A Freeze Out.

When we made our remarks yesterday about the picnic Chief's meeting at Channel we were relying solely on the campaign report in the Daily News. We dealt largely with the burning topics of the hour of which no mention appears to have been made by the reporter of the meeting, and it was therefore a fair inference that Sir Edward Morris avoided dealing with them. Proof of the accuracy of our surmise came to hand yesterday, but too late for publication. A perusal of the report of our correspondent at Channel will convince the impartial reader of this. Our correspondent reports that the meeting was well attended but very cold. In other words, the people put the picnic Chief in the cold storage about which he talks so much and does so little. Our reporter states:—

"There was no enthusiasm displayed over the Premier's speech delivered in his customary ponderous style. His pet follies, the railway and agricultural policies were his chief themes, but he forgot to explain the Coaker Memorial, Morison forgetting the law, the $40,000 in the St. George's Lumber Co.; why second class passengers only are vaccinated at Port aux Basques, and why he turned down the petitions of the P. P. U. for an election the coming fall and many other matters which would have been more interesting than two blades of grass, hills white with sheep, and linen factories orations of other years. Channel is now to have when convenient, a new public building, a main line connecting road to Rose Blanche, and numberless other local improvements."

The Premier is out campaigning. He is trying to turn the tide which is running high against him and his administration in the District of Burgeo and LaPole just as it is in other districts. He is promising the moon. But the people have been bitten once and now they are shy of his promises, and will not be taken in again. He might as well save his breath to cool his porridge, for what good his talk will do him and his party.

NEARLY FINISHED.—The work of erecting the tower on St. Patrick's Church will be finished about three weeks hence. It will be a splendid piece of architecture.

Mr. Arthur Wheeler Writes.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—A glaring account of a supposed infanticide appeared in the Herald, in which the writer works out slanders and casts reflection on an unfortunate young girl. He also slanders the mother by saying the girl's own birth was unenviable. Again he brings up the name of a young man Collins, who was drowned on the "Erna," he points him as a scoundrel and connects him with the death of the girl Field sometime ago. Now what did he know about Collins' intentions when the poor fellow was drowned. He could not carry out his plans regarding the girl, since the loss of the "Erna." This girl, no doubt, is somewhat demented, yet she was too carefully watched at the institution where she was placed to do harm to her child and the fact of Dr. MacPherson saying and proving it died from natural causes ought to stop such a report from entering the struggling yellow rag that gave such a glaring report. A worse case came under notice the other day. Yet there was no glaring account, but in the case of this girl Wheeler the Herald knew she had respectable brothers and sisters, therefore they wanted to make them feel it. The same applies to the friends of the man Collins and Field. Perhaps they are right and perhaps both the friends of the young man Collins and the friends of the girl will keep a lookout for some of these reporters in time to come. A libel suit for ten thousand dollars will also be looked into for defamation of the character of the mother of the young girl, and also for slandersous abuse and dragging down the name of the dead young man Collins. The Herald didn't reason with this when they published that glaring account of what will prove a pitiful mistake in a few days time. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for space, I am,
Sincerely yours,
ARTHUR WHEELER.

In the June issue of The Monthly Cyclopaedia and Medical Bulletin of Philadelphia, edited by Charles E. de M. Sajons, M.D., L.L.D., appears the following:—

"Many physicians have come to realize that caffeine, as daily consumed in coffee and tea, has much to do with the causation of many annoying ailments that formerly were obscurely diagnosed and vaguely treated. It stands to reason that this alkaloid, when taken in daily doses of six or more grains, must exert a harmful action on the nervous, circulatory, and digestive systems. Its action must also modify the action of other drugs prescribed by the physicians."

"Postum," the well known cereal beverage, made of clean hard wheat and a small percentage of molasses, has been the means of effecting an easy change from coffee and its harmful stimulant—caffeine—to a wholesome, harmless, nourishing beverage."

Eminent analysts such as Prof. J. W. Mallet of the University of Virginia, have proven that a cup of coffee (only three-fifths coffee and the rest milk) contains about 2½ grains of caffeine.

A Government report issued April 4th, this year, from the Bureau of Chemists shows that the deadly coffee drug, caffeine, administered in small doses, caused the death of cats, dogs, rabbits and guinea pigs in a few hours.

GAME AND FISHERY LAWS.

Last month R. P. Hittach, of Nain, Labrador, was tried before the Magistrate on the Stella Maria, for a breach of the Game Laws, namely, catching beaver out of season. He was convicted and fined $50 and costs.

