Queries on Prices

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to ask a few questions regarding the free entry of some articles which come into effect in the early part of the present season. What was the duty on Kero Oil? Was Kero Oil previously admitted duty free in wood containers? The quotations on this article to-day are 28½ cents in wood, and 26½ in sheet containers. This is a reduction of one cent on the former and three cents on the latter, which would indicate that 3 cents per gallon was the duty unless oil in wood was formerly admitted free, then we must conclude that oil has dropped in the foreign market one cent, and that two cents was the duty collected, if the consumer is getting the full benefit of free entry. Are the consumers getting the full benefit of free entry on pork and beef, if so, how is it that the prices are as high as before the duty was taken off. Will some person explain? Regarding molasses which I understand is not on the free list, I have before me a circular from a Halifax firm dated August 1924. Quoting choice grocery molasses at 33 cents per gallon in barrels F.O.B. Halifax. Some date molasses was selling in St. John's by barrel at 90 cents a gallon. Later in the year when St. John's importers were asking 35 cents per gallon by the puncheon for grocery. The Montreal market was quoting 50 cents per gallon wholesale for same quality. No doubt there is a good reason for this difference in price and I shall be glad if some person will give an explanation.

Yours truly,

Enjoyable Time at Hampden

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your much esteemed paper to publish the following:—

On the 14th of April a very enjoyable time was given the people of Hampden, White Bay, by the C. E. W. A. Soup suppers were served at No. 2 Staff House from 4 to 7 p.m. A concert was held immediately after in Mr. H. J. Crowe's school, which occupied the time until 10:30 p.m., after which tea was served until daylight. The concert was held under the management of Mr. G. S. Woodford, C. of E. teacher. Mr. Jas. Evans, proprietor of No. 2 Staff House, acted as chairman. Amongst the large number who attended were Mr. F. Pearce, C. of E. Catechist; Mr. E. C. Crowe, manager of White Bay operations; Dr. and Mrs. MacKeen, and Miss May Lowrie, principal of Mr. H. J. Crowe's school.

On the whole a very enjoyable time was spent and the people of Hampden and vicinity are looking forward to another such time in the near future.

Dun's Review for Week Ending April 25

Wholesale Prices.

The wholesale commodity markets are still featured by an excess of declines, 47 out of the 68 changes that appear this week in the list of quotations compiled by Dun's Review being in a downward direction. In last week's statement, there were 43 reductions and 25 increases; in a similar record for the corresponding week of last year, 59 recessions contrasted with 25 advances.

Under a better export demand and a falling off in visible supplies, some advances were made this week by wheat and corn, and, largely owing to the strength of these cereals, oats, rye and barley moved to higher levels. Liberal offering had a depressing effect on live beef, sheep and hogs, while provisions were easier, reflecting the situation in the raw material. Butter was in active demand and the better grades scored a substantial advance, but increasing receipts were responsible for more or less concession in eggs and fresh-made cheese.

Price Declines Still Predominate.
For thirteen consecutive weeks, declines have predominated in Dun's list of wholesale quotations. Fully twice as many reductions as increases occurred this week, 47 of the 68 changes being in a downward direction. Easing in the metal markets was again a prominent phase, with lower prices for pig iron, various steel products, copper, lead and zinc. The two latter commodities have reached the lowest levels of this year. Comparisons of present prices with those of a year ago show declines in many instances, including a number of textiles and most of the metals. A feature during the last two months has been the sharp break in wool, an average of 98 quotations having fallen more than 17 per cent, since about the middle of February.

Fundy Tides

WILL SOME DAY PRODUCE ELECTRICAL ENERGY.

Dexter P. Cooper, hydro-electric engineer in charge of the proposed tidal power development of Passamaquoddy Bay, relative to which a bill now is pending before the legislature of Maine, declared in an address before a large gathering of Rotarians at Calais, Maine, that with the proper support from the United States, Canada and the state, he could interest capital in both United States and abroad as the proposal is an "international banking problem and will bring new capital into the state of Maine."

Five thousand men would be employed for four years in construction, he said.

"The question of tidal power is one which has been heard for a long time and has interested people ever since they had use of tidal power mills," Mr. Cooper said.

"The use of electricity is becoming so universal that its production is becoming a matter of concern to all. There are to-day 26,000,000 homes in the United States and 50 per cent. of these homes are using one form or another of electric power. Utah leads with 98 per cent. of the homes equipped, while the state of Maine is one of the ten with a percentage of 66. Electricity in industry is so general that it is hardly necessary to speak of its many uses.

A FISHERMAN'S HOPES.

I've been tinkering with my reel,
Shined up every bit of steel,
Looked my tackle over, too,
Added just a few things new;
And I'm ready now to go
Fishing in a week or so.

Wondering how they'll bite this year
As I'm sitting dreaming here;
Will it be my luck to get
Some old timer in my net,
One that I can drag about
When at last I've played him out?

Here I'm sitting wondering
What's ahead of me this spring.
Am I going to know the thrill
Of a catch some day which will Prove to all the angling clan
I'm a worth-while fisherman?

Years are good and years are bad,
There are times when luck I've had,
Times when I was grieved to say
Many a big one got away.
But with hope I'm sitting here
Waiting for another year.

for murder, he had already been sentenced to twenty-five years' imprisonment in the Federal Prison at Atlanta for a mail robbery. Now efforts are being made to discover if the law requires him to serve the balance of his former sentence before paying the penalty for the murder he committed.

It is one of those amazing opera bouffe developments that cause strangers to wonder what principles lie behind the administration of law in the United States. Of course the law has really nothing to do with it. The law has said its say, and leaves the execution of its mandate to the responsible officials. But the American passion for precedents prompts this investigation—by the authorities of the Federal Department of Justice, be it noted—to discover of any warrant exists for delaying the execution of the condemned man for a mere twenty odd years.

Should such a precedent finally be unearthed,—and anything is possible in such case,—then a very great step will have been taken to facilitate a campaign of murder throughout the United States. All a murderously inclined bandit will require to do is to get himself sentenced to a life term in some State, get out on bail pending an appeal, go ahead merrily with his murder, and then return for the hearing of the appeal, confident that his neck is safe. It is a prospect that would have attracted the close attention of the late W. S. Gilbert, and the late Arthur Sullivan would undoubtedly have discovered some illustrative thing melody that would set off a essentially bizarre and diverting theme.

But there will be a tremendous increase in the sale of revolvers to 50 per cent. Americans if the condemned bandit continued to live at Atlanta at the public expense.—Montreal Star
