The Municipality In Business.
Gas is sold in Birmingham for 52c per thousand feet, or just about one-half of the city, and, as The World has been trying to argue lately, a corporation can conduct a business like this cheaper than can a private company. Shareholders and directors in gas and electric light companies, of course, argue to the contrary, but the city of Birmingham proves that the weight of evidence is on our side. Let us cite one item to the companies works out in panily asks whether we cannot improve to show how the comparison works out in nently asks whether we cannot impr In Toronto the shareholders draw ten per ting to the sea? "Are we," says he, "to see cent. dividends on the capital stock of the the foreign bound traffic of the upper lakes company. The capital stock of the Consumers' Gas Company is $1,600,000 and the yearly dividends amount to $160,000. If the city operated the plant it would pay only four per cent. on this capital, or $64,000 a year. The difference between these two sums, $96,000, represents one of the items of saving by having the business under municipal control. The saving of that single item would enable the city, if it were managing the concern, to reduce the price of aging the concern, to reduce the price of River. For lack of information we do not gas by twelve cents per thousand. If the know what should be done. We only know city controlled the supply of gas, it would that something practical might be done. be more in the interests of the citizens to sell a large quantity of gas at a small profit than a smaller quantity at a large profit. This factor alone would mean 15 or 20 cents difference in the price of gas. Birmingham gets the benefit of these and other considerations, and is able to sell gas at 52 cents, while that consumed by the city is charged an even lower rate. Over and above all this the city of Birmingham is making money out of its gas office. We extract from The Birmingham Mercury, dated May 19, the following paragraph: "At a special meeting on Tuesday next the city council will be asked to authorize the appropriation of £24,551 15s. 9d., the net profit of the gas department for the year ending March 31, 1894, to the credit of the improvement rate of 1893. The statement of accounts which accompanies the Gas Committee's report shows that the trading profits on the year amount to £123,286, against £122,007 in the preceding year. After deducting the sum received from contractors in default of deliveries, and Port Arthur. the increased cost of coal purchased during the strike was reduced to about £15,000."

We would imagine, after reading his speech to the share-holders of that bank on Tuesday, that Mr. ism; and it is all for poor, paltry "party !" His summary of the position of affairs in this and other countries is as full of interest held yesterday and the full report may be position of affairs in this and other as the Budget Speech, and it is of even greater authority, coming as it does from an independent source. He refers to all our principal industries and points out their present condition and future prospects. He also has suggestions to make in Imperial Bank of Canada.

The inneteenth annual meeting of this in this country. The culture of beets for sugar is one of these. Mr. Walker is not certain that the raising of beets in Canada for this purpose has had a tail practical trial. It is claimed that we can excel Germany in this business, and if so there is no reason why a big industry should not be developed in the manufacture of our own augar. It is pointed out that in 1839 we imported $7,500,000 worth of raw sugar.

Referring to our iron importations, Mr. Walker touches upon a much more important question than that of sugar. Says he:

"We pay to foreign countries for iron and steel and for raw sugar $20,000,000, nearly one-sixth of our whole imported. If these are materials for the production of which we are by nature well situated, it is at least discreditable to such an enterprising people that more is not done to develop these in the industries." The Dominion Government has discreditable such an enterprising people that more is not done to develop these in this issue.

Sir Oliver Mowat, however, is a Cartwright freetrader, imbued with the idea that a Government has no right to interest itself in thousand feet, or just about one-half of the price we are charged for it in Toronto. But we should bear in mind that it is the corporation that owns the gas works in that would find some means of adopting a city and as The World he have tries to the development of the business affairs of the country. It is facts like those disclosed in this evidence that have made the Patrons so bitter against Sir Oliver Mowat, the alleged purist.
