THE STAR.

An Old Road.

A curve of green tree-tops, And a common wall below, And a winding road, that dips and drops Ah me! where does it go? Down to the lovely days Goes that familiar track, And here I stand and wait and gaze, As if they would come back.

Somewhere beneath that hill Are children's running feet, And a little garden fair and still, Were never flowers so sweet! And a house within an open door, What was therein I know-O ! let me enter nevermore, But still believe it so.

Up this oft-trodden slope What visions rise and throng ! What keen remembrance of Hope Lie shattered all along ! These flowers that never grew, Bloom they in any clime ? Can any Spring to come renew What died in that sweet time?

Here I believed in fame, And found no room for fear ; Here sprang to meet what never came Here loved-what is not here ! Not worth a moment's pause Seemed any fallen gem, Not worth a sigh, a glance, because Life would be full of them.

The child in the fairy tale Dropped tokens as he passed, So pierced the darksome forest veil And found his home at last; I, in the falling day, Turn back through deeper gloom, By gathered memories feel my way Only to find—a tomb. For there they lie asleep, Eyes that made all things sweet,

Than any left to beat; A world where all was great;

- Paths trodden not, but seen : Light streaming through an open gate-
- The world that might have been !

Pictures, and dreams, and tearsthat, said Edward Marvel, in a positive nurse ; her eyes had rested on the first or struggling in the grasp of a fatal Well, mother, was his reply, I am malady. On making inquiry at the glad supper is so near ready, for I am voice. If I go to that land of promise, words he wrote. Yes, sighed the young man, as the hospital, she was told that the one she awfully hungry and tired, too. Besides, it must first be alone. Alone! A shadow fell over the face pen dropped from his fingers, and he sought was not there, and she was about I'm going over the river to-night. of Agnes. Alone! It cannot-it must leaned back heavily, exhausted by even returning to the city when the truth What lover the river on such a stormy reached her ears. night as this? the slight effort he had made. not be! Is he very ill? she asked, struggling Instantly the joyful expression of her But think, Agnes. If I go alone, it Your name is Marvel? face turned to one of anxious inquiry. to compose herself. Yes. will cost me but a small sum to live until I find some business, which may Marvel closed his eyes, and did not Yes, he is extremely ill, was the re- Yes, mother, he replied, firmly, yet ply. and it might not be well for you, respectfully, that is my intention. not be for weeks, or even months, after speak for some moments. Did you see her? he asked at length, under the circumstances, to see him at But you have worked hard all day. 1 arrive in the New World. and must be very tired. What if you were to be sick? the evincing some interest. present. Not well for his wife to see him? re- True; I have worked hard, and cut frame of Agnes slightly quivering as she Yes. Did she find the one for whom she turned Agnes. Tears sprang to her more wood than ever before in a single made this suggestion. eyes at the thought of not being permit-day. There's not a boy in the village We will not think of that. was seeking? I cannot help thinking of it, Edward. There is no person here, except your. ted to come near in his extremity. Do who can boast of having done so much. Therefore entreat me not to leave thee. self, whose name came near to the one not say that. Oh, take me to him! I However, he continued, I am not going for my own pleasure, but to urge father nor to return from following after thee. she mentioned. As you said you had will save his life, no friends in this country, we did not You must be very calm, said the to come home, Where thou goest, I will go. nurse; for it was with her she was talk- Ah, Tim, my boy, she replied, sadly, Marvel's countenance became more suppose that you were meant. No, no, And the sick man shook his ing. The least excitement may be I fear your errand will be fruitless. serious. It may be so, but I trust not-ay, oI Agnes, said the young man, after he head slowly. There is none to ask for fatal. am confident that it will not, had reflected for some time, let us talk mc. Did you say it was a young wh. Oh, I will be calm and prudent. no more about this. I cannot take you man ? he inquired, soon after. His mind Yet, even while she spoke, her frame Tim divested himself of his overcoat, quivered with excitement. But she and then sat down on a stool before the far away to this strange country. We dwelt on the occurrence. will go back to London. Perhaps any Yes. A young woman with a fair controlled herself when the moment of stove; placing his elbow on his knee, he meeting came, and, though her unex gazed intently into the fire. The bright other trial there may be more successful, complexion and deep blue eyes. After a feeble opposition on the part Marvel looked up quickly into the pected appearance produced a shock, blaze from the open hearth cast a flickof Agnes, it was finally agreed that Ed-face of the attendant, while a flush came it was salutary rather than injurious. ering light on the boy's face, and Mrs, My dear, dear Agnes i said Edward Logan watched anxiously its sad. weary ward should go once more to London, into his cheeks. while she made a brief visit to her pa- She was a slender young girl, with Marvel, a month from this time, as they expression, rents. If he found employment, she light hair, and her face was pale as from sat alone in the chamber of a pleasant Where is Julia? asked Tim, presenthouse in New York, I owe you my life. ly, rising from his seat. I had not was to join him immediately; if not suc-trouble. cessful, they were then to talk further Agnes! Agnes! exclaimed Marvel, But for your prompt resolution to fol-thought of her before. rising up. But no, no, he added, low me across the sea, I would in all Asleep. She has not felt well to day, of the journey to America. With painful reluctance, Agnes went mournfully, sinking back again upon probability, now be sleeping the sleep and it is best not to disturb her. back fo her father's house, the door of the bed; that cannot be. I left her far of death. Oh, what would I not suffer Slipping quietly into the next room, he paused before a bed on which lay a for your sake? which ever stood open to receive her; away over the wide ocean. and she went back alone. The pride of Will you write ? said the nurse, after As Marvel uttered the last sentence, delicate-looking girl. He bent forward a troubled expression flitted over his and imprinted a kiss on her hot and her husband would not permit him to some moments. cross the threshold of a dwelling where The invalid without unclosing his countenance. Agnes gazed tenderly flushed cheek. On returning to the kitchen, supper was announced, but the his presence was not a welcome one. In eyes, slowly shook his head. A little into his face, and asked, - eager suspense, she waited for a whole while the attendant lingered in the room Why this look of doubt and anxiety ? meal was eaten in silence, for the mo-Need I answer the question ? return. ther's thoughts were too sad for words. week ere a letter came from Edward, and then retired. Hands of true pressure, hearts more deep The tone of the letter was as cheerful Dear, dear Agnes! murmured Ed. ed the young man. It is, thus far, no At last Tim arose, tooktdown his hat and hopeful as it was possible for the ward Marvel, closing his eyes, and let. young man to write. But, as yet, he had found no employment. A week elapsed before another came. It opened with look on your sweet face again? Never these words: feel your light arms about my neck, or these kind friends of the burden of our -Julia and I. these words: MY DEAR, DEAR AGNES,-Hopeless of do your breath warm on my cheek? Oh support, yet no prospect opens.

