In reference to the question as to the contagious that the income from other sources of such widow or London Medical Gazette, one of the leading medical important we there find one of the first medical aucumstances, we are justified in at least doubting the non-contagiousness of the fatal Asiastic pest. If we be in error, we err most assuredly on the safe side.-Our quotations are made from a review of "Chemical Lectures on the practice of Medicine, by J. R. Graves M. D., &c."

"Dr. Graves believes, in common with most professional men, that Spasmodic cholera is an imported disease. His description of its origin and progress is one of the best summaries of the history of this pestilence which we have seen, and the facts which he has adduced of its obviously contagious character are only confirmatory of what has been already published by Coupland, Watson, and other eminent observers. He justly remarks that the disease has never been known to traverse the ocean at a rate exceeding that of ships—a fact difficult to explain, if the spreading of the cholera is to be referred to mere atmoseric diffusion in an epidemic form. He also proves that the disease is really contagious, from the facts adcontagious; but with respect to one argument to which an undue value has been attached, he remarks-Why the cholera, if an imported disease, should have

rate importation from Europe—a circumstance which will prevent us from feeling the same surprise with Dr. Jackson, that between Quebec and New York all the intermediate cities on the sea-board escaped, at least for a few months. This is analogous to the exemption of Waterford and Wexford during several months that cholera raged in Dublin and Cork.* I gave Dr. Jackson's Report Residence.

The manner in which the author extracts proofs of contagion out of statements which are intended to disprove this doctrine, may be illustrated by the following

'Mr. Larder, a very intelligent surgeon, and formerly a pupil of mine, has written a very interesting paper on the progress of cholera in Portugal.—Lancet, 1834-5, p. 314. Many observers have remarked on the singular fact that cholera has shewn itself but little in countries south of the equator. Dr. Graves observes—

'Cholera did not reach South America at all, a fact explicable by the great length of the voyage from the infected countries, which reason also protected the Cape of vented from examining in any year, deputies to examininstead of them shall be nominated by the Vice Chancel lor, and appointed by grace of the Senate.

That the examination for the Natural Sciences Tripos shall commence on the sixth Monday after the general admission ad respondendum quæstioni, and shall continue four days.

That all students who shall have passed the examinations, and kept the exercises required for the degree of Bachelor of Civil Law, or of Bachelor of Physic, or who shall have passed the examinations entitling to admission ad respondendum quæstioni may be candidates for hon-ours in the Natural Sciences Tripos next succeeding such examinations.

That the candidates for honours in the Natural Sciences the Tripos whom the examiners shall deem worthy of the honour shall be arranged by them in three classes, the places being determined by estimating the aggregate merits of each candidate in all the subjects of the examination. And in these classes marks of distinction shall be affixed to the names of such candidates as have shown eminent proficiency in particular subjects.

That the first examination for the Natural Sciences

Tripos, under the regulations now proposed, shall take place in the year 1851.

That, with a view to encourage attendance at the lectures of the mathematical professors, and to secure a correspondence between those lectures and the mathematical examinations of the University; and also as a means of communicating to the students themselves, from a body of experienced examiners and lecturers, correct views of the nature and objects of our mathematical examinations, the Lucasian Professor of Mathematics, the Plumian Professor of Astronomy, the Lowndean Professor of Geometry and Astronomy, and the Jacksonian Professor of Natural and Experimental Philosophy, together with the Moderators and Examiners for mathematical honours for the time being several professor. matical honours for the time being, as well as those of the two years immediately preceding, be constituted a Board of Mathematical Studies, whose duty it shall be to consult together, from time to time, on all matters relating to the actual state of mathematical studies and examinations in the University, and to prepare annually, and lay before the Vice-Chancellor, a report, to be by him published to the University in the lent or Easter Term of each year.

The Syndicate, having respect to the great importance of the study of theology, and with the view of giving increased efficiency to the regulations already established for the bromotion of it, further recommend :-(E.)

That all persons who present themselves for examination at the theological examination, established by grace of the Senate, May 11, 1842. be required to produce a certificate of having attended the lectures delivered during one term, at least, by two of the three Theological Professors, viz., the Regius Professor of Divinity, the Margaret Professor of Divinity, and the Norrisian Professor

CONSECRATION OF CHRIST CHURCH, COLD HARBOUR. -The County of Surrey has of late years distinguished itsel in an eminent degree, by the erection of Churches, not only o elegant exterior, but with internal arrangements adapted to the wants of an increasing population. The truly Christian feeling manifested by these works is highly creditable both to the Clergy and the inhabitants generally; and their munificence, directed in the control of th directed as it is to objects of such excellence, will, we have no doubt, receive its due reward.

