Gossip From Chicago.

Counselman & Day to J. J. Dixon & Co.: The longs in the wheat made an attempt to bull market at opening in face of lower foreign quotations and continued excellent harvest conditions on this side. Attempt, nowever, was short lived, as second cables were still lower and Bradstreet's reported stocks increased 3.083,000 on both coasts. Dec. was stubbornly pegged at yesterday's closing price, until messages from New York reported a resale of a cargo of wheat intended for France at a price that netted the seller seven cents per bushel more than 'if exported. Then the peg broke and prices slid down and stopped only on buying against puts. Market still looks weak and like selling lower to-morrow. Kennett, Hopkins & Co.: There has been so stopped only on buying against puts. Market still looks weak and like selling lower to-morrow. Kennett, Hopkins & Co.: There has been so much buying at sensational European prices and so little short selling by bears, who were afraid to back their opinion, that the speculative situation looks very weak and considerably lower prices seem probable.

R. Cochran's correspondents: The demand for cash corn by receiving houses to fill Eastern and export orders has been so heavy for the past 24 hours that a substantial recovery succeeded yesterday's bad break. When this demand had been satisfied there was a renewed pressure to sell. It is claimed that the extremely dry weather of past 10 days has put the new crop in splendid condition and that large quantities of excellent No. 3 will be marketed next month at prices considerably lower than old corn. It is believed this will largely take the place commercially of old corn, and materially reduce the price of the latter. The outlook seems to warrant lower prices for all options.

J.J. Dixon's correspondents: Provisions started out strong with heavy buying by leading packers of October who afterward turned seliers for December, influenced by larger receipts of hogs markets. Weather is too hot for profitable packing operations and local traders put out liberal so that the strength of the latter wand turned seliers for December, influenced by larger receipts of hogs markets.