Yes, mother, the sooner I go the

Her thoughts carried her back to the

STAR

WEEKLY ADVERTISER,

tors, ALEXANDER A. PARSONS and WIL-LIAM R. SQUAREY, at their Office, (op-- posite the premises of Capt. D. Green, Water Street, Harbor Grace, Newfound-manner calculated to afford the utmost

30 ... Moo Calculated f

FOLUME

RSEFUL

S. M.

3

17

23 24 2

10 | 1

2

9

16

NO

John's, Full Moon..... Last Quarter.

New Moon. . First Quarter.

Wholesale |

BREAD-Hambr

FLOUR-Canad:

28s. 0d

No. 1,

C., 22

O Love, is this the whole? Nay, wrap your everlasting years About my failing soul! The latest word you spake Beyond all time shall last— These only sleep before they wake-In Love there is no Past!

AM hopeless! said the young man, in a voice that was painfully delace much had Edward been at in a voice that was painfully de sea, when he became seriously indispossponding. Utterly hopeless ! Heaven |ed, and, for the remaining part of the knows I have tried hard to get employ-voyage, was so ill as to be unable to ment! But no one has need of my ser- raise from his berth. He had embarkvice. The pittance doled out by your ed in a packet ship from Liverpool, father, and which comes with a sense of bound for New York, where he arrived humiliation that is absolutely heart-at the expiration of five weeks. There I would not touch a shilling of your mo-would die. ney if I starved. Have you friends in this country ? in-

Hush, dear Edward ! returned the quired a nurse who was attending the gentle girl, who had left father, mother, young man. This question was asked on and a pleasant home, to share the lot the day after he had become an inmate spite of all efforts to prevent her, they with a sweet smile, as she brushed, with spair. of him she loved; and she laid a finger of the hospital.

on his lips, while she drew her arm None, was the feebly uttered reply. around him. You are very ill, said the nurse.

