

The World For The Ladies Address The World, 4 King-st. E.

and bunglingly made up at that. The only looking statement is that the whole business is that the Canadian Government repudiated that it considered it its duty to prevent and not to encourage and assist such a scheme. Davitt's Labor World will at the outset of its career, run a fair chance of being damned throughout Canada by promulgating such a hideous lie. For a hatched lie it is undoubtedly a lie.

Intelligence is to hand from New York to the effect that Mr. Moore, on being shown the charges against him, said the whole story was a mass of malicious falsehoods. He declared he never saw McDermott in his life. He explains McDermott's presence in Montreal at the time by saying that it was due to his fear of being assassinated by enemies in New York.

Nuisances Calling for Abatement.
A New York contemporary, commenting on the abatement of a sensationalist revivalist preacher who made life a burden to the boarders in a house near his place of worship, says that now perhaps a good many of the boarders of that house will be taken to hand.

It is certainly not the bellowing of street preachers only that needs to be sat upon in the interests of the public quiet and decorum. It seems never to enter into the thick heads of some locomotive drivers to restrain the uselessly screeching of their engines, which makes night hideous and nervous people waken in their beds. He's a Jolly Good Fellow, in their resort. He's a Jolly Good Fellow, in their resort. He's a Jolly Good Fellow, in their resort.

Col. Denison Strikes Out.
That was a timely and, to some people's views, a crushing speech that Col. Denison delivered at the House of Commons last night. The Colonel had something to say about the military and naval power of the world, but a great trading nation. The attempt to have the military and naval power of the world, but a great trading nation.

From the time of the Reformation, as the Colonel pointed out, England has been not only the military and naval power of the world, but a great trading nation. The attempt to have the military and naval power of the world, but a great trading nation.

From this time, says Dr. Bryce, whose report we are following, the world has been a great trading nation. The attempt to have the military and naval power of the world, but a great trading nation.

STREET LIGHTING.

A Very Important Question Now Before the Council and the People.

What Will It Cost?

Just now the great light in municipal circles is that relating to the Consumers Gas Company and the Toronto Electric Light Company, each seeking to defeat the other in the race for supremacy. As the great street illuminator of Toronto up to date the electric company has had much the best of the battle, owing to the influence of the friends it is known to possess in council. Prominent in the ranks of the opponents of the gas company is Ald. Bohn, the present chairman of the Fire and Light Committee, and Ald. Shaw, the ex-chairman. Both are enthusiastic electric lighters, and the officials of the Fire Department have to concede the electric light as the more efficient, owing to the fact that the electric light is more efficient than the gas light.

There have been several meetings of the sub-committee and committee proper to discuss the matter, and the result has been a deadlock. The electric company has been unable to secure the necessary majority to carry its proposal, and the gas company has been unable to secure the necessary majority to carry its proposal.

As an example his offer to satisfactorily light the city for a period of three years, saving to Toronto at least $100,000 in a challenge which, though not accepted, was a very serious one. The electric company has been unable to secure the necessary majority to carry its proposal, and the gas company has been unable to secure the necessary majority to carry its proposal.

MONTREAL, Oct. 10.—Judge Davidson rendered a very interesting and important judgment in the case of the Rev. J. J. Lefebvre v. Les Petits Freres de Marie. The case was an action by a plaintiff claiming damages for alleged libel against the Rev. J. J. Lefebvre, who was a member of the Les Petits Freres de Marie, a religious order of nuns.
