tenderness said : He thought we never and fishes were fed, And allower that is purged from the dross, And said we must follow the Saviour. Though He led by the way of the cross For nothing that is wicked and sinful In His holy mountain shall stand, But the willing and obecient as promised Shall eat the good of the land.

Then the meeting was brought to a close, For some silently acted their part, But its infuence never will close. That is to say, close in my heart, For while in this world I shall stay. Though cares should as sea billows roll, One song I can sing all the day It is well, it is well with my soul."
