Nervous, Weak Men.

Thousands of young and middle-aged men are annually swept to a premature grave through EARLY INDISCRETION, EXCESSIVE, AND BLOODY DEBILITY. If you have any of the following symptoms consult us before it is too late.

MEN'S LIFE BLOOD

Nothing can be more demoralizing to young and middle-aged men than emissions at night or secret drains through the urine. They unfit a man for business, married life or social happiness.

W. A. Muir, of Lima, O., says: "I was one of the countless victims of early vice at 15 years of age. The drains on my system were weakening my brain as well as my sexual and nervous system."

Dr. Kennedy & Korgan, 149 SHELBY STREET, DETROIT, MICH.

KITLEY FAIR

There was a large attendance of members at the annual meeting of Kitley Agricultural Society held on Wednesday last. The board of 1903 met in the commercial room of Wickware's hotel, Frankville, in the forenoon and wound up the business of the year.

At this meeting the popular president, Mr. D. Dowley, announced his intention of withdrawing from official connection with the society. This action on his part had been anticipated by the board, and the following address was read and presented to Mr. Dowley:—

"We, the officers, directors and members of the Kitley Agricultural Society, in view of your long and honorable services as President of the said Society, and the friendly relations always existing between us, feel that we cannot allow this opportunity to pass without expressing our sincere regard for you and your services and making you this small present of $10 as a testimonial of our regard for you, trusting that you may be spared many years of life and happiness to mingle with us in our daily vocations."

Mr. Dowley replied in suitable terms to the address, stating that in 25 years incumbency of the office of president he had received every courtesy and consideration from the officers and members, and was pleased to say that he was leaving the society with a net surplus of nearly $400.

Several members of the board were then called upon and responded with brief addresses, all testifying to the valuable services rendered to the society by Mr. Dowley. Messrs. Vincent Judson and William Mitchell were able to go back forty-five years, to the time when North Grenville succeeded in taking the fair away from Frankville, and recounted the struggles of those early days.

On adjournment of the board meeting, dinner was announced, and it proved to be a rich and most elaborate spread. Mr. Wickware and his capable staff having excelled themselves in the preparation of a veritable feast of good things. About thirty sat down, the board having as guests several ladies. Brockville Fair was represented by President Beecher, Secretary Field and Treasurer Davis. At the conclusion of the dinner, Dr. Dixon, who occupied a chair to the right of the President, arose and after delivering a neat address, in which the long and honorable career of Mr. Dowley as President of the fair was fittingly recognized, presented him, in behalf of his many friends, with a handsome gold-headed ebony cane, suitably engraved. This was a genuine surprise to David, and it was some time before he could frame a suitable reply.

Next in order was the annual meeting, which was held in Montgomery's hall and was attended by an unusually large number of members. Mr. Beecher presided and Mr. Joseph Coad acted as secretary.

Reports of the officers and auditors were presented and adopted, which showed that the fair receipts of 1903 were over $100 in excess of 1902 and that there was a net balance on hand of $374.62.

For president, Mr. Dowley was nominated and elected by acclamation, and in a characteristically witty speech he returned thanks and declined the honor. He was duly elected honorary president and made a life member of the society.

Other nominations for president were R. Richards, S. Hanton and J. Loucks. Mr. Loucks resigned and a ballot being taken Mr. Richards was declared elected.

Mr. S. Hanton was elected vice president and out of 26 names placed in nomination the following were elected to constitute the board of directors: A. Hanton, G. M. Leverette, A. H. Parker, Wm. Ennis, F. Stewart, John Loucks, W. E. Stratton, A. Crummy, Wat. Davis. Mr. C. A. Wood, of Toledo, was tied with two others for a position on the board, but resigned.

Messrs. C. H. Smith and W. G. Richards were appointed auditors. The newly elected board met immediately at the close of the annual meeting and re-elected Joseph Coad secretary and Wm. E. Eaton treasurer. The date for the fall fair was fixed for Sept. 29 and 30, and it was decided to make some improvements in hall and grounds.

The Reporter's attention was called to the fact that in the prize list sent year by the Bank of Montreal was credited with having made a donation of $10 to the funds of the society. The gift should have been credited to the Bank of Toronto.

Roast Pig in Lamb in China.

