ORGANS

that must be Sold Quickly

The Nordheimer business in the renting of Pianos alone is an immense one. As we rent hundreds of new Pianos there is a continuous inflow of returned rentals, practically good as new. We also take a very large number of Pianos and Organs in exchange when selling our Steinway and Nordheimer Pianos. Many of these are almost new. As we require every inch of our floor room to display new Pianos, and our storerooms being overcrowded, we have had these instruments put in thorough order, like new, and have marked them at the very lowest possible price-unheard of, in fact-and offer exceptionally easy terms. If you are thinking of purchasing a Piano this fall we would positively recommend making a selection now, as such an opportunity seldom happens in the ordinary course of business.

Mighty Rush of Water Sweeps was were Five Steerage Passengers to Death and Strews Deck With Stewardess Saves Lives.

From one of the steerage passengers who escaped death or serious injury in the disaster, it was learned that the ilves of several children were saved by a stewardess. Miss Cotes, and a deck steward. The little ones were playing about the deck when they were caught in the swir of water and carried aft with the others. On the return rush of the wave the children were being carried directly towards the open door, thru which the five who lost their lives had been carried when Miss Cotes and the steward rushed to their rescue and dragged them back to safety. Wednesday's disaster marks the first time in the Cunard Line's history of more than sixty years, that a passenger has been lost from one of its steamers by accident. Injured, One of Whom Dies-Disaster Came Unheralded.

New York, Oct. 14.-Five lives are on the Cunard Line steamer Campania last Wednesday, when a gigantic wave rolled over the vessel and swept across a deck thick with steerage passengers. So sudden was the coming of the disaster and so great the confusion which attended and followed it that even the officers of the steiner themselves were unable to-day, upon the vessel's arrival here, to estimate the full extent of the tragedy. It is possible that the five persons known to be missing from the steerage, may not con-stitute the full number of dead.

my sister was about 20 feet away from me near the port rail. I saw her engulfed in the water, so that she was covered from my view. Then the gate broke and the water, running back off When the Campania reached quarantine to-day ten of the injured passengers were still in the ship's hospital, some of them broke and the water, running back off the deck, dragged her with it. I dived into this stream and caught her dress. The water took us to the edge of the broken gate, where I managed to catch hold of a stanchion. Both of us were half drowned before we were rescued by two deck hands."

seriorsly hurt, and a score of others were nursing minor injuries.

The steamer was ploughing along under full head way last Wednesday afternoon. A heavy quartering sea was running, lut the weather conditions were far from unplersant and the big boat's decks were crowded with passengers. The steerage deck was covered with merrymakers and there was nothing to indicate the approaching disaster, when suddenly the big vessel lurched to port and scooped up an enormous sea. Altho some of the passengers thought that the Campania should have been stopped in an attempt to save those who were washed overboard the officers say that this was practically an imnous sea.
Submerged to Their Waists.

Submerged to Their Waists.

The wave boarded the steamer about midsaips on the port side and swept clear across the steerage deck, completely filling the space between that deck and the deck above and carrying everything with it.

The steamer's side was buried so deep that the passengers on the deck above the steering were submerged to their waists as the in mense volume of water rolled aft and then surged forward. All the cabin passengers on the upper deck succeeded in clirging to supports while the waters surged around them, and were saved, but the unforturates on the steerage deck found themselves utterly helpless. The irresistible rush of waters, sweeping towards the forward part of the ship, carried everything before it. Nettings, heavy railings and other obstructions which had been arranged near the railings to prevent passengers being washed overboard, served their purpose only in part.

So great was the volume and force of the rushing waters that a door in the rail
