She was silent.

"One question more, Juliana. Can you ter this believe it possible to live happly by his side?"

She thought of his frankness, of his unselfishness and of his unwearied devotion to her at all times. She had never treated him as he deserved to be treated at her hands. She had too frequently at her hands. She had too frequently behaved in a wayward, exacting, impatient and unkind manner towards him; and all that she felt now was that she ad never truly cared for him. No, the an she truly cared for was standing side her at this very instant, and him, d no other, would she wed.

"What shall we do?" she by-and-by deanded. "No Vaughan." she added, after pause; "I could not now endure a life ent by Deacon Prynne's side. He is od—oh, so good! Yet I feel that I would her walk into a living grave than ome his wife."

they talked in this strain until the y of the storm had gone by; then, ingly clasped arm-in-arm, they to-ther bent their stetps in a homeward ection. They walked slowly onward, hough the rain was gently falling, their garments through and rough.

As the pair entered the house they were met by Mrs. Prynne. "Ah, what did I say?" cried she. "Did I not warn you that a sterm was approaching?"
"Well, but, mother, you see we are here again, uninjured." responded Vaughan.

for the next week.'
Whilst this was being said Juliana glided past Mrs. Prynne, crossed the wide hall, and hurried upstairs.

CHAPTER VI "And you were out in that terrible storm with Juliana, our mother tells me, Vaughan?" Deacon began, at breakast on the following morning. Yes, answered the younger brother,

"Yes, answered the younger brother, flushing painfully.

"And how did you behave, Juliana?"
Deacon proceeded. "I know how alarmed you are at thunder."

"Yes; I know I am a great coward in most things," she admitted, awkwardly, and looking much confused.

most things," she admitted, awkwardly, and looking much confused.

Not a word did either she or Vaughan say regarding their danger, and their wonderful escape from a frightful death. They both kept their own counsel most religiously.

Deacon was in high spirits, but Vaughan and Juliana, who had always hitherto been so full of gaiety, were now strangely silent and thoughtful.

On the evening of that same day, before the ladies had retired for the night, Deacon laid his hand on his brother's shoulder, saying, "Come with me, dear boy," and led him into the library.

When the brothers were seated the elder of the two commenced. When the brothers were seated the elder of the two commenced.
"Vaughan," he began kindly—
"Vaughan, my dear fellow, as I am soon.

to become a married man, and lead a new existence, I feel it necessary to ar-range all my affairs before that event range all my affairs before that event takes place. Before I take fresh duties upon myself, I must dispatch my old ones. Now my greatest duty is towards yourself. I wish to make arrangements for your future. I know you have squandered your property; but we will not talk about that now. You shall not be dependent upon anyone's bounty, for I will place you beyond all need. not talk about that how. For shall not be dependent upon anyone's bounty, for I will place you beyond all need. You know that I am rich; and that by of inheritance when your father dies all Cylandow will be mine. You did not know what took me to town yesterday? Weil, It was to pay a visit to my lawyer, who has executed a deed, in which I transfer the estate of Glenowen to you and your heirs forever."

And with these words Deacon handed a document to his brother, who looked at it with astonishment and ambarrassment. A crimson flush overspread his whole countenance, and deeply moved by his brother's noble behavior, he seized his hand and warmly pressed it between his own.

"My kind, good brother!" he exclaimed. "Oh, this is too much, Deacon! I

"My kind, good brother!" he exclaimed. "Oh, this is too much, Deacon! I am an extravagant fellow, and don't deterve this generosity at your hands. Take back your gift. I cannot, I dare not accept it!"

The other smiled.
"Why, Vaughan." answered he, would you have me think that you would not have acted as I have acted, had you been wealthier than myself? Or have you such an over-estimation of wealth that you condemn me for giving you this handsome property? Oh, Vaughan, I am so rich, and so immeasurably happy, that I feel I could bestow upon you the half of what I possess. Think of the treasure I shall soon possesss in Juliana!"

Vaughan cast his eyes upon the ground, and his heart felt like lead in his breast. Oh, what had he done? He had robbed his noble-souled brother of that which he most prized on earth—the love of Juliana! What was he to do? Vaughan felt his affection for Juliana melt away into nothingness, when he remembered how he had deceived and wronged his brother. These thoughts bleached Vaughan's cheeks, and made him bow his head with shame.
"What is the matter with you, Vaughan?" inquired Deacon, unsuspectingly.

"Oh, brother, forgive me!" the young-

WARM WELCOME!

Sir Thomas Lipton Receives a Flattering Reception at New York.

London Bowlers Meet Defeat in the Toronto Tournament ---Strathroy Defeated by London Ball Team.

YACHTING.