The animus by which the beautiful new Church at Cold Harbour has been erected was truly philanthropic. Nothing tends more effectively to elevate the feelings of the labouring classes than the watchful care of the Clergyman in the discharge of his pastoral duties; and nothing is better calculated to secure the sympathy of his parishioners than ample Church accomm dation. We therefore, in common with all classes resident in the Cold Harbour district, in all sincerity of thought acknow-ledge with gratitude the exertions of those who have been instrumental in raising the funds for this sacred edifice, and we sincerely hope that the whole of the objects contemplated will

The ceremony of the consecration took place on Thursday last, by the Lord Bishop of Winchester, who entered the new Church at eleven o'clock, followed by about thirty Clergymen of his Lordship's Diocese. The Church was filled by a respectable congregation, who felt the most intense interest in the service. His Lordship was received at the door by the registrar 24th Psalm in alternate verse. The prayers usually offered at consecration services were then offered up. The sentence of consecration was then read by the registrar, the Bishop sitting in his chair while this was done, and the service then proceeded.

The Clergyman who officiated was the Rev. J. L. Utterton, and his Lordship preached an eloquent and impressive sermon from the 9th and following verses of the 68th Psalm. At the conclusion of the discourse, the offertory was read, and a liberal subscription contributed towards the funds for the erection of the Psalm. the Parsonage-house. The whole of the ceremony passed off most satisfactorily. The Chants and singing were executed under the direction of Mr. Whatman, assisted by several gentle-men from Dorking and also the Choir of the Dorking Church who proved themselves very effective in the performances their duties .- County Paper.

NEW CHURCH AT SOUTH LAMBETH .- On Thurday the foundation-stone of a new Church in the above populous dis-trict was laid by his Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge in the presence of a large and highly-respectable assemblage. The new Church is to be dedicated to St. Barnabas the Apos tle, and it is estimated will cost, in its erection, about £5,000 it is situated near Lansdowne-road, and as it is intended to hold 1,200 persons, the majority of the sittings to be free, it will supply a deficiency long felt by the poorer inhabitants of that portion of the parish of Kennington. The party adjourned to the residence of Mr. Poynder, adjoining the site of the new Church where an elegant dèjeùner was laid out.

The new Church of St. Paul, Walkden, near Manchester, is now completed, having been lately consecrated by the Lord Bishop of Manchester. It is the second new Church erected within sight of Worsley Hall, the new mansion of the Earl of Ellesmere, at his Lordship's sole cost. Though a less ornate structure than its neighbour at Worsley, (first erected by the noble Earl, and one of the finest modern Churches in the county,) St. Paul's at Walkden is a noble Monument of his Lordship's munifice ce; simple in its design, but in its execution construc-ted with a more careful regard to atchitectural detail, and throughout of sounder workmanship and material, than is usual with the generality of modern Churches.

The Building is of the Farly English or "First Pointed" style, and consists of a nave 90 feet by 28 feet, south aisle 60 by 15 feet 6 inches, the eastermost bay having the organ and choir enclosed by an open screen or parclose, and a chancel 30 feet by 21 feet. At the west end of the aisle, its lower story serving as an entrance porch, stands the tower, 14 feet square, and to the spex of its stair turnet 90 feet in height. The interior of the Church, mainly owing to the entire absence of galleries, and to the massiveness of the walls, which measure from a yard to a yard and a half in thickness, is highly effective. The roofs are open timbered and boarded: the chancel having trussed rafters, and the nave and aisles trussed principals with carved braces, the ridge-piece, hammerbeams, purlins, &c., carved with the enrichments of the period. The pulpit, of stone, stands on the north side of the Chancel arch; it is of octangular form, richly moulded, and has been ably carved by Mr. Eaglestone. The reading-desk, altar-table, and rails are of oak, the seats of the nave and aisle being of elm, devoid of all ornament, but of most massive appearance; and on the north and south side of the chancel are carved seats of oak of elaborate design. The whole of the works (except the font, a handsome dona tion to the Church,) have been performed by his Lordship's own workmen on the estate, from the designs of Mr. William Young, architect, of London, under the skilful control of Mr.

James Evans, the clerk of the works.