Agnes, said the young man, I cannot The sick man looked anxiously into endure this life much longer. The na- the face of his attendant. tive independence of my character re-You have friends in England? volts at our present condition. Months Yes. have elapsed, and yet the ability I pos-Have you any communication to make sess finds no employment. In this coun- to them?

south and west.

Yes.

quick, earnest voice.

try, every avenue is crowded. Marvel closed his eyes, and remained The room in which they were over-for some time silent.

looked the sea. But there is another land, where, if per, I will write a few lines, said he, at what we hear be true, ability finds em-length.

ployment and talent a sure reward. And, as Agness said this, in a voice effort, replied the nurse.

of encouragement she pointed from the Let me try, was briefly answered. window towards the expanse of waters The attendant left the room. Is there ony one in your part of the still lingering on the way. that stretched far away toward the house named Marvel? asked a physis!, America! The word was uttered in a cian, meeting the nurse soon after she mise; and, when you receive this, I will store.

and heart-sickness to the tender young creature, who felt almost as if she had,

been deserted by the one who was dear

have not yet experienced.

take place with a fulness of such as we close softly; but he did not look up. out right.

Edward!

left for one who cannot procure for you her head. even the plainest comforts of life, and I Are you certain? remarked the phywill cross the ocean to seek a better for-sician. tune in that land of promise. The se- I'm certain there's no one of that paration, painful to both, will not, I name for whom any here would make her.

trust, belong. Edward, replied the young wife, with man who came over in the last Liverpool packet had arrived with the will be very tired, and I'm sure my sup- A dvertisements inserted on the most lib enthusiasm, as she drew her arm more packet, whose name is something ship fever on board, and that several of per will please him. tightly about his neck. I will never like that you mention. But he has no the passengers had been removed to the Soon well-known footsteps were heard. eral terms, viz. :- Per square of seven. teen lines, for first insertion, $1; each hospital. leave thee nor forsake thee! Where friends in this country. continuation 25 cents. the door opened, and a good-looking, thou goest I will go, where thou liest I The physician passed on, without fur- A thrill of fear went through the sturdy young man entered the room. will lie, Thy people shall be my people ther remark. and thy God my God. Soon after the nurse returned to Mar- ascertained that Marvel had been a pas great flakes of snow. BRIGUS..... " W. Horwood. Would you forsake all, said Edward, vel with the writing materials for which senger on board of this vessel : but, from The lips of the woman parted with a Bay Roberts.......... " R. Simpson. will be to you, Edward, No, no, Agnes ! I will not think of Have you a wife at home ? asked th presentiment that he was either dead nearly ready, ing anything here, I have turned my that I had never left you! Heaven No cloud came stealing darkly over sooner I shall be able to come back. If you are determined to go, said Mrs. thoughts once more to the land of pro-give thee strength to bear the trouble in the face of the young wife. The sunshine, so far from being dimmed was Logan, promise me that you will not go be on my journey thitherward. Brief, very brief, I trust, will be our separation. For many minutes he lay, there alone, brighter. to Lucas Wright's saloon.

The moment I obtain employment, I will with his eyes closed in sad self-commu. Let not your heart be troubled, said I-I-don't- No, mother, I will send for you, and then our reunion will nion. Then he heard the door open and she, with a beautiful smile. All will come not.

Thank you, Tim; it will be a great

His thoughts were far, far away. Light Bight, Agnes? It is not right for me relief to me. Long, tender, and hopeful was the let feet approached quickly; but he scarce to depend on strangers. Except, he continued, hesitatingly, it ter; but it brought a burden of grief but his eyes remained shut, nor did he longer. I have already made warm In that case, my dear boy, give me open them until whrm lips were pressed friends here, and, through them, se-your promise not to drink. I know you against his own, and a low voice, thril-cured you employment. A good place have acquired an appetite for liquor, awaits you as soon as strength to fill it and my earnest prayer shall ever be that you may not know the sad fate of your comes back to your weakened frame.