For a similar offence a resident of Macovik was also fined $50 and costs.

About a fortnight ago James Murphy, of Marytown, was convicted for setting a salmon net across Tides Brook, Mortier Bay, and was fined $25 and costs.

Morwenia Back.

The Black Diamond Liner Morwenia, Capt. Holmes, 7 days from Montreal via Gulf ports, arrived here at 6 a. m. to-day. Favourable weather was met the whole way along. The steamer reached Sydney on Sunday last and the same day the City of Sydney went ashore at the entrance to Sydney Harbor, left for Montreal.

The Morwenia brought one half cargo and as passengers:—Miss McGower, E. J. Pratt, H. C. Mott, J. D. McCauley, W. Tatley, A. Scott, C. E. Cuddaback, C. E. Cuddaback, Jr., A. M. Cuddaback, A. M. Sensational Books Lead To Crime.

LONDON, July 17.—Some form of literary censorship is bound to be set up in Britain before long, if the police courts go on accumulating evidence of the close connection between the cheap sensational story juvenile crime.

The latest testimony to this connection comes from London east end, where four youths, implicated in a street shooting affray were punished by the magistrate. Under the ring leader's pillow was found a "Deadwood Dick" book. These stories are sold by the million, and there is a growing movement on foot to stem this torrent of poisonous point by heavily penalizing the publishers. The authorities, however are waiting for a wave of popular indignation before they take action.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.
Gentlemen.—In June, 98, I had my hand and wrist bitten and badly mangled by a vicious horse. I suffered greatly for several days and the tooth refused to heal until your agent gave me a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT, which I began using. The effect was magical; in five hours the pain had ceased and in two weeks the wounds had completely healed and my hand and arm were as well as ever.
Yours truly,

Treasure Trove.

A young man recently got married and took a cottage, determined to grow enough vegetables to keep the household going. He started to dig up the garden, and after half an hour's hard work was astonished to find a sovereign at his feet. Then he dug with renewed ardor. Several pennies, a sixpence and halfcrown rewarded his efforts.

"Blow me if this ain't a bloomin' gold mine!" he said, digging away for all he was worth. "I wonder what I'll find next."

His arms ached, little bead of perspiration trickled down his nose and his neck felt as though it was breaking. He could stick to it no longer. He straightened his back at last with a groan of pain, and at the same instant felt something cold sliding down his leg. In a moment he had grasped the truth. There was a hole in his trousers pocket!

A True Story of the Queen

Queen Mary was lately at a picture gallery in Bond Street. It was an unexpected visit and few people were there. As she walked round one of the rooms she saw an old lady sitting down, remembered her, went up and spoke to her.

The lady was puzzled, and said she remembered her face, but could not recollect her name. Queen Mary replied, "My name is 'Mary,' but the people call me 'Mary.' " Then the old lady rose to her feet, and made her curtsy, realizing at once that she was talking with her Majesty.

Suggestions From a Mining Engineer

St. John's, N. F.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—Having just returned from Newfoundland, where I have been engaged in examining and mining properties, it occurred to me that a few words or suggestions from an outsider might be of material assistance for furthering the advancement and development of the mining resources of your Island, and it is this reason I take the liberty of proaching you with the view of publishing these few remarks in your valued paper.

From my personal observations, am thoroughly convinced that Newfoundland possesses deposits of economic minerals, both from a standpoint of quality as well as quantity. But, such resources will not be developed for years to come unless the Department of Mines takes the matter up in a conscientious and scientific manner.

It is a well-known fact that a prospector does not enter a country until he is able to obtain sufficient data and statistics dealing upon various sections of the said country. Therefore, it rests with the Department of Mines to inaugurate a geological survey, which, in turn, will out expeditions under the guidance of fully qualified technical men to thoroughly explore the country, both from a geological and mineralogical standpoint during the summer months. Various members of the aforementioned expeditions would then compile their respective reports and compile all geological maps, charts, etc., for publication.

With data of such a nature, a prospector does something tangible work upon, and would very soon discover mineral deposits of value. Furthermore, upon discovery of same, a capitalist would then enter the field.

At the present time the Department of Mines does neither possess an up-to-date report upon the mineral resources of Newfoundland, nor a geological map of the same country.

I had occasion to write to the Department of Mines, St. John's, some few weeks ago, requesting it to send me the most recent data relative to the mineral resources of Newfoundland. In reply to same, all I received was a small pamphlet dealing with them in a very general and hazy manner, but contained no details of importance, such as would be of value to an engineer or anyone interested.
