NEW BRUNSWICK CEDAR SHINGLES.

Cedar shingles are growing scarce at producing points, many of the manufacturers being out of logs and closed down until next spring. The close of the sawing season has left only small stocks at the mills, as the demand has practically taken care of the production throughout the summer. It can only be a short time before there must be a marked shortage in the supply, and then manufacturers who are lucky enough to have a few cars left over from their season's sawing can readily realize their own figures. The demand is good, better than it has been for two months. Competitive shingles, such as Michigan and Ontario cedar and pine are in very scant supply, and the New Brunswick and Maine operators who can supply the demand have prices in their own hands. Ruling quotations are, delivered on Boston rates. Extras, $3.15 to $3.25; clears, $2.70 to $2.80; 2nd clears and clear whites, $2.20 to $2.35.

CURRENT TRADE CONDITIONS. ONTARIO.

In every part of the province lumber of all kinds is moving actively. The fall demand from retail dealers has presented itself within the past week, and at the same time numerous representatives of United States houses have visited the mills on this side in search of stock. Not for many years have the yards been so thoroughly cleaned up at the close of the sawing season. Prices have stiffened slightly, and in the lower grades some advances have been made. At Toronto the wholesale price of 1 x 10 and 12 mill culls is $10.50 to $11, 1-inch siding mill culls $9.50 to $10, and inch siding ship culls $11.50 to $12. These grades have advanced 50 cents within the past week. Inch fine dressing and better is also higher, being quoted at $22 to $23. The exceedingly high price of mill culls is the subject of much comment by the trade. United States dealers have paid $8 per thousand for mill culls f.o.b. cars at Georgian Bay points. To this must be added $2 for duty and about $4 for freight, making the cost of the lumber delivered in the Eastern States about $14 per thousand. Much of this lumber, no doubt, is being used for the manufacture of boxes. Hardwood prices have remained almost stationary for some time. A slight advance has been made on maple of first and second quality.

Shingles and lath continue to be much inquired for. XXX pine shingles, 16-inch, sell at $2.60 wholesale, and XX at $1.70. No. 1 lath is quoted at $2.60 at Toronto and No. 2 at $1.75, with an upward tendency.

QUEBEC AND NEW BRUNSWICK.

There are indications that the shipping season is drawing to a close. The excessive freight rates and insurance charges may terminate the season earlier than usual. European trade is quiet, although regular shipments are being made to the United States, the market there for clapboards, shingles and other eastern pro-