Agnes! was his quick response, while Angel! exclaimed the young man, erring father. his arms were thrown eagerly around overcome with emotion at so unexpected The promise was freely given, and the mother listened to the quick strides the neck of his wife. Agnes ! Agnes ! a declaration. Have I awakened from a fearful dream? No, not an angel, calmly replied of her boy as he crossed the piazza. Yes, it was indeed her of whom he Agnes, only a wife, And now, dear Then she turned brek to her work humhad been thinking. The moment she Edward, she added, neves again, in any ming the tune of some familiar song received his letter, informing her that extremity, think for a moment of meet-with which she had so often filled the crushing, is scarcely sufficient to pro- he was removed to the sick wards of the he had left for the United States, she ing trials or enduring privations alone. air with music in the happy days of the vide this miserable abode, and keep hun-bospital on Statan Island, and it was the ger from our door. But for your sake, opinion of the physicians there that he I would not touch out of the physicians there that he immediately avowed to her parents. At by your side.

first, they would not listen to her; but Angel! Yes, you are my good angel, sadness, and though the strain was full of harmony, she continued it only to finding that she would, most probably, repeated Edward. elude their vigilance, and get away in Call me what you will, said Agnes drive away a sense of loneliness and de-deemed it more wise and prudent to her delicate had, the hair from his provide her with everything necessary temples, but let me be your wife. for the voyage, and to place her in the ask no better name, no higher station.

which she was to go. In New York they had friends, to whom they gave her letters fully explanatory of her mistheir care and protection.

ling through his whole being. said,-

I happy days of her childhood, when she was allowed to roam at will through field and forest, her merry laughter care of the captain of the steamship in ringing with joyousness as she revelled Over the River. in the beauties and mysteries of nature.

Then, when she was scarcely eight years of age, her mother died, leaving sion, and earnestly commending her to WOMAN, somewhat pale, and her alone in the world. Having no bearing evidence of much toil and home she was taken to the poor-house, Two weeks before the ship in which suffering, yet about whose face was a where she remained two years. At that Edward Marvel'sailed reached her des- beaming radiance of joy and rare sweet- time a well-to-do merchant was favor-If you will get me a pen and some pa- tination, Agnes was in New York. Be- ness of expression, stood before a cheer- ably struck with her winsom ways and fore her departure, she had sought but ful fire in the kitchen of a country home. sparkling blue eyes, and concluded to in vain, to discover the name of the There was something in her bearing adopt her. I'm afraid you are too weak for the vessel in which her husband had em that told of a sunny nature, a warm [CONCULDED IN OUR NEXT.]

barked. On arriving in the New World heart, a gentle disposition, despite all she was therefore uncertain whether he the cares and misfortunes which it had had preceded ner in a steamer, or was been her fate to suffer. There was an ease and grace in the appearance of Mrs.

The friends to whom Agnes brought Logan which alweys caused her pres- AND CONCEPTION BAY SEMIletters received her with great kindness ence to bring sunshine and joy to those had left the sick man's room. There's and gave her all the advice and as about her. She had just completed the Is printed and published by the Propriea young woman down in the office in-sistance needed under the circumstances. arrangement of her tea-table, and was But two weeks, went by without a contemplating whether she could add Agnes, I thank you for this sugges-tion! Return to the pleasant home you Marvel—Marvel? The nurse shook But two weeks, went by without a contemplating whether she could add word of intelligence on the one subject any more to her alrendy inviting little that absorbed her every thought. Sadly meal. Presently, leaving her position was her health beginning to suffer before the fire, she walked to the win- Book and Job Printing executed in a Sunken eyes and pale cheeks attested dow and peared out into the darkners. the weight of suffering that was on I wonder why he does not come, she mused. It is getting late, and he certainly Price of Subscription-THREE DOLLARS pe One day it was announced that a cannot see to work now. I know he annum, payable half-yearly. inquiries. There's a young English.

land.

satisfaction.

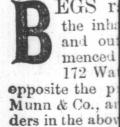

THE

Extra, Superime No. 2 CORN MEAL-20 OATMEAL-Cana PEASE- 223. BUTTER-Canad to 1s 2d. CHEESE-10 d HAM-9d. to 1 PORK-Ext.a 90s to 9: BEEF-37s 6d t LARD-Ame.108 KUM-per lmp. MOLASSE :- 2s. SUGAR-Mu-co RICE-21s to 22 COFFEE-Green TEA-Congou broken fair to TOBACCO-ls. 7 KEROSENE OIL-LEATHER-Ame CORDAGE-per c SALT-per hid.

COD OIL, £36. Cepfish-Large 21s; Sn West Inc

Exchange on Nova Scotia, ted States Gold

WAT JAME Tin, Copy

despatch, hopin business to me onage.

J 0Done at the c

Dec. 13.

HAR PAU BA

THE Ladies' request th who have kind to the above ob forward them, s ceived at the l

