Absolute Reliability and Good Service, Motto of Local Realtors.

WHATEVER the real estate calling has been in London in the past, it is today to be found on a much higher plane.

The London Real Estate Board, a real live, progressive organization, is the reason.

The realtor is the reincarnated real estate man, pledged to the principles of honest and fair dealing in all lines of his calling.

The real estate board has set up within itself certain standards of fair dealing in buying, selling, renting. For a member to disregard or break these rules means his ignominious banishment from the ranks.

Cheerful devotion to honest service, respect and consideration for others, and reliable and truthful service, then, is what is to be expected from a realtor.

Thus, in placing a real estate contract in the hands of members of this organization, Londoners may assume that their interests are in the hands of safe and scrupulous dealers.

But the real estate board means more than this. With its advent has come the new spirit of co-operation, and here again is a great benefit to those desiring the services of a realtor.

A property is listed for sale with a member of the board. Today, with the multiple system of listing in vogue among the members of the board, the member receiving the listing immediately passes it on to his fellow-members of the board. Thus, instead of one careful realtor handling the matter, there will be eight or ten of a dozen.

Good service, quick results, and absolute reliability would seem to be the benefits from dealings with the members of the board.
