BERLIN, March 27.—A French transport carrying troops away from Saloniki struck a mine and sank with a large loss of life, according to Athens despatches today. Only 73 persons were rescued.

The following article appeared in The Aeroplane under date of March 8, 1916:
"An offer made by the Australian Commonwealth of a complete squadron for the Royal Flying Corps has been accepted by the war office. This will include 28 commissioned officers and 186 men. The squadron has already been provisionally organized in Australia, under the command of Col. Reynolds, commandant of the Werribee Flying School, formerly at the Staff College. The aeroplanes, it is stated, will be sent from England.

The personnel are being selected from the graduate officers and men at the Werribee School. Complete motor car and motorcycle equipment will also be ralsed. It is said that Lleut.-Col. E. H. Reynolds will probably command the unit, which it is hoped will be of the importance of a squadron."

SOME LUCKY ESCAPES ARE BEING TOLD OF

How Various Investors Came Close to Putting Money Into Hotel Propositions.

The sword of prohibition now over the head of the hotel men has started some interesting stories of lucky escapes in connection with hotel real estate. One connection with hotel real estate. One well-known amusement director is credited with seeing what was coming, and as a consequence sold over a quarter of a million of hotel properties at good prices. One of his friends who bought from him insisted on paying off in full—went and borrowed the money from the bank. Another well-known hotel man was contemplating buying a brewery and putting up a big hotel last summer and had made all his arrangements. When he went to sign it up the vendors wanted to change something; this the proposed purchaser did not like and he broke away. "I kept myself and friends out of a three-quarter million deal by that change in the terms and I'm delighted now that it went that way. But I was dead sore at the time."

Fifty thousand dollars' damage was done by fire which started in the bindery at Brown & Stainton's, wholesale stationers and bookbinders, 77 Bay street, about 6.40 last night. The cause is unknown. The bindery is situated at the rearend of the basement in a small room. Policeman Moore, who was on duty near Melinda street, first saw the blaze coming from the basement windows in the lane at the rear of the building, and sent in an alarm. A few seconds later a general alarm was rung in.

When the firemen arrived, dense smoke obscured the rear of the buildsmoke obscured the rear of the building. Lines of hose were laid along the lane, but owing to it being blind and narrow, little effective work could be accomplished. The blaze was fought more directly from the front of the building, and from rear windows of The Telegram building.

Fireman Andrew Parkes of No. 1 hose wagon, Adelaide street, was fighting the flames from the windows of the top storey of The Telegram building when he was overcome by the dense smoke. Parkes was hurried to the Adelaide street firehall in Chief Smith's motor car.
