Dominion Sympathize With Jews in Massacre?

Ottawa, March 16.-Two or three spirited discussions sprung up yesterday afternoon upon questions that are isually devoid of interest. One related to the massacre of the Russian Jews: another to the height above high water of the Quebec bridge.

Questions to Ministers first occupied the day. One of them hurt, for Mr. Emmerson admitted that the number of employes on the Intercolonial had in creased from 5,037 in 1899 to 8,540 in

It was during this droning Mour that Mr. Armstrong (East Lambton) began to speak. There were cries of order, and in response to a demand for the point of order Sir Wilfrid Laurier stated that while the gentleman might ask a question he was not entitled to make a speech.

"I am calling attention," said Mr.
Armstrong, "to a danger that threatens the commercial existence of Canada. If

Sympathy For Russian Jawa

Claude Macdonnell (South Toronto) presented a resolution expressing the sympathy of Parliament with the mas-sacred Russian Jews, and condemning the atrocities inflicted upon them. The resolution was to be forwarded to the resolution was to be forwarded to the imperial Government. The resolution was about to pass when Sir Wilfrid Laurier suggested that there might be some objection to Parliament express-ing its opinion upon any matter that so exclusively belonged to the Foreign Office. This Parliament had no plenary powers, after all Canada was but a

W. F. Maclean declared that he w. F. Maclean declared that he could not agree; the resolution was but an expression of sympathy. Our Parliament had the same plenary powers as the Imperial Parliament to make any address to the King. The time was at hand when, with the full consent of the Imperial Government, we would be free to address ourselves to any other nation.

R. L. Borden personally favored the resolution, but as leader of the Opposition was entirely willing that the matter be laid over for the present. Election Laws.

Mr. R. L. Borden spoke in support of his bill to promote the purity of elections. He would urge that bye-elections be brought on automatically; that dates should not depend upon the caprice of the Government. It should be made impossible for Governments and candidates to bribe constituencies by promising to grant or threatening to Superintendent Fitzgerald Tells of Some Things Wrong In Insurance Before the Commission.

Ottawa, March 16 -- Mr. Tillev: You have no interest as to profits that are paid out to policyholders? Superintendent Fitzgerald: Just in a general way, as spolicyholder myself:

but as department, no. There is no out as department, no. There is no duty cast upon us with regard to it. Thus did the Government's high constable of insurance, confess he takes no notice of what becomes of the millions yearly paid to the insurance companies for profits, though, in the words of the act of Parliament, the superin-tendent of insurance shall examine and report to the Minister from time to time upon all matters connected with insurance, as carried on by the several companies.

companies.

And so you might go on quoting over and over again from Mr. Fitzgerald's evidence.

Dominion Counsel Tilley—his leader,

Mr. Shepley, was away from Ottawa— every now and then struck trails to dis-closures vital to policyholders interests; but did not follow them up. Superintendent Fitzgerald described a flagrant piece of juggling with se-curities; the name of the company was not asked.

Superintendent Fitzgerald was not asked whether he had called the Minister's attention to this kind of thing had recommended any change in the statute to prevent juggling.

So far Commissioner Langmuir is the only commissioner who displayed by his questions any real spirit at the investigation. vestigation. A few of his queries were:
Mr. Langmuir: Have you ever asked for any interim statement of the securities dealt with by the companies during the year?

Mr. Fitzgerald: I have never asked for any interim statemen for any interim statement.

Mr. Langmuir: Would it not be advisable to have a monthly or quarterly interim statement, to show what special deals in securities have been closed out during the year, before Dec. 31?

Mr. Fitzgerald: I think it would probably be advisable to have an amendment of the act requiring a schedule showing all bonds purchased and sold during the year.

Mr. Fitzgerald was not asked if he had suggested such an amendment, but here is his illustration of even:s which make it probably desirable to strength-en the law. Mr. Tilley: Can you tell me of any case where you have discovered any-thing improper by any company that is not shown in the annual return?

Mr. Fitzgerald: I think I have recollection of a case of the kind, going ack probably 16 or 1 about Dec. 30, when a bank pass book showed a large amount had been de-posited. Within just a week, in January, the pass book showed practically that the entry had been reversed. I was led to enquire what that was. I discovered a whole bundle of premium notes had been put by the company into the bank or each bank or each into the bank as cash and been marked into the bank as cash and been marked as a deposit in pass book, and the same amount charged back a little later on, so that it was an incorrect entry in the return as showing that the company had had that large amount in cash and in reality it was only a bundle of premium notes.

Mr. Fitzgerald also testified that other things have been discovered since Judge Hamilton's Invective.

Albany, March 16.—Yesterday Judge Hamilton before the insurance investigation committee defended the late John A. McCall, and characterized many of the officers of the New York many of the officers of the New Life Co. as curs and traitors who knew Life Co. as curs and traitors who knew what he was doing for them and who were responsible for all his acts. He poured forth a flood of invective and denunciation of the board of trustees many of whom were present.
