

Given the nature of the times, and the great opportunities for constructing a pan-European zone of civility now that the Cold War has become history, CSCE should not place the principles of 1648 at the centre of its processes and new tasks.