LIPTON'S ARRIVAL. New York, Aug. 22. — Sir Thomas Lipton, owner of Shamrock II., challenger for the America's cup, arrived in this city at 8 o'clock last evening. He met with the most cordial American reception indeed. The steamship Teutonic, on which he was a passen-ger, received one continuous ovation from Sandy Hook to her dock. Sir Thomas and his party landed at 8 o'clock, and were driven to the Waldorf-Astoria for dinner. This morning he took up his quarters on the steam yacht Erin, now anchored off Stapleton. Included in the party of Sir Thomas were Mr. George Lennox Wat-son, designer of the Shamrock; Hon. Charles Russell, who will represent the Royal Ulster Yacht Club on the American cup defender; Mr. J. B. Hillyard, a prominent Clyde yachtsman; Mr. C. O'Malley, Mr. John Westwood, and W. M. Duncan, Sir Thomas comes to America for his second attempt to lift the cheerful and resolute. He had this to say to the newspaper correspondents: "I am thoroughly delighted to be again in America, and should be ungrateful if I did not say that I am thoroughly pleased with the reception that has already been given me. I think I can do better this time, for I have in Shamrock II. a boat at least nine minutes faster over a 30-mile course than the Shamrock I., and the old boat during the trials on the other side was certainly 5 to 10 minutes faster than when she raced in America in 1899. At any rate, we expect to make a good race against the American defender, whether she be Constitution or Columbia. I am hoping for a good breeze during the races, for certainly Shamrock II. shall be thoroughly satisfied that the better boat has won, for I have a good opinion of American sportsmanship, and the fairness of the New York Yacht Club, under whose auspices the races are held. My recolusive won an enjoyable time. WON AT AYLMER.

In a friendly game at Aylmer bowlers won easily. Aylmer bowlers entertained the Londoners regally, and in addition to fine sport, the visitors had a most enjoyable time. The score:

Aylmer something better than a light wea-er boat. Whatever the outcome, I lection of my attempt to lift the cup two years ago is altogether a pleas-ant one, and I hope to cement the friendship then so happily begun." The only thing that Sir Thomas has to criticise on American yachting is the rule of measurement. Sir Thomas and Designer Watson hope to see the races at Oyster Bay today between the Constitution and Columbia. The Teutonic was sighted about 4:30 east of Sandy Hook lightship. The news of her probable arrival, about it again, uninjured," responded Vaughan.

"Uninjured," exceed the old lady; "and you both dripping wet. I'll warrant I shall have you both laid up with colds for the next week."

O Clock, had already been confidenced by the Lipton fleet at anchor off Stapleton. Preparations were at once made to give Sir Thomas a cordial greeting. The Shamrock II., flying Sir for the next week." o'clock, had already been communicat Thomas Lipton's private signal at her tall pole masthead, and the blue ensign of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club at her stern, was all ready at sundown to take her first trial spin in American waters. At 6:25, when the Teutonic passed up the bay bearing the yacht's owner, and her designer, George L. Watson, the 39 men of her crew and Capt. Sycamore lined up on the starboard side, and gave three hearty cheers. The old cannon that served rence barked its welcome from the Ocean Yacht Club, and Commodore Wigand, of the Staten Island Yacht Club. whose float stage has been tendered to the Lipton fleet, ordered a salute fired in honor of the Shamrock's owner.

A woman has a right to be positive on matters which are matters of personal knowledge and experience. Every wom-an who has used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for diseases of the womanly organs is positive as to its wonderful curative value, and confidently recom-

"Several years ago I suffered severely from female weakness, prolapsus, and menorrhagia, and used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription with splendid effect," writes Fannie Shelton, of Washington, Iowa. "Glad I have not needed it for a few years past, but if I should have any return of the old trouble would surely try 'Favorite Prescription.' I have recommended it to a number of my lady friends. I always tell them to try a bottle, and if they are not benefited by it I will pay for the medicine. In every case they have spoken in praise of it."

CITY VS. COUNTY. The city police and the constables of the county went down to Springbank yesterday, and played, what they in their innocence, called baseball. Before the game, each side had the idea that the other fellows were not one two, three in sports, and in the classic words of one of the chief's men, they wanted to "make a mess" of their op ponents. Well, the city men won, but Verma K. as far as that goes, each side succeeded, at some point in the game in causing the other players to feel a sneaking desire to take to the tall timbers. As long as they play as they did yesterday the 7-year-old Swatters of South Street and the Bulldog Nine of Finnegan's Flats can still be chesty-they're not by any means the frailest followers of the great Powers and mighty Goldsmith that live in this beautiful Forest City. It is not the purpose of this great self-respecting daily to go into the ghastly details of that performance. A long-suffering and slowto-anger public allows us a generous limit—but we desist. It suggests a whole lot, though to say that Ben Waterworth and Bob Black were in the box, and if the oldest inhabitant tries hard he may remember that even in his youthful days the aforementioned twain were showing the kids how not to pitch. If it hadn't been for the infusion of hot young blood in the per-sons of Frank Love and Tom Robson the story of that game would be a sad tale, indeed.