A correspondent of the North China Herald writes this dissertation upon roast pig: "How little western writers understand the Chinese! Who has not read and rejoiced over Lamb's 'Dissertation Upon Roast Pig?' It is not everybody who has the chance of seeing Lamb's fascinating story worked out in real life. In the beginning of the present Chinese year I passed through a busy market village where the people kept many pigs. In the middle of the night a fire broke out in the market village and destroyed the whole place. No lives had been lost, but most of the pigs had been roasted, especially those too fat to run quickly. Roast pigs! Burning houses! Lamb's story in real life! Quite naturally I remarked that some folk must have had a splendid meal of roast pork in those days. To my surprise the natives asked with disgust: 'A splendid meal! Who would eat that stinking, smoky stuff? The palate of the Chinaman absolutely rejects smoky roast pork! All that magnificent succulent description of roasting in the one word 'crackling'—a delusion, a yarn, a lie! I gloated over that yarn when a boy and grew excited as the story went from one page to another. Now to find the whole thing go up in smoke!"

Solving it. Patrick, a thrifty tradesman in the neighborhood of the Dublin docks, was the story goes, a man who never spent a penny more than he needed to spend, but he was nevertheless as good a master at the making of an Irish bull as any who lived between Bantry and Ballycastie.

Having one day occasion to send a letter to a place some distance, Patrick called a messenger and asked him his price for going such a distance. "It'll be a shilling," said the man. "Twice too much!" said Patrick. "Let it be sixpence." "Niver," answered the messenger. "The way is that lonely that I'd niver go it under a shilling!" "Lonely, is it?" said Patrick, scratching his head. "Faith, an' ye're right. Now, man, I'll tell ye what we'll do; make it sixpence, an' I'll go wid ye to kape ye company!"

Curran Met His Match. Curran, the famous Irish advocate, was a master of repartee, but he did not always score, though he enjoyed an encounter none the less if he was fairly beaten. One day, in a gay mood, he stopped and chatted with a certain Father O'Leary. "Ah, father," said the advocate, waiting for an opening. "Now I wish when I die that you had the key to heaven!" "Why?" said the priest, for he guessed a trap was laid. "Because you could let me in." "Ah," said Father O'Leary, "it would be better for you if I had the key of the other place, for then I could let you out."

The Heave. Old as the history of the world itself is that of the queen of Sowera. The ancient Greeks and Romans revelled in roses. They were used lavishly at their feasts. In the time of the republic the people had their cups of falernian wine swimming with blooms, and the Spartan soldiers, after the battle of Cirra, refused to drink any wine that was not perfumed with roses, while at the regatta of Bala the whole surface of the Lucrine lake was strewn with Sowera.

It Muddled Him. "It gets me," confided the intoxicated individual who was gazing into the doctor's window. "It gets me! I don't know, however, a chr'chr'chr'annemum looks like a Skye terrier or wesser a Skye terrier looks like a chr'chr'chr'annemum." But the policeman got him just then, and the problem ceased to get him for the time being.

Sought Bargain in War. Edward III had just announced his intention of beginning the Hundred Years' war. "But," sobbed Queen Philippa, "can't you reduce it to ninety-eight?" Maddened, however, by this request for a bargain, he rushed out at once and pawned their crowns to pay the troops.

Difference of Opinion. "How did that poem of yours turn out?" "Oh," answered the author, "there was the difference of opinion that usually attends the production of a masterpiece. The postmaster insisted that it was first class matter and the editor insisted that it was not."

Scorched. Cannibal Chief—What was that I had for dinner? Cannibal Cook—He was a bicycle rider, your excellency. Cannibal Chief—I thought I detected a burned taste. Cannibal Cook—Yes, your excellency. He was scorching when we caught him.

Raising His Salary. "You told me last week that you wanted to raise my salary," said Bragg. "Yes," replied his employer. "I did. I used a lot of other words. Believe me, I had a very hard time raising it this week."

It is remarkable how virtuous and generally disposed every man is at a play. We must not be afraid what is right and common what is wrong when it costs us nothing but the sentiment.

An easy way to soften hard water delightfully is to throw or pour it into a tub before the water is used.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

This preparation is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough and influenza. It has become famous for its cures of these diseases over a large part of the civilized world. The most flattering testimonials have been received, giving accounts of its good works; of the aggravating and persistent coughs it has cured; of severe colds that have yielded promptly to its soothing effects, and of the dangerous attacks of croup it has cured, often saving the life of the child. The extensive use of it for whooping cough, has shown that it robs that disease of all dangerous results. It is especially prized by mothers because it contains nothing injurious and there is not the least danger in giving it even to babies. It always cures and cures quickly. Sold by J. P. Lamb & Son.
