

the Colorado, and other like delicacies, suffice for the inner man. Yet, through it all, these scientists, students, and amateurs maintained the degree of interest and enthusiasm with which they

MU-KOON-TU-WEAP CANYON.

left the East; nor were they ever lost to a sense of the grandeur through which they were passing, perhaps with soaked clothes outside and a gnawing hunger inside. In the Canyon of Lodore