would make an end of them."—" She said, that if they talked of the King, she was out of patience; it was as if they should tell her, that her little Harry below would not do what was proper for him; that just so the King would sputter and make a buffle, but when they told him that it must be done from the necessity of his service, he must do it, as little Harry must, when she came down "."

CHAP. VIII.

I am no orator as Brutus is, To flir men's blood; I only speak right on, I tell you that which you yourselves do know.

SHAKESPEARE.

THE history of England has been continued in the last chapter, to the beginning of the disastrous but memorable reign of George the First. We shall close this part of the work with some general observations on the civil list.

"There we find places piled on places, to the height of the tower of Babel. There we find a mafter of the household, treasurer of the household, comptroller of the household, cofferer of the household, deputy-cofferer of the household, clerks of the household, clerks of the household, clerks comptrollers deputy-clerks of the household, clerks comptrollers deputy-clerks of the household, office keepers, chamber-keepers, necessary-house-keepers, purvey- ors of bread, purveyors of wine, purveyors of fish, purvey- ors of butter and eggs, purveyors of consectionary, deli- verers of greens, cosse-women, spicery-men, spicery men's assistant-clerks, ewry-men, ewry-men's assistant-clerks, kitch- en-clerks-comptrollers, kitchen-clerk-comptroller's first clerks, kitchen clerk-comptroller's junior clerks, yeomen
