BETWEEN THE ELECTION ACTS

I W. Plewes, the in Kent, is still enraged. He will be wilder than a soubrette with the hives or December 18.

Still it is hardly fair to speak of the Toronto Star as an old woman. The Star is the bride of Torytism.

And that reminds us of Vice-President Marshall's remark: "You can't interest a bridegroom in Sir Wilfrid is fighting the battle of democracy. The days of autocracy are numbered, but it dies hard in some people's wills. The end is in sight.

Ontario is expected to save the Borden Government. Ontario will do the same as the rest of the Dominton, making it quite unanimous for Laurier.

I'm as limber as a piece of macaroni,

I always seem to be the thing I ain't;

But when I'm making speeches that are phony,

I look just like a little plaster saint.

(From "Poems of Passion" by a well-known cabinet minister.)

One of the Borden papers in this campaign justifies its course by saying that it "has a soul." If it is not careful its soul will presently escape over the backyard fence like a hunted cat with a tin can tied to its tail.

Oh, bury me deep in the clay, boys, Pity me if vou can, But write this down when you come to town, Beware of a cross-eyed man. (From "Carols of the Winnipeg Con-wention" by Sir Clifford Sifton.)

The Globe laments that Sir Robert Borden will do no better than split even in his own province of Nova Scotta. The Bluenoses have furnished much of Canada's political brains, and they cannot be buncoed for any length,

The blighting curse of Bordenism, with its inactivity, its profiteering, its flagrant abuse of the men overseas under Perley, the favoritism, and the Presbyterians Complete Con-C. N. R. remain with the people of Canada. They have a chance to end it once and for all.

Str Joseph Flavelle consigned war NEW OFFICERS ELECTED profits to hades, but they stuck to him in great bales. He will, however, consign his "boys," Sir Thomas White A. H. Williams, Ivan, Heads and a few others, to that political limbo where the thirst for office will quenched forever and forever.

The Borden Government and its host of parasitic profiteers is now practicing that up to date song, where do we go from here?" realize that on December 17th the united people of Canada will end travagance.

Word has been received in this city that William Little, third son of the late Rev. James Little, for many years of Birr, and of Mrs. Little, who removed a year ago from London to Guelph, has been wounded and missing since November 10. He had been at the front just a year to the day, going to France with the 5th Battalion. He went overseas with the rank of lieutenant with the 152nd Battalion, but dropped his commission in order to get to the front. Previous to going overseas, he had been prominent in business and financial circles in Southern Saskatchewan, and was for a length of time manager of the Weyburn Security Savings Bank in Weyburn, where he made his home. He was a graduate of the London Collegiate Institute, and with his family is widely known in this city and in the Halifax disaster, it was announced today by the president, Thos. D. Neelands.
