Germany's Difficult Game With Submarines

It will be remembered that the Germans have been working might and main to induce the American Government to prevent American firms and citizens from supplying Britain and her allies with contraband goods. The American answer was that the American market was open to Germany and her allies, and that it would be unneutral for the American Government to put an embargo on the export of contraband. By international law, the same remedy was available to Germany as to Britain. It was open to her to search neutral ships for contraband. If either belligerent was unable to utilize the way recognized by international law, that was the fortunes of war, but that was no reason why the American Government should commit unneutral and unfriendly acts to one belligerent side. Germany has threatened to use submarines to do not afford an effective British mercantile marine, but submarines do not afford an effective means of searching a ship either as to its ownership or as to its cargo, and now Admiral Renche says that Germany is prepared to suggest to the United States an even freer and safer method of passage for American ships bound either through the Channel or to English ports, namely, that several American warships should wait in some port on the southwest coast of Ireland, and when communicated with by wireless by an American merchantman, one of them should proceed to the place indicated and convey the merchantman through that portion of the sea which, Germany, following the example of Great Britain, has declared to be dangerous.

"Of course," said the Admiral, "ships under convoy, by the rules of international law, are not subject to search, but the country to which they belong is upon its honor, as it were, to see that they do not carry contraband of war."

"American warships have distinctive masts and are well known to officers of the German navy, and either by night or day they and the vessels under their convoy would be respected by German submarines."

This is a device to obtain the assistance of the American Government to conduct effective warfare by German submarines on the non-combatant seamen and passengers of Britain and her allies. It is a suggestion that the American Government shall aid German submarines in their impossible task of identifying ships, so that the German submarines can conduct a war of piracy on the non-combatants of their enemies. It is also another way of obtaining the aid of the American Government in limiting the export of contraband from America to Germany's enemies. We should imagine America will treat the suggestion with the scorn it deserves.

RUSSIANS BOMBARD PRZEMYSL.

GENEVA, To-day. A despatch from Cracow says that the Russians have begun bombarding Przemyśl with new and heavy artillery and that they have driven the Austrians back along the line of Kronejasko Gorlice. The Austrians are reported to have suffered heavy losses in the past three days at Wyszow near Dukla Pass.

MARINE INSURANCE RAISED.

NEW YORK, To-day. Marine insurance has been raised but slightly here as a result of the German war zone decree. Rates to English points, which several days ago were quoted at one per cent, have been advanced only to 1 1/4 per cent. Insurance on shipments to Rotterdam is quoted at 1 1/4 per cent, and similar quotations prevail on cargoes to French ports. There has been rather a heavy advance in rates to the River Plate because of reported sinking of five ships by the auxiliary cruiser Kronprinz Wilhelm. Rates have gone up from 1 1/2 to 2 per cent. Six liners with many passengers and large cargoes are leaving port to-day for Europe. Their course will bring them within zone of German submarines.

DEFEAT GREATER THAN WAS AT FIRST THOUGHT.

LONDON, To-day. The Morning Post in a despatch from Alexandria says refugees brought here by the warship Tennessee state that the defeat of the Turks at the Suez Canal was more serious even than has been thought. Jemal Pasha is said to be discouraged, and has stated his intention to abandon the invasion of Egypt unless a new army is forthcoming.
