HON. R. F. SUTHERLAND FOR CABINET SLATED FOR PORTFOLIO OF CUSTOMS

Hon. William Paterson Is to Be Sent to the Senate, While a Toronto Lawyer Will Be Chosen For Vacant Judgeship, Says Ottawa Story.

OTTAWA, June 10. (Special) .- An interesting cabinet shuffle is imminent, according to official gossip which reached The World to-night.

Hon. Wm. Paterson is about to be relegated to the senate, and his successor is to be Hon. R. F. Sutherland, ex-speaker of the house of commons. F. F. Pardee and W. S. Calvert for some time have advanced their claims for cabinet preferment, and Mr. Sutheriand, who has had the inside track, has been cajoling these aspirants with the news that he was about to be appointed to the judgeship rendered vacant by the promotion of Judge Anglin. He has even gone to the extent of confiding his secret to the "friendly" press at Ottawa.

A. H. Clarke, M.P. for South Essex, had the call, but the federal government hesitated to open the constituency, and Geo. H. Watson, K.C., is the dark horse. Mr. Sutherland's integral to the dark horse. Mr. Sutherland's integral to the such that the suc the dark horse. Mr. Sutherland's ingenuity in this regard was further in evidence at the last election, when he dissipated probable opposition in North Essex by the statement that he would be out of politics as soon as the pending appointments to the railway commission or a judgeship were made. This allayed for a moment the steadily growing ambitions which the steadily growing ambitions which were firing the breasts of would-be parliamentarians in the Liberal ranks.

He announced that a new course commerce and finance would be commenced next year. The first two years would have fixed hours, but the other years would be arranged to suit those who wished to enter business houses at the end of their second year.

Great Metropolitan Highway

Both For Business and as an Approach to the New and Finest Residential Quarters on the High Elevation.

The latest and most significant development in regard to Toronto real estate is the settlement of Yonge-street as its greatest metropolitan thorofare. At one time it looked as if Queen-street was to be the great highway. There was another time people thought Spadina-avenue would be the main road, but now everyone says that Yonge-street is and is to be Toronto's leading thorofare, not only for business but as an approach to the best residential section of the metropolis.

Down-town property on Yonge-street is the highest priced in the city and the increase in the value of Yonge-street property further up for business purposes is steadily growing, in fact it has almost doubled itself within eighteen months. But what The World wishes to point out this morning is not so much the value of business property on Yonge-street as the recent general recognition of the upper Yonge-street district, namely from the Canadian Pacific crossing northward, as high-class residential property, whether on the street itself or on the avenues that lead from it both to the east and to the west. Yonge-street gives a natural approach to the splendid elevations that lie on either hand, and for healthfulness, scenery and all the other things that go to make up a high-class residential district, these all seem to be more at hand up there than in any other portion of the city or suburbs. As a consequence there has been a marked advance in the prices of real estate on upper Yonge-street and all the property adjacent to it: so much so has this been the fact that for six miles up from the corner of Queen-street everything now is a building proposition, where not long ago it was farm lands or dairy outfits.

The new development may be more particularized by saying that it covers largely the Town of North Toronto, which touches the city on the north boundary of Mount Pleasant Cemetery, and extends for four miles up to Bedford Park, in fact to the brow of the hill overlooking the ravine of the West Don, which crosses

Yonge-street at York Mills. One of the first portions of this district to feel this northward movement for residential purposes was Deer Park and the Upper Canada College districts, which are approached by Avenue-road and Yonge-street, and where hundreds of high-class residences have been and are being constructed. On the east side of the street and contiguous to Deer Park has been the district known as Moore Park, which is also now showing the same growth as to the west. One of the finest residences ever built in Toronto has just been completed in Moore Park, which, tho still in the township, borders the city, and contains in Reservoir Park the most picturesque of all the city

One of the significant proofs of this new departure found in the immense amount of building material that has been unloaded at the sidings of the Canadian Pacific cross-town line, where yards exist for all kinds of supplies and which have been conveniently teamed into this new district. So marked has this development been that the Grand Trunk has determined to share in it, and it is rebuilding its belt line with a station on Yongestreet, about three-quarters of a mile higher up than the C.P.R. where it proposes to accommodate the building supply firms who are anxious to get the custom of the new bought a big block of land on Yonge-street for this purpose at

$5000 an acre. But the most recent development and the most significant is what is occurring in the Town of North Toronto itself both on the main street and on either side. Property after property has been bought at advanced rates and is being purchased by citizens for homes in a surprising way and to go up thru North Toronto you realize at once how what at one time seemed a sleeping suburb is taking on all the airs of a great metropolitan thorofare. Stores and business places are springing up on all the corners; banks have already secured sites and others of them are looking for tions. You see new houses, fine residences under way in every direction. Big transactions are recorded every day as well as scores of smaller ones. This, however, is no boom, but a healthy natural development on big lines in the way of home building and