A matter-of-fact statement—on outline merely—is contained in the score below, but it never even hints at the wild throws, the lack of judgment, the unspeakable mistakes, the—but here's the score, read it, and, with a powerful imagination, throw in all the side

STRATHROY WAS EASY. Strathroy, Aug. 22. — The London ex-Canadian League baseball team had the easiest kind of a job in defeating the Strathroy team yesterday after noon. After eight innings had been played, the game was called, with the score 23 to 1. Near the end of the game a number of the London players de-liberately allowed themselves to be thrown out. Harrison began to do the twirling for the Strathroys, but at no time were any of his benders hard to solve. Lucas was called in to complete the game, and did considerably better. Strathroy secured their only tally in the last inning. With one man out a steal of second produced their single run. The ball got away from Lee, who covered the bag, and before it could be recovered, the man had crossed the rubber. Wan-less pitched an excellent game for London and was given good support. The batteries were: Harrison, Lucas and Macbeth, and Wanless and Gunn.

FLYS. The Barracks wam play the City Hotel nine this evening. The Dorchester baseball team easily defeated the Delaware nine in a very snappy five-inning game of ball at Springbank on Tuesday afternoon. The game was called for 3 o'clock, but the Delawares failed to put in an appearance until 4:30, consequently the game was called in the fifth inning on account of rain and awarded to Dorchester, the score being 3 to 5 in favor of the latter. The feature of the game was the brilliant pitching of Marsh. The Barracks club were defeated by a team from Messrs. Bradford & Hessel's last evening, in a five-inning game, by a score of 4 to 2. The score:

MADE A TRACK RECORD. Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 22.-W. J. Arkell's filly, Belle of Lexington, broke the track record for six furlongs yesterday afternoon. She covered the distance in 1:12%, the previous record being 1:12½, made by Voter two years ago. Belle of Lexington's weight was but 95 pounds, and aided by her light impost, she went to the front early in the race and won easily by lengths from Chuctumunda, who was shut off on the back stretch and made up a lot of ground. W. C. Whitney scored a double triumph in the Grand Union Hotel stakes, in which his 2year olds, King Hanover and Goldsmith, finished first and second re-

RACING AT TORONTO. Toronto, Aug. 22.—The first annual race meeting of the Toronto Driving Club was held at Dufferin Park yesterday on the half-mile track. There was an attendhalf-mile track. There was an attendance of about 1,200, and the races were close. Three events were on the cardthe 2:50 pace, 2:50 trot and half-mile running. Capt. Andy won the 2:50 pace in straight heats. In the first heat Madison J. ran away and jumped the fence, carrying along the buggy, too. The driver was not hurt. The best races was the 2:50 trot. Expelled won the first two heats, and then Maude took the next three, with exciting finishes. The time in the third heat, 2:25½, is a track record. For the half-mile running, Wilfrid Laurier, the favorite, went lame in the first heat and was withdrawn.

be a consolidation of Canadian racing Railways and Navigation interests next season. Consequently two meetings will not be in progress at the same time in Canadian territory. The scheme contemplates a union with the interests which control the Windsor race track, opposite Detroit, and the Highland Park Jockey Club, which operates the Fort Erie track across the river from Buffalo, as well as the Highland Park Plant in Detroit. Last year Windsor and Highland Park ran in opposition to each other, and the result was disastrous to both associations, as is bound to be the case where there is not a population anywhere near enough to support two meetings at the same time. That mistake has not been made this year. While there is no longer any feeling between the Highland Park Jockey Club and the new Windsor. Racing Association, Windsor and Fort Erie have clashed this season. Though there has not been a scarcity of horses at either track, it is a sure thing that each would have done better if it had had the field to itself. To bring about such a condition in the future, according to the Detroit story, the Highland Park Club and Messrs. Chambers, Walker and Wagner, the lessees of the Windsor track, will arrange to have a cir-cuit, consisting of Windsor, Fort Erie and Highland Park. The scheme contemplates 60 days' racing at Windsor, a like period at Fort Erie and a 30day meeting at Highland Park for a wind-up. There will be racing on the proposed new circuit almost the entire legitimate racing season. If the ideas of Sam Wagner and his associates in Windsor are carried out there will be few purses less than $300, and a number of valuable stakes to be decided at each of the three tracks. They expect in this way to attract a great many horses of good class to the proposed new circuit. With meetings conducted on high class principles in a section which, during the heated term is, by comparison with St. Louis, Chicago and Cincinnati, a paradise, they are confident that many lovers of the sport will be attracted from those cities and that the game will take on an air of prosperity such as has never been known in this section. The owners of the Windsor plate, with such a circuit in view, already have agreed to make further improvements. They have given assurance that they will move the grandstand quite a distance farther back and lay s. concrete prome-nade in front of it. They will also [Continued on page 8.]