The firm who are entitled to speak most authoritatively on this growth to the north are Waddington & Grundy, pioneers in North Toronto real estate, and they say that the many large and small transactions put thru by them in recent months in this district are all of the nature of genuine building proposals and high-

But the most significant of the many indications of the marvelous development of North Toronto from a real estate point of view is the announcement in The World's advertising columns yesterday of the Dovercourt Land, Building and Savings Company of the opening of Lawrence Park on the corner of Lawrence avenue and Yonge-street, for high-class residential sites. This magnificent property and the Harris farm south of it have about three-eighths of a mile frontage on the east side of Yonge-street, at a point less than five miles from the corner of Yonge and Queen-streets. The company are laying it out in the way of avenues and crescents, so as to make the best of possible locations and to give the best possible disposition of the fine views that are abundantly available. The company bought these two farms of about 300 acres sometime ago, for the express purpose of opening it as a building park, and secured the best layout that surveyors and landscape gardeners could devise. The ravine that lies at the front of the property is to be kept as a natural park and crossed by a substantial bridge, which gives an approach to two avenues curving around to the right and left, and running them due east to the top of the hill, where the old residence occupied by the

Lawrence family still stands. The management of the Dovercourt Company have decided to put very reasonable prices on their property to encourage the business men and the professional men of the city who want firstclass residences, to locate on this high elevation, which is one of the chief attractions of North Toronto from a residential point

Lawrence Park is in the municipality of North Toronto, with its excellent gas, electric light and water service, the same as in the city, and good roads will be laid down as development proceeds. The distance from King-street is only 35 minutes in time, and this will be greatly improved when Yonge-street in North Toronto is reconstructed, the double-track put down and a single fare provided. All these things are in immediate sight. Watch now and see how the whole community will accept our dictum that Yonge-street is Toronto's greatest thorofare, either for business or as an approach to homes. FINEST SKY SCRAPER

Rev. Dr. Pringle of the Yukon Calls on Presbyterian Assembly to Begin a Purification of Public Life.

HAMILTON, June 10 .- (Special.) Moral and social reform came before the general assembly this morning in such portentous shape that the assembly could do nothing but sit still and listen. There was no word of protest or question of fact. "That this assembly deplores and condemns the evils which are found in our political life to-day, which are rapidly lowering the moral sense of our people; urges upon its ministers and people the duty of earnestly and courageously combating these evils by voice and vote whenever they manifest

Such was the amendment moved by Rev. Dr. Pringle-of Yukon fame-and which was later carried unaniously. His statements were received in general with silence, the applause nally broke out. Dr. Pringle began by asserting that the assembly expected some reference in the report to the evils apparent in political life. "They exist-unless men are liarsunless the papers on both sides of politics are edited by men who are writing what they know to be untrue.

"I think I have some right to speak. For a year I was a notorious storm centre in the Presbyterian Church. It has been said. John writes his letter for the purpose of advertising himself. The government had been give church sites and other favors in Yukon, and the objectors said 'What business had a home mis causing the government to withdraw

Only One immorality. He did not wish to let personal feeling rise. Naturally, for he was human, strong things were said. A libel suit was still pending. He tried to get things straightened out. Last year he was not a commissioner, and he had to sit dumb while the debate was going on. Nor was he a constituent member of the Westminster Presbytery. They ran a bluff against him. Sometimes that could be done. The code now only recognized one form of immorality in public life.

"A man may get drunk and steal from the public purse, but he is not im-moral unless he has illicit relations with a woman. That is the only im-

He then described how an affidavit was introduced in the Yukon Council. "signed by a woman so drunk she did not know what she was doing, that I had improper relations with her. I have my weaknesses but impurity is not one of them," he declared.

When his friends wanted to take the matter up in the Yukon Council, it was a Presbyterian who interfered and prevented the affidavit being withdrawn. A cross affidavit from the woman was also obtained.

"The lawyers offered her $500 if she would refuse to give it, but either her Scotch blood or her Presbyterian training got the better of her love for whiskey, and what goes with it, and she told the truth." (Applause.) Dr. Pringle turned to the supplementary report, which states that no prestutes were known to be in Dawson. "Last summer there was a prosti-Tast summer there was a prosti-tute for every 30 people, man, woman or child, in Dawson," he stated. Women were perfectly safe in Daw-son, it was said. Why should a man were so many others? Besides this, the police were so numerous that if Toronto had a force of the same proportions it would number 9500.

"The federal government of the United States put the law in force against immorality and 180 men took small boats from Fairbanks and planted themselves on the people of Can-ada. It is a shame that we cannot get the government of Canada to do what the United States did," exclaimed Dr. Pringle. "I say, advisedly, the reason is that the men sent to enforce the law